

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

SAMUEL BAKER RINDGE.

By the Hon. FRANCIS J. PARKER, of Boston, Mass.

THE ancestor of all New-England families of the name was Daniel' Rindge, who was in Roxbury as early as 1639, and who was a resident of Ipswich in 1648. He married Mary Kinsman, the daughter of Robert Kinsman, by whom he had three sons and three daughters. Daniel Rindge died in February, 1661.

His son Roger' was born June 19, 1657, and married, June 9, 1684, Sarah Shatswell, daughter of Richard and Rebecca (Tuttle) Shatswell, and granddaughter of John and Joanna Shatswell, who were in Ipswich in 1633.

Roger Rindge's son Daniel³ married 1st, March 22, 1711-12, Sarah Knowlton, who died April 4, 1714; and 2d, Martha (Caldwell) Ayres, widow of Stephen Ayres. Daniel³ Rindge was killed by Indians July, 1724, and in 1726 his widow Martha Rindge married John Wood.

Daniel Rindge, the son of Daniel and grandson of Roger, was born Jan. 26, 1721, and died Aug. 9, 1800. In January, 1745, he married Mary Kimball, who was born Nov. 15, 1724, and who died probably in November, 1801.

John Rindge, son of Daniel, was born Sept. 25, 1759; May 18, 1786, he married Sarah Baker (born Dec. 29, 1766; died Oct. 17, 1824, at Ipswich). John Rindge died Oct. 18, 1801, at Ipswich.

Samuel Rindge, the son of John, was born at Ipswich, Jan. 29, 1791; married Feb. 17, 1820, Maria (Bradlee) Wait of Medford, and died at Cambridge, Mass., July 3, 1858. His wife, born 1797, died Feb. 1, 1850.

Samuel Baker Rindge, the son of Samuel and Maria, was born at East Cambridge, Dec. 26, 1820; married April 29, 1845, Clarissa Harrington, daughter of Nathaniel and Clarissa (Mead) Harrington), who was born at Lexington, Dec. 8, 1822, and who died Jan. 4, 1885.

Their children were:—Ellen Cleland Rindge, b. July 9, 1846; d. March 17, 1849. Frank Harrington Rindge, b. April 14, 1850; d. Jan. 18, 1857. Mary Bradlee Rindge, b. Sept. 18, 1853; d. Jan. 19, 1863. Frederick Hastings Rindge, b. Dec. 21, 1857. Samuel Harrington Rindge, b. Feb. 6, 1860; d. Jan. 16, 1863. Edward Harrington Rindge, b. Aug. 3, 1866; d. May 7, 1875.

It is not in the study of the lives of public men only, that the sons of the people are to look for instruction; but in every life there is a lesson, perhaps of warning, perhaps of example, but in any case worthy of perusal. Out of many such lives we find proof confirmatory of the rule that every young man has within himself the possibility of success. There may be long years, which to the struggling youth will seem much longer than they are, of slow progress or apparently of want of progress, in the chosen or assigned path; but every lad should have it firmly impressed upon his mind that steady persistence and quiet perseverance are sure to be rewarded in the end. This is one lesson in the life of Samuel Baker Rindge.

Daniel Rindge, the father of Samuel B., was a hard-working man. For twenty-five years he held a position of responsibility in the New England Glass Works at Cambridge. Of his moderate income he managed usually to reserve something each year, and late in life he had some income from a small real property left by his brother Daniel; but his oldest son knew that it was to his own exertions that he must look to advance himself in wealth and station.

Equipped with the sound but limited education which was open to him in the schools at Cambridge (in one of which he was a schoolmate of the Hon. William E. Parmenter), supplemented by one year's tuition at a school in Salem, at fifteen years of age he began his business life. In 1836 he entered the counting room of Parker & Blanchard* in Boston, as the youngest boy.

The writer still remembers him as he was when he made this start in his career. A ruddy cheeked lad, with dark, almost black hair of which he cherished two curls, one on each side in front of his ears; with very bright eyes; exceedingly quick in every movement, and very prompt to respond to every call.

There was a great discrepancy in those days between the duty of the youngest boy in such a house, and the amount of his pay. His first year's salary did not usually exceed fifty dollars, and it was increased, possibly by fifty dollars, with each year of service. He was expected to obtain the keys in the morning, early enough to be in attendance before any one else; to open the doors and window shutters; to sweep, dust, make the fires and put everything in readiness for clerks and partners when they presented themselves. During the day he was at everybody's beck and call, to run errands, to receive or deliver merchandise, often to carry bundles quite out of proportion to his own size, and finally to remain until the last person had left the building, and then to close the premises carefully and return the keys to the house of one of the partners. Very likely in all this long day's work, he had only one meal, and in young Rindge's case, living as he did too far from the place of business to return to dinner, his noon day luncheon was usually made from a provision brought from home in the morning. Small as his compensation was for several years, it is not probable that in any year of his apprenticeship he failed to lay away something for his capital. Necessarily economical, he always kept an account of every trifling expenditure, a custom to which he adhered long after the occasion for such watchfulness had passed away.

Busy as he was in the performance of his own duties, he yet made time to learn the duties of those above him, and he sought every opportunity to add something of their employment to his own. So that when promotion came he was at once able to assume the desk and to do the work of the place awaiting him. Nor was this all. He possessed not only the old-time New England thrift, but also a large measure of Yankee enterprise. He was a natural trader. As a boy he knew the value of the various kinds of jack-knives and other objects which boys covet; and, when his accumulated capital came to be reckoned by eagles, he began to adventure in foreign trade.

In those days there were many vessels, chiefly brigs of 150 to 200 tons, engaged in trading or under charter to the West Indies or the Spanish main; and, having, or making, the acquaintance of the masters of such vessels, young Rindge would entrust to them little invoices of merchandise to be sold on joint account, the proceeds being usually returned in produce of the country. Coffee, honey, wax and tamarinds were common items. It is not known that his adventures were so peculiar as those made by Lord Timothy Dexter of Newburyport; but, among the last of Rindge's was one to California of pop-corn, for which, having the only stock in the market, his returns were quite satisfactory.

In such counting-rooms as that of Parker & Blanchard the usual advance of a boy was to a clerk's position, and thence to be the head book-keeper and cashier; and Samuel B. Rindge followed that promotion. Like himself, however, he managed here also not only to do all the work of his own place, but to reach out and grasp additional work, and thereby to increase his usefulness and value to his employers. At every opportunity he would drop his pen, and hasten to meet and wait upon a customer, until his value as a salesman became greater than as a book-keeper; and when at twenty-five years of age he became a partner in the firm, he had, by doing work beyond what was mere compliance with his duty, become fully acquainted with every department of a complicated business, and able to do or to direct whatever was to be done.

To arrive at a partnership in an established business was for a man so constituted and so educated, a beginning of sure success. There were pull-backs at times, losses by panics and depreciation in market values, but when Mr. Rindge died at sixty-three years of age, his property was valued at nearly two millions of dollars, all of which may be regarded as the accumulation of one who had entered business at its lowest step, and in the slow lapse of years had, by dint of faithful work, attained the highest place. Fidelity, Diligence, Intelligence and Perseverance were the magicians, who, out of nothing, had made so much: for his outside operations from first to last may be regarded as his amusement, and it is doubtful whether on the whole they resulted in any profit whatever.

Mr. Rindge cared little or nothing for political position; except for a year or two of service as an Alderman of Cambridge, he never held an office, and this he accepted without enthusiasm, and relinquished without regret; yet he was not uninterested or inactive in political affairs, but gave a reasonable amount of time to attendance upon the caucuses and conventions of his party. In many places of trust, as director, manager and president of banks and of manufacturing and other corporations, his assistance was valued and welcomed. Into such duties he threw himself with ardor, for he could not be a cipher in any place, and in these and in many cases where appeal was made to his friendship or sympathy, he lavished time, thought, and care without recompence.

With all his activity in business he was not absorbed by it. He found time for his home and family; no one ever enjoyed an "outing" better than he,—his relish of a holiday, whether it was a day in the country or a year in Europe, was almost boyish in freshness. He had an excellent memory of persons, places, events and things. As he walked or rode, he was constantly alert, to see what was going on, and he saw everything. Before he was out of his teens he showed a tendency to be masterful with those under his direction. Under him a boy obtained a good schooling in affairs. It was useless to try to hoodwink him, or to avoid his searching questions. Shiftlessness and laziness received no mercy at his hands. He seemed to require everybody under his authority to be and do what he had been and had done. He was an exacting, but not an unkindly master.

Habits of economy, which in his early life he had acquired of necessity, were never entirely shaken off, but he was neither miserly nor mean. His home was adorned with valuable works of art, his summer residence was spacious and costly, his living was generous.

The sums of money which he lost by over confidence in personal or business friends might have been a considerable per-centage added to his wealth.

Although he had warning of the danger, he refused to retire from active business, preferring to face all possibilities and to die, if it must be so, in the midst of the occupations which had been his delight from early youth; and so, after but a day or two of confinement, in almost the full possession of bodily and mental strength, he died, of congestion of the brain, on the third day of May, 1883, and was buried in Mount Auburn in the presence of a great concourse of his business associates, kinsfolk and friends.

THE PRE-COLUMBIAN VOYAGES OF THE WELSH TO AMERICA.

By the Rev. B. F. DE COSTA, D.D., of New York City.

Antiquities or Remnants of History, are, as said, Tanquam Tabula naufragii, like planks of a shipwreck, when industrious persons, by an exact and scrupulous diligence and observation, out of monuments, names, words, proverbs, traditions, private records and evidences, fragments of stones, passages of books that concern not story, and the like, do save and recover somewhat from the deluge of time. - Advancement of Learning.

THE alleged voyages to America by the Welsh, set down for the year 1170, form a subject that has never received the attention to which it is entitled by American writers, while in Great Britain it has not been treated with anything like justice. No monograph of a really meritorious or exhaustive character has ever been devoted to this important theme either in Europe or America. Superficial sketches are certainly not wanting, while the alleged voyage has often been referred to in historical and general works, and the probabilities of the case have sometimes been discussed. Comparatively little historical criticism, however, has been applied to the voyage of Madoc, son of the Prince of Wales, while, as if by some kind of an understanding, the most of that class of writers who, with good reason, might have been expected to have studied the subject with care, have either ignored the voyage, or contented themselves with a few irrelevant remarks which serve to show that, in reality, they were unacquainted with the merits of the case.

Justice requires us to point out that one cause of this neglect may be found in the fact that the discussion with regard to the voyages of the Northmen to America, which began with the opening of the eleventh century, had the prior claim to notice, being superior both in interest and importance, and quite overshadowing the modest claim of the Welsh. The Northmen, for more than half a century last past, have largely monopolized the attention of many inquirers concerning the Pre-Columbian History of America. On the other hand, injudicious advocates of the Welsh have done much to create prejudice and distrust. It is not improbable, too, that Southey, by his poem of "Madoc," did considerable to convey the impression that the subject was really a theme quite removed from the sphere of veritable history.

The present, however, would appear to be a favorable time for the reopening of the discussion, since the voyages of the Northmen are now substantially accepted, and the Sagas are received as genuine histories. Indeed there should never have been any doubt on this point. Critics like Alexander Von Humboldt did not doubt,

VOL. XLV.

That great investigator frankly accepted the even at the outset. records, and was of opinion that the scene of the Northmen's exploits was to be found on the coast of New England. George Bancroft, on the contrary, taught for about half a century, in the various edition of his History of the United States, that the Icelandic records were "mythological in form and obscure in meaning," but in the edition of his work published in 1883, he dropped all reference to the subject, and has since had the frankness to admit that, in taking that view of the subject, he fell into error. The conviction of the great proportion of students, especially in Europe, is now so clear and decided with regard to the reality of these voyages and the historical character of the narratives, that few persons will be likely to concern themselves much in the future with regard to objections The way, therefore, is now open for the disthat may be urged. cussion of the claims of the Welsh, as Pre-Columbian voyagers to the shores of North America. One may come to this discussion with the more confidence, for the reason that old time prejudice is dying out, and that every year there are fewer to be found, who ask with the irony of Imogen:

"Prithee, think
There's livers out of Britain?"

In opening this discussion, therefore, we may well quote some observations by Humboldt, who, speaking of the "obscurity which still shrouds the voyage of the Gaelic Chief Madoc," to "a Western Land 1170," observes:

"It is much to be desired that, in our days, when a sound and severe spirit of criticism, devoid of a character of contempt, prevails, the old investigations of Powell and Richard Hakluyt might be resumed in England and Ireland." Continuing, he says, "I do not participate in the rejecting spirit which has, but too often, thrown popular tradition into obscurity, but I am, on the contrary, firmly persuaded that, by a greater diligence and perseverance, many of the historical problems which relate to the maritime expeditions of the early part of the middle ages * * will one day be cleared by the discovery of facts with which we have hitherto been entirely unacquainted."

Let us now proceed to inquire upon what the claim of the Welsh to Pre-Columbian enterprise in America is founded? It will be noticed that we do not say the Pre-Columbian Discovery of America, because, unlike the Northmen, the ancient Welsh did not claim the discovery of "New Lands." The discoveries of the Northmen formed a somewhat great surprise in Iceland and Scandinavia, but they did not suppose for a moment that they had found a new Continent. On the contrary, they believed that the new lands at the West formed an arm of Europe, stretching around the polar region from Norway to Greenland, extending thence indefinitely southward. Still they knew nothing of our land until Biarne, when sailing for Greenland, was blown upon the coast. The Welsh, on the contrary, did not exhibit surprise on reaching a land at the west. In fact, everything would seem to indicate that they knew of that land, probably by contact with the Northmen, and that Madoc sailed expecting to reach some part of the region known as Vinland. Ninety-five years before the voyage of Madoc, Adam of Bremen, after a visit to Denmark, wrote that "a region had been discovered by many in that [Western] Ocean, which was called Winland, because vines grow there spontaneously, making excellent wine; for that fruits, not planted, grow there of their own accord we know, not by false rumors, but by certain testimony of the Danes," which is in accord with the pleasant and fruitful countries reported by Madoc.

The proof upon which the voyages of Madoc to the New World rest, may be divided into two parts, taken respectively from Pre-Columbian and Post-Columbian sources. First, we give the Pre-Columbian statements taken from the Welsh Bards and Chroniclers, though it may be proper to preface our quotations with a few remarks concerning the ancient literature of the Welsh, which carries us back to a period before the Christian era.

With the introduction of Christianity into Wales, where the worship of Christ was established under an Episcopal Church government, long before the Roman missionaries turned their steps towards Great Britain, letters were cultivated and oral poetry and traditions were committed to writing, the Bards assuming a high position in the nation. These bards were not musical vagrants, roving, harp in hand, through the country side, singing songs for what they could pick up. The poet and the harpist formed separate offices, and while some poets were skilled in the use of this instrument, others were not, while many compositions were not adapted to musical ex-Besides, as fully recognized by scholars like Sharon Turner, the verses of the bards had other uses, being more or less of a historic character, and preserving important facts in British history. The poetry of the ancient Welsh did not possess the wonderful characteristics of Icelandic verse, nor did the Welsh cultivate prose in proportion to verse. Indeed, Icelanders were the first of all European people to produce a high style of original vernacular The Welsh literature cannot take rank with the Icelandic, portions of which, as for instance the Eddas and the Himskringla, will hold their high place like the productions of Homer and Herodotus, while literature endures. The Icelandic writings, too, have an advantage in their greater popularity, since the most serious efforts have been made to obscure the glory of Welsh literature, to keep it in the background, and even destroy it, the Bards at one time being considered as politically dangerous. Hence it cost a severe effort to bring out that great collection of Welsh literature, "Myvyrian Archaiology," in three royal octavo volumes, forming an imperishable monument of Welsh industry and genius. Yet, notwithstanding the extent of this collection, taken together with a large quantity of unpublished material, it may truly be said that we now possess only a comparatively small portion of the ancient writings, many of which were destroyed by vandals, while fire and neglect have largely supplemented other destructive agents. The subject of Madoc must have engaged the attention of many poets and chroniclers, for it would be idle to suppose that the few scraps that remain are all that were ever written. Let us, however, turn to these surviving fragments and observe their bearing upon what later writers have laid down with respect to the Western voyages of the Welsh chief.

The first authority to be quoted is Lywarch ab Llwelyn, who flourished at the close of the thirteenth century. Speaking, evidently, of the two brothers, Hywal and Madoc, he says:

"Two princes of strong passions broke off in wrath,
The multitude of the earth did not love them;
One on land in Avron allaying ambition,
And another, a placid one, on the bosom of the vast ocean.
In trouble great and immeasurable,
Prowling after a possession easily guarded,
Estranged from every one for a country."

This translation, from Stephens's "Literature of the Cymry" (II. §2), is accepted as literal, and, like the rest of his translations, it is considered by judges entirely reliable, conveying both the letter and the spirit of the text. The original is found in "Myvyrian Archaiology" (I. 283).

We have here the picture of a sea rover, whose story was well known by the people, who would at once recognize its faithfulness; while the incidental character of the reference renders it all the more valuable. The same Bard makes an additional allusion to Madoc, where, speaking of the latter's brother Iorworth, he says that Iorworth met the Saxons by Llanwynwry's Lake, and describes him as "Nephew of Madoc, whom we more and more Lament that he is gone——."

That "Madoc disappeared from his native country," Stephens, a hostile and able critic, frankly admits as "proved beyond a doubt." This appears, he says, from the poem of "The Hot Iron," which gives an account of the trial of one who was accused of having murdered the sea rover. The accused says:

"Good iron! exonerate me
From the charge of having slain Madoc,
And show that he who slew the fair Prince Shall have no part of heaven." Myr. Archaiol. I. 289.

Madoc son of Gwynedd is not to be confounded with that Madoc who, in 1180, was slain by Thomas, his drunken brother.

A later Bard, Meredydd ab Rhys, who wrote about the year 1440, also shows distinctly that Madoc was a sea rover:

"Madoc am I who through my life By sea will seek my wonted prey." In the 1583 edition of Hakluyt's Voyages there are found some ancient lines which, the author says, "I received of my learned friend, Mr. William Camden." The English version runs:

"Madoc I am the sonne of Owen Gwynedd,
With stature large and comely grace adorned;
No land at home, nor store of wealth me please,
My mind was whole to search the ocean seas."

Camden evidently drew the lines from Rhys. At the period when the latter wrote, the accused man had been exonerated from the murder of Madoc, and it was concluded that the adventurer had lost his life on the sea, which may have been the case, as we do not know the result of his last western voyage. The poet, Cynddelu, who lived about the time of Llywelen, wrote:

> "And is not Madoc by the whelming wave Slain? How I sorrow for the helpful friend!— Even in battle he was free from hate, Yet not in vain grasped he the warrior's spear."

But now, whither did Madoc sail, and in what land beyond the sea did he make the scene of enterprise? In partial reply we may quote the Pre-Columbian Genealogies compiled by Ievan Brecva, which say that "Madoc and Riryd found land far in the west and settled there." William Owen, in the "Cambrian Biography" (p. 233), says that the expedition is recorded in a book of pedigrees by Brecva, written about the year 1466. This is supported by Guttyn Owain, a distinguished poet and genealogist who wrote between 1460 and 1490.

But we must quote here from the ancient Triad of the "Three Disappearances," found in "Cambro-Briton" (Vol. I. 1820, p. 123), which makes the third remarkable Disappearance, that of "Madawg, son of Owain Gwynedd, who accompanied by three hundred men, went to sea in ten ships, and it is not known to what place they went."

We should not hesitate to consider such testimonies, because they are associated with some things that are marvellous. Discrimination must be used. The essential fact given in the Triad is, that Madoc went to sea with ten ships. The writer did not know the exact destination of the fleet. The point he makes is, that the disappearance of Madoc and his fleet was a remarkable occurrence. This is all that he wanted to convey. He was not writing to convince anyone that an enterprise was undertaken. He had no interest in showing that the Welsh knew of a great land in the West. The fact was of no account at that period. He was simply writing a Triad. Madoc's well-known case formed one side of the triangle. We should simply try to put ourselves back in the age when the Triad was written, and feel its force as a testimony to the voyage of Madoc upon the Atlantic.

These testimonies are of more consequence than, possibly, they may appear at the outset. Carefully considered, it will be evident that they cover six important points:

- 1. That there was a well-known historic person named Madoc, the son of Gwynedd, Prince of Wales.
- 2. That he was a sailor, whose natural disposition drew him to adventures on the sea.
 - That this Madoc made westward voyages on the Atlantic.
- That after the first voyage, upon which he embarked more or less secretly, he was supposed to have been murdered, while, on trial, the accused man was cleared.
- That he reappeared in Wales, raised a company of three hundred men and women, embarking the company in ten ships, with the intention of returning to the site of his colony.
- 6. That he sailed westward for the purpose of founding a colony and never returned.

These are statements that antedate the voyage of Columbus, and come down to us from a period when discoveries on the Atlantic were viewed with general indifference by the Welsh, who found such matters of interest only in the incidental manner pointed out, while no glory was ever claimed in connection with Madoc's enterprise, the genealogist and poet being concerned only in the melancholy result. This is testimony of a kind that must inevitably have force with minds accustomed to weigh historic evidence.

We now turn to the Post-Columbian proof. First of all we find Powell adding to our facts, and showing the course taken by Madoc on his first voyage, for he "left the coast of Ireland so far north that he came to a land unknown."* Powell gives as his authority (and his statements are accepted by Hakluyt) the Herald Bard, Guttyn Owain, who flourished, as we have seen, before Columbus. statement attributed to Owain was first published in Post-Columbian times, but there is no sufficient reason for doubting that it was contained in some one of the many versions of his works, and was taken thence by Powell, as the latter declares.

Portions of the narrative given in the notet below are plainly unhistorical. The intelligent reader will discover the chaff. It should already discovered but not explored.

[•] The use of this work does not interfere with the belief that the Welsh knew of the voyages of the Northmen. Seventeenth century voyagers often spoke in this way of lands already discovered but not explored.

† Powell's narrative states, as one result of dissension in Wales, during the twelfth century, that Madoc, son of Owen Gwyneth, "left the land in contention betwixt his brethren and prepared certaine ships, with men and munition, and sought adventure by seas, sailing West, and leaving the coast of Ireland so farre North that he came to a land unknowen, where he saw many strange things." "This Land," Powell illogically says, "must needs be some part of that countrey of which the Spaniards affirme themselves to be the first finders since Hanna's time. For by reason and order of Cosmographie, this land to which Madoc came, must needs be some parts of Nova Hispania, or Florida. Whereupon it is manifest that that countrey was long before by Britaine discovered, afore either Columbus or Americus Vesputius led any Spaniards thither."

"Of the Voyage and returne of this Madoc," Powell says, "there may be fables fained as the common people do use in distance of place and length of time rather to augment than to diminish, but sure it is that he was there. And after he had returned home, and declared the pleasant and fruitfal countreys that he had seen without inhabitants, and upon the contrary part, for what barren and wilde ground his brethren and nephews did murther be observed, however, that this particular narrative has been made the subject of numerous sketches, superficial articles, by writers incapable of perceiving what was required of a critic, and who, after despatching the Mexican allusions, have fondly regarded the claims of the Welsh as laid to rest. It will be necessary, however, to separate what is mere conjecture from what is supported by solid testimony, and especially that testimony which is drawn from The study of Mexican antiquities long ago perancient writings. suaded the historical world that the use of the Cross had no necessary connection with Christianity. The forced interpretation of the facts by Powell grew out of the desire to antedate the Spanish claim to the New World. The struggle between England and Spain was coming on apace. The Armada was already foreshadowed, and men were ready for any pretext to urge against Spain. Powell, however, made a poor use of the facts, and would have done the Welsh a service if he had abstained from speculation, since, by false deductions, he prejudiced a large number of writers against the whole subject.

We have now to turn to another Post-Columbian writer. 1634, Sir Thomas Herbert published, "A Relation of Some yeares Travaile," in which (p. 217) he gives additional particulars relating to the voyage of Madoc, saying that Madoc "put to sea from Abergwilley," that "after some weeks sailing due west he descried land, probably New Foundland; but whatever it was, it overjoyed He continues, "Madoc then ranged the coast fixed on a spot to form his intended settlement. After he had stayed there awhile to recruit the health of his men, he fortified his settlement and left 120 there to protect it." Returning to Wales, he organized a second expedition and went back with his ten ships, and found "few of those whom he had left remaining," but, with the help of his brothers Eneon and Edwal, put things once more in good order, and remained there some time, expecting the arrival of more of their countrymen but they never came, and caused grievous disappointment," as the wars in Wales prevented further help. For authorities he refers to "Cynwric ab Grono, Meredydd ab Rhys, Guttain Owain, Lloyd, Howell, Prys [Rhys?], Hackluit, Broughton, Purchas, Davy and others."

one another, he prepared a number of shippes, and got with him such men and women as were desirous to live in quietness, and taking leave of his friends tooke his journey thitherward again. Therefore it is to be presupposed that he and his people inhabited part of those countreys, for so it appeareth by Francis Lopez de Gomara, that in Acwzanid and in other places the people honored the crosses. Whereby it may be gathered that Christians had been there before the coming of the Spanlards. But because these people were not many they followed the manners of the Land they came vnto, and used the language they found there. This Madoc, arriving in that western countrey, vnto which he came in the yeare 1170, left most of his people there, and returning back for more of his own nation, acquaintance and friends to inhabit that fayre and large countrey, went thither again with ten sades, as I find noted by Gutten Owen. I am of opinion," adds the writer, with title judgment, "that the land whereunto he came was near some port of Mexico. The causes which make me to think so be these. 1. The common report of the inhabitants of that countrey, which affirm that theyr rulers descended from a strange nation that came thither from a farre countrey, which theory is confessed by Montezuma, King of that countrey, in an oration made for quieting his people, at his submission to the King of Castile, Hernano Cortes being then present. 2. The British words and names of places used in that country, etc."

On this it may be observed, first, that, in the time of Herbert, the interest in the subject of America had increased, and that, while this would tend to the amplification of facts, and the exercise of imagination, it would, at the same time, lead to inquiry among the Welsh for additional information. Herbert, indeed, produces an additional name, in the Pre-Columbian Bard, Cynwric ab Grono. Why, therefore, should not Sir Thomas be credited when he tells us that he found new matter respecting the voyage? It is a fact, that he had access to the finest and by far the most valuable collection of ancient Welsh manuscripts ever brought together, that of Rhaglan Castle, collected by his relation, the distinguished Earl of Pembroke. Why are not these ancient testimonies produced? In reply, it may be said that Rhaglan Castle, one of the first of British Castles, was destroyed during the Cromwellian Wars.

No one has yet produced any real reason for questioning the veracity of Sir Thomas Herbert, and the only course open to the average mind among the promiscuous eulogists of Columbus, who do not understand the real merits of the Genoese and are bitter against all Pre-Columbian adventurers on the high seas, is to employ the common, if not convincing argument, and to declare, in the terms of the unhistorical class to which they belong, that Sir Thomas Herbert falsified.

As it remains, however, no one has yet shown a shadow of a reason for questioning Herbert's veracity, though we may properly criticize the use he made of his material; for certainly Madoc sailed from Wales. That fact is indisputable, and he must have sailed That the name of the port lingered in tradition, from some port. being preserved in some one of the many Rhaglan manuscripts, is very likely, and it is not at all unlikely that Sir Thomas should discover that the name of the port was Abergwilley. At least he says so, and it is the business of the critic, in the absence of Sir Thomas himself, to prove that it is false, which cannot be done simply by That the Welsh adventurer should have built a declaring it false. fort in the land to which he sailed is not very remarkable. were doubtless more things in the Rhaglan archives than are just now dreampt of in our histories, and doubtless the fuller story of Madoc's voyage was preserved there in chronicles, which, together with many precious historical treasures, perished by fire. Indeed the wholesale destruction of Welsh manuscript in many parts of Great Britain is simply deplorable. At one time for instance nearly a hundred copies of the Chronicle of Caradoc existed in manuscript, but now nearly all have disappeared. This is not very surprising, however, when we consider the fact that no copy of the earliest editions of the New England Primer is known, though the book was one scattered abroad as thickly as the leaves in Vallambrosa. Under the circumstances, considering the indifference of the Welsh towards the early voyage, how poor would be the chance for the perservation of the story of Madoc. The possibility, nevertheless, is, that the class of partisan writers who are unable to make the noble Columbus appear as great as they wish, will continue to throw dirt at Sir Thomas Herbert, who was an upright man and a diligent student of the Welsh language and literture.

It is true that the voyage is not mentioned by Giraldus Cambrensis, who lived at the period of Madoc, but, like most writers of his class, he cared nothing about such subjects. It is also true, that the voyage is not mentioned in any copy of Guttyn Owain now accessible; but it is also a fact, that no two copies of these old narratives were alike, being furnished by the author at different periods, and for different persons and places, a book written out in old age being entirely different from the history of the same subject in early years. Whether Guttyn mentioned Madoc in one of his earlier or one of his later compositions, it is impossible to say, but the variety in the manuscripts is nevertheless pointed out and dwelt upon in "Myvyrian Archaiology," though not with the slightest reference to the voyage of Madoc. Still the remarks of the learned editor apply, and throw light upon the fact, that the present version of Guttyn Owain is defective as respects Madoc. An illustration of these remarks will be had by comparing the last edition of Bancroft's "History" with that of half a century ago. Various voyages have disappeared, and new adventures appear in the place of the old; and when the early editions have actually been worn out, or have disappeared, as may actually prove to be the case and at no distant period, some one may take up a recent edition, and declare that Bancroft never wrote a word about the Northmen.

Here, for the present, at least, we rest the case, presenting the subject as one worthy of study and consideration, and one, moreover, that may richly reward the explorer of the unpublished ancient Welsh manuscripts that may still lie neglected in obscure niches among the mountains and in the seaport towns of beautiful Wales.

The subject, however, should not be left before we emphasize an important fact, namely, that, for the sake of the argument, the Post-Columbian authorities could be left out, since even then there would be solid ground for the probability of Madoc's voyage. This, however, would be unfair, alike to history and to Lloyd and Powell, as well as to Sir Thomas Herbert. These men were scholars of eminence and of high character. Their integrity has been impeached simply with sneers. Fair minded men, therefore, in the present stage of the discussion, must give these writers due credit, and Herbert especially must be believed, when he says that he found in the old Chronicles, which were open to him at Rhaglan Castle, the fact that Madoc sailed west from Abergwilly and built a fort in the land beyond the sea, where he planted a colony. About all that can be said in reply, is that "Columbus discovered America," which is a statement that has had its day.

LETTER OF SAMUEL ADAMS TO THE TOWN OF BOSTON, MARCH 13, 1769,

ON HIS ACTION AS TAX COLLECTOR.

Communicated by John S. H. Foge, M.D., of South Boston.

I SEND for the REGISTER a copy of a letter of Samuel Adams in regard to the deficiency in his Tax returns. It seems to me that it entirely disposes of the assertion, so often made, that he was a defaulter.

To the Freeholders & other Inhabitants of the Town of Boston in Town Meeting assembled March 13, 1769.

The Petition of Samuel Adams Sheweth-

That your Petitioner was annually chosen by the Town a Collector of Taxes, from the year 1756 to the year 1764 inclusive-That notwithstanding all his Care & Pains to collect the same, a Number of Persons charged with their respective Taxes, in Each of said years, were thro' Poverty & Misfortune unable to make Payment to him-That particularly in the year 1760, a terrible Fire happened in the Town, which is well remembered, & raged with great Desolation in his Ward; which rendered it exceeding difficult for the suffering Persons, many of whom were then indebted to him for former Taxes, to discharge the same. This & other Misfortunes of the like Importance were great Discouragements to your Petitioner; inasmuch as the Demands of the several Treasurers, were necessarily more pressing upon him, than were the Abilities of those upon whom alone he could depend to enable him to answer the same; By which means he was often put to considerable Expense, and was obliged finally, contrary to his Judgement in ordinary Cases, to make use of the first Moneys he could collect in a new year, to make good the Deficiencys of the year preceding.

Your Petitioner would represent to the Town: That the Amount of the Sums committed to him to collect in the Aforesaid years, was upwards of fifty-one Thousand Pounds Lawfull Money; for the collecting the chief parts of which the stipulated Premium has been three & three quarters p cent. only, or Nine pence upon the Pound, which is three pence less than had been for some time before allowed by the Town; That having satisfyed the Demands of the several Treasurers, for all the said Years except the last viz: 1764, the Treasurer of the Province issued Execution against him for the sum of £2009. 8. 8, due to the Province for said year. And afterwards, the Town Treasurer, by Order of the Town put his Bond in suit, & recovered Judgement for the Sum due; But thro' the Indulgence of the Town, Execution was stayed.

See in this connection "Life and Public Services of Samuel Adams," by his great-grandson, William V. Wells, Boston, 1865, Vol. I. pp. 35-38.

Furthermore your Petitioner would represent: That agreeable to the Expectation of the Town, he has lodged with the Selectmen, a List of his outstanding Debts; which allowing for unavoidable Mistakes which may happen on so large a Sum, in so great a Number of hands, & of so long standing, is to the best of his Knowledge, & as he verily thinks a true List of Debts.

And your Petitioner would further acquaint the Town, that he has also exhibited a State of his Account, by which it appears that the Sum of £1106. 11. together with the said List of Debts will fully compleat the Sums in which he still remains indebted to the several Treasurers.

Now your Petitioner, having long laboured under these heavy Burdens, to which he has often been almost ready to yield, begs leave to lay his Petition before the Town; the Prayer whereof being granted, will ever be acknowledged by him as an Instance of singular Indulgence; Namely—That the Town would order him a final Discharge upon Condition of his paying the aforesaid sum of £1106. 11. into the Province Treasury; and would also make Choice of some suitable Person to receive said List, upon the Condition aforesaid, & collect the outstanding Taxes therein mentioned.

With his best wishes for the Town, your Petitioner subscribes, SAM¹ ADAMS.

LETTERS OF COL. THOMAS WESTBROOK AND OTHERS,

RELATIVE TO INDIAN AFFAIRS IN MAINE.

May it Please y' Honour, Portsm^o Decem^r 16th 1723. M' Secretary Willard wrote me, yo 27th of the last Month, that it was y' Hon" pleasure forthwith to know w' men are Entitled to be released or exchanged, are desirous of it, and who (that are so Entitled) are willing to Continue in the service. I have made it my buisness since the receipt of his Letter, weh came not to my hands till the 10th Inst, to Acquaint myself with what your Hon' would be Inform'd of, but not knowing certainly what entitules a man to a release (tho' I suppose it to be a two yeares Continuance in the service) I have therefore herewith Inclos'd to your hon' lists of all the persons (save some few which I have sent to the Officers for but are not yet come to my hand), who have been in his Majesties service two years & upward; the lists mentions yo Captains names to whom they belong, the Towns from whence they came, & likewise shew wether the men were Imprest, hired, or Voluntiers, and the time of their entrance into the Service, who are willing to Continue in it, which are, I think, but three or four, & all the rest are desirous of a dismission; what remaines I shall send yt Hon' as soon as possible. Cpt Harmon return'd from his Cruises a Wensday last. I have not yet received his Journal. I shall transmitt it to yt honour as soon as I do, weh will be next week. He informs me, that while he was at Mount desart, he was advis'd by Cpt Elliot, who was in a Sloop from Canso, of a party of Indians on an Island called Titmanan (I think), weh is but a little to the Eastward of Mount Desert, but out of yelimits of his Instructions, as he Conceiv'd, wherefore he proceeded not after them. I came hither a Saturday night last, from York, in Ord to send ythonour this Dispatch, and am now hasteing to Berwick with all possible Expedition.

I am Hon'ble Sir,

Tho^{*} Westbrook.

P. S. If I receive no further Instructions, I shall Improve Cp^t Harmon on Amus Coggin river & East side of Saco, after his men are a little refresht; but if we Cou'd be left at large I am humbly of Opinion that Eastward is the only place to Catch Indians.

Mass. Archives, 51: 386.

T. W.

Sir,

I hope this will find your Hon' safe arrived at New London.

The General Court not rising till Fryday Night last, The Hurry of Business that succeeds it will not allow me to give you so large & full an Accot of the Occasions of the War with the Indians as may be necessary. However, I thought I would not let this Post slip without Saying something on that Head according to your Hon" Expectation.

At the Treaty of Portsmouth, in the Year 1713, as well as in preceeding Treaties, The Indians agreed that the English should settle undisturb'd on any of the Lands where former Settlements had been made, or for which they had good Deeds from the Indians: After which, the English settling on Kennebeck River & Merry Meeting Bay in such Places from which they had been driven off by the War, & for which Lands the Proprietors had good & sufficient Indian Deeds (weh they laid before the Indians as well as the English Governmt) The Indians took Umbrage at these Settlements, pretending their Ancestors had no Right to alienate those Lands; And, accordingly, gave frequent Disturbances to the English, Threatening to drive them off from Kennebeck River & Killing their Creatures & taking Provisions & other Things out of their Houses. At first these Insults were confined to that River, The Indians pretending that they were very well Satisfied with the more Western Settlem's; But at Length, they proceeded to deny the English Right to any Lands to the Eastward of Wells, threatening the People & Killing the Creatures & Pulling down their Fences, even up to Wells. In the year 1719, Coll. Tailer, Coll. Stoddard & Coll. Dudley were sent down by the Gen¹¹ Court to Falmouth, to expostulate with the Indians on these Matters, Who laid the Fault upon their rash & headstrong young Men, but promised to restrain them for the Future. But soon after, they repeated these Injuries with Circumstances of greater Insolence & Barbarity, so that many Families were forced to remove, to their unspeakable Loss & Damage. In Nov. 1720, the Gen11 Court Impowered & Directed Coll. Walton & Majr Moodey, & other Officers in Pay, to call the Indians to an Acct, for these Violations of their Treaties, Who accordingly summon'd in most of the Chiefs, Who excused themselves by Alledging that the Priests had excited their rash young Men to these Actions, which they own'd to be contrary to their Duty, And promised to behave more peaceably for the Future, And gave Hostages for their good Behaviour & for the Paym' of 200 Skins toward Reparation of the Damages they had done the English. But the next Year, they grew more insolent then ever, Writing insulting Letters to the Governm' & Killing great Numbers of Cattle, which they left rotting upon the Ground, & Abusing the Persons of many of the People, Wch Injuries were done to the Inhabitants of Arundel, Biddeford, Scarboro', Falmo & North Yarmo, as well as of the Towns on Kennebeck River, So that a Multitude of those People were driven off from their Habitations by these Violences; Upon this An Act pass'd prohibiting all Manner of Commerce with them upon great Penalties.

In June 1722, The Indians came down in a great Body upon the Settlem¹⁶ in Kennebeck River & burnt twenty or thirty Houses at Brunswick, & a great Many others, & some Mills upon the River, took five Men Prisoners whom they carried to Canada, & attack'd his Majesties Fort at Brunswick, the Kings Colours flying for a whole Day, firing a great Number of Shot at it: All this happen'd before the least Act of Hostility pass'd on our side, And of the sev¹¹ Matters herein alledged We have a great Number of Testimonies (most of them sworn before some Magistrates), W^{ch} will give a full Satisfaction of the Facts committed by the Indians. If any thing further be necessary I shall be very ready to furnish you with them. I have enclosed a Copy of the Declaration of War & the Treaty with the Western Tribes of Indians.

Dec. 30, 1723. Sir,

[The above is in the hand writing of Secretary Willard.] Mass. Arch. 72: 147, 148.

Sir,

I have herewith enclosed a Scheme for the Disposition of the Soldiers that are to be continued in Garrison for the Security of the Towns after the Detachments are march'd. May it Please Your Hon'. Yorke, Jan'y 28th 1723-4.

Haveing already acquainted your Honr with the recept of some of the new rais'd men, I have Sent this to Acqt your Honour that one of them (Vizt Elisha Dow, who I receiv'd from Collo Noyce and Posted under Leiut Oliver at Berwick), deserted the 26th Inst; as soon as I heard of it, I dispacht the bearer with a Warrant to have him Secur'd, and to wait on your Hon' with this, after he has made diligent Search. I have receiv'd no more men Since my last.

I am yr Honra Dutiful humble Servt Mass. Archives, 51: 387. THOS WESTBROOK.

Let there be three Men at Mr. Dennys Garrison, so many, at Least seems to be necessary; and Let them be good Men. Whensoever you hear anything of importance to the service you will Convey it to me, especially now the forces are abroad.

I am your Humbl Servant

Boston feb. 25th 1723. Capt. Penhallow.

Sir.

I have Considered your Motion respecting Arrowsick, and Can by no means Consent that either of the Garrisons be slighted, which will be dishonourable to the Government. You must Command the Inhabitants into Garrison, and allow each Fort a Sufficient Defence, And when Coll. Westbrook Can Spair the Men, he will leave some recruites with you, as I have Ordered him: As to the Fort at Small point, I am Sensible it is of Importance, And Should have gladly Continued a Garrison there, If any VOL. XLV.

Provision had bin made to Support it. However I shall have this Matter Still in my thoughts.

Endorsed—Letter to Capt Penhallow.

from Gov. Dummer.]

Sir,

These are to direct you to prepare four several Parties of Men to march in quest of the Indians. The main Body to proceed under yr particular Command, to Norridgewock, about the 20th of April next. At the same time or a few Days before, a Party to scout upon Amerescoggin River, an other on Saco River & a fourth Party range the Sea Coast to the Eastwd of Sagadahock, in Order to surprise the Indians at their Fishing & Fowling. Let the several Parties carry a Months Provision & not return (but upon some extraordinary Exigence), till it be spent. You must give very strict Orders that the Men be silent in their Marches & patient & vigilant in their waiting for the Enemy, that if it be possible they make a Discovery of themselves by their Fires, but to be sure not by Shooting or other Noises. I am inform'd the Indians are removed to a place on Kennebeck River about 100 Miles from Norridgewock, Of which Place I have enclosed the Description given me, that you may visit that Place, if it be practicable, unless you can meet with the Enemy nearer. You must be sure to take L' Bane with you as your Pilot, who knows all that Countrey. If there be any Way, without Hazzarding a Discovery, to get about the Enemy & come down upon them, p'haps it may bee the best way. Either you or the Party on Amerescoggin* River must visit Medembeseck as you shall finde it proper and practicable. Lett the best of the Men bee drawne out for this Service, But be sure not to lessen the Number of Soldiers posted for the Defence of York, Berwick & Wells, tho' you may exchange them in order to your having the best Men for these Marches: The Proportioning the Numbers of the sevil Parties & the Command of them & other Things, not particularly mention'd, I leave entirely to your Discretion, And lest you sha want effective Men for this Service, I do hereby further Direct you, in that Case, to enlist thirty good able Voluntiers in the County of York, And in Order to encourage them, I engage that y' shall not be obliged to continue in the Service after these Marches are over, but be immediately dismiss'd, & you may send them upon such a Rout of the four above mention'd places as you shall find their Inclinations lead them, & I send you a blauke Commissⁿ for an officer that you shall approve, & that will be most likely to engage the Voluntiers for this Service. You must be very secret in this whole Affair & not commit the Knowledge of it to any Persons living, sooner, nor any further than is absolutely necessary, & It will be best to make some Feints, in Order to prevent any Suspicion of the true Design. Let every Thing be getting ready against the Time, that so the Service may not suffer by a Delay, & if you Stand in need of anything from hence Lett me know forthwith. Lett that Party to bee to the Eastward of Sagadehock bee Compleated by the supernumerarys now abot Georges Fort. This Comes to you by Leiut Kenedy, to whome I have given a Commissⁿ to bee Leift to Moulton, & I now inclose you a Commissⁿ for Moulton to Command that Compa that was Barkers, & I doubt not but they will both of them in their Stations render their Country good Service. I had an Inclination now to have promoted Jo. Bean, but was loath at this Juncture to Loose the Service of soe good an officer as I take Kenedy to bee from your Commendation & others. I have also given a Capts Commiss to [Bourne to Succeed Moulton, the Command of those Men at Yorke.

Mass. Arch. 51: 390.

May it please your Hon' Falmouth, March 29, 1724. My last Inform'd of my Arrival here and my Makeing the best of my way to visit all the Frontiers, but I have been stopt by a long and Tedious storme, notwithstanding, I wrote Orders to all the Officers on the 24th Inst about eleven a Clock, and about three a Clock in The Afternoon, wee heard an Alarm from the Westward, but could not hear the Occasion of it till the 27th Currant, whereof I Enclose a Coppy. They have taken a great deal of pains to get a Docter for the wounded man. They went to Portsmouth and brought one as far as York, and there he was taken sick, so they return'd and went as far as Greenland, but could get none from thence; they came to Falmouth for Docter Negus, who was taken sick the 27th Inst, and died the 29th, between Eight & nine a Clock in the Morning. P. S. April 5th Since the above was written I am got to Cape Porpoise. I believe I can Enlist the number of Thirty men & more, generally young men, and such as must leave the County if not Enlisted; some of them may be desirous of a dismission in a Short time, others may be willing to stay longer, so that what I Enlist shall be Conditionally, either to be dismist in a Short time, or to stay longer as your Hon shall see cause and their Inclinations shall lead them as to the time. The wounded man died the 1st Inst. I am afraid for want of a Docter. Serj Brown was oblig'd to press a Sloop to Carry him to Portsmo.

THE BLAKE FAMILY IN ENGLAND.

By FRANCIS E. BLAKE, Esq., of Boston.

In a "Genealogical History of William Blake of Dorchester," published in 1857, appears the statement that the emigrant to New England was the son of Giles Blake of Little Baddow, Essex, and the record of several generations of the family is given. The substance of this record is trustworthy as being a copy from "Morant's History of Essex," but the statement that the Dorchester settler was of this family was unwarranted by any evidence. Subsequently the late H. G. Somerby, Esq., by request of Stanton Blake, Esq., made extended researches in England to determine the origin of the American family. He finally located it at Over Stowey, Somerset, and the results of his investigations were published in 1881, by W. H. Whitmore, Esq., in "A Record of the Blakes of Somersetshire."

The evidences upon which Mr. Somerby based his conclusions were, first, the record of a baptism in 1594, at Over Stowey, of a William Blake (son of Robert and grandson of John), the date corresponding to the age of the emigrant at death; and second, the fact that a sister of this William, in her will of date 1647, mentioned a "brother in New England," no name however being given. While this evidence was not all that could be desired, it was generally accepted as correct, and the pedigree has been copied in several other genealogical publications.

In 1881, Rev. Charles M. Blake, U. S. A., while visiting in England, was shown by William Blake, Esq., of South Petherton, a genealogical chart of the "Blakes of Somersetshire," prepared by William Arthur Jones, Esq., A.M.

An examination of this chart led Mr. Blake to visit Pitminster, four miles from Taunton, where he found upon the parish registers sufficient evidence to convince him that this was the early home of his ancestor William Blake, but he was unable at that time to give the matter further attention.

Recently, investigations have been made by the writer, through correspondence with the vicar of the parish, and with Edward J. Blake, Esq., of Crewkerne. The latter himself examined the registers of Pitminster, and Over Stowey, and he has had a careful examination made of wills and other original sources of information, for the purpose of determining his own line of descent and verifying the chart referred to. The result of these researches, so far as relates to the American family, has been very courteously copied for the writer and forms the basis of this article.

Mr. Somerby's record of the baptism of a William at Over Stowey, June 5, 1594, was found to be correct, but unfortunately he overlooked this subsequent entry:

"1617, William Blake the sonne of Robert Blake was buried the ——of Aprill."

As this record effectually disposes of this William, we are forced to look elsewhere for the emigrant.

On page 14 of Mr. Somerby's notes the statement is made that William the son of John' and brother of Robert above named died at Bishops Lydiard, leaving a widow Joan, but no children.

A close examination of the records discloses the following facts. By the will of John, his son William received lands at Bishops Lydiard, at Plainfield in Over Stowey, and at Padnoller in the parish of Spaxton. Now in the will of William of Bishops Lydiard, referred to by Mr. Somerby, date 13th June, 1618, and proved in September following by Joan his widow, he is described as a yeoman, and bequeaths three acres at Hillfarence which he bought, and his land at Risun, with sundry small gifts to friends. He mentions "Philipp Sully, my boye," but no children.

It will be noticed that this William held an entirely different social position from the Blakes of Over Stowey, and in the disposition of his property made no mention of the lands which John Blake gave to his son William.

Furthermore, we have an abstract of a will of a William Blake of Riston, proved at Taunton, May, 1572, in which is a bequest to "my sonne Willyam." Riston is near Taunton, and not more than seven or eight miles from Bishops Lydiard and is undoubtedly the same place described as Risun in the will of 1618.

From these facts it is quite reasonable to think that the William who died in 1618 at Bishops Lydiard without children was the son of William of Riston, but certainly not the son of John's of Over Stowey.

The records of Over Stowey furnish no evidence whatever in regard to John's son, but the Taunton Manor Rolls show that a William Blake bought property at Pitminster, in 1586. The parish registers of Pitminster, which begin in the year 1544, are in a very good state of preservation, but there is not a single Blake entry (with the exception of a Mary Blake, daughter of Richard, who was buried in 1574) until the year 1588, when Grace a daughter of William was baptized. It is supposed that this William was the son of John, that he went to Pitminster to reside about the time of the purchase of the estate there in 1586, and there had the children named below. This theory was adopted by Mr. Jones in preparing his chart, and also by Mr. Blake whose investigations have been made independently of all previous labor in this direction, and it is hoped that this may soon be verified by record evidence.

The following records relating to this branch of the family appear

Anno Domio.

1588. Grace Blake, daughter of Willm Blake was baptized the 9th day of February.

1592. Eme Blake, daughter of William Blake was baptized the third day of December.

1594. William Blake, son of William Blake was baptized the 10th day of July.
 1597. John Blake son of William Blake was baptized the fifteenth day of Inne

1600. Ane Blaak, daughter of William Blaak was baptized the sixteenth day of October.

1603. Richard Blaak, son of William Blaak was baptized the seventeenth day of Aprill.

- 1617. William Blake was married to Agnis Bond widow the 27th day of September.
- 1618. John Blake, sonne of William Blake, and Ann Blake daughter of William Blake were baptised the day of August.

1624. James Blake sonne of William Blake was baptised 27th April.

With this record from Pitminster before us, there cannot be a shadow of doubt that we have here the family of William of Dorchester. We know that he had a wife Agnes, and children John, Ann, William and James, and to make the case still stronger, the age of the father at death, and also of three of the children, Ann, William and James, corresponds with the date of the baptism at Pitminster.

No record has been found of the baptism of Edward, another son of William and Agnes, but it is supposed that he was born in England, as there is no evidence of the father being in this country previous to the year 1636, the statement that he came in the "Mary and John" in 1630 being without foundation.

Following the notes of Mr. Somerby, with the substitution of William¹⁰ for Robert,¹⁰ the line of descent will stand as follows: Robert,¹ Henry,² William,³ Henry,⁴ Robert,⁵ William,⁶ William,¹⁰ Humphrey⁸ (great-grandfather of the Admiral), John,⁹ William,¹⁰ William¹¹ of Dorchester.

Or to state the matter more simply, the emigrant is now traced as being the grandson of John Blake of Over Stowey, through his son William, instead of being so deduced through his son Robert. But all the pedigree anterior to the grandfather John is not affected by this correction.

HUGH MAXWELL,

PATRIOT AND SOLDIER OF THE REVOLUTION.

By Edward P. Guild, Esq., of Reading, Mass.

Among those who left the shores of the Old World for the New, in the first half of the eighteenth century, was Hugh Maxwell of Minterburn, Tyrone County, Ireland. With his wife and three children, the youngest only six weeks old, he sailed for America in the year 1733, and settled in the town of Bedford, Massachusetts. The infant son, also named Hugh, born April 27, 1733, was destined to become one of this country's most sturdy patriots and defenders.

Like Washington, he became early in life a surveyor, but at his country's call for soldiers, discarded the compass and chain for the musket and the sword. He enlisted at the breaking out of the French and Indian war in 1754, and served for five years. At its close he married Miss Bridget Munroe of Lexington, and purchased a farm in Charlemont, Hampshire, now Franklin, County. He was a man who closely watched and studied public affairs, and was the only subscriber to a Boston newspaper in his town. He was eminently patriotic, had a wide influence with his fellow settlers, and Samuel Adams himself was no firmer a foe to the encroachments of British rule than was Hugh Maxwell. When the first Provincial Congress was convened at Salem in 1774, Maxwell was a member, and he took an active part in the proceedings. Provision was then made for organizing and equipping companies of minute men, and upon his return home he assisted in forming such a company of which he was made lieutenant. Then, with knapsacks, cartridges and guns ready to seize at a minute's notice, they waited the expected summons from the vicinity of Boston. It came from Lexington on the memorable 19th of April. Maxwell marched with his company at once, and joined Prescott's regiment at Cambridge. He had entered the army leaving at home his wife with an infant only one day old, and his oldest child, a daughter, only eleven. Their house was small; water had to be brought twenty rods, grain must be carried five miles to mill, and they had no money. But to hardship and deprivation was to be added the anxiety which came with the news that the husband and father had been dangerously wounded. This was at the battle of Bunker Hill. During the action, Lieut. Maxwell was shot through his right shoulder. He was without his coat at the time, but though his arm dropped and hung useless at his side, he walked through the flying bullets to the spot where he had laid his coat, and picking it up marched off the hill with the retreating army. His wound was severe, and his life was for days in great danger; but he recovered, although never after able to do the work of a farmer. Nine pieces of bone were extracted from his shoulder, some of them an inch long. But he had no thought other than to serve his country. In September he was able to reach home only to remain a few weeks, and then again join the army. His family was again left to endure great hardships. The barn was built seventy rods from the house with the intention of building a new house near to it; this distance must be travelled twice a day, often through snows so deep that Mrs. Maxwell or her oldest daughter must go on hands and knees over the drifts; their wood was in large logs, green and covered with snow, and the fire must never be suffered to go out or the family would freeze; and grain had to be procured at a distance of seven or eight miles.

On his return to the army, Lieut. Maxwell received a captain's commission, and with his company was stationed at Sewall's Point. In one of his letters he says:

"We have lately had a heavy cannonade from the enemy; they gave us more than eleven hundred cannon shot one night; over nine hundred were picked up the next day, and in all that night's firing they did not hit but four men, and these went to the top of the hill and made a fire in open sight of the enemy, and were all killed by one shot."

In March, 1776, the British evacuated Boston, and Washington who had been quartered all winter in Cambridge, entered Boston amid the enthusiasm of the inhabitants. Then anticipating that the enemy would make an effort to seize New York, the Commander-in-Chief proceeded with his army to that city and prepared for its defence. Capt. Maxwell was stationed on Governor's Island. In August the British landed at Gravesend, Long Island, and in a battle on the 27th defeated the Americans. After the troops had been carried across the East River they were obliged to again retreat from New York, and Maxwell narrowly escaped being taken a prisoner, as, on account of illness his strength would not allow him to keep with the retreating army; but he was saved by the faithfulness of his servant who carried him on his back whenever he sank from exhaustion, and at last got him to a place of safety. Maxwell fought bravely at Princeton and Trenton, and in 1777 went with the brigade to which he belonged to join General Gates in the campaign against Burgoyne in the north. He was at Monmouth, and he was one of those who survived the sufferings of that winter at Valley Forge.

In 1779 he was promoted to the rank of major and was under the command of General Heath on the Hudson. Here he was assigned to duties demanding the greatest vigilance and prudence, courage and integrity, and for the faithful discharge of these duties he gained not only the friendship but the highest esteem of General Heath. In a letter to him, twenty years later, Heath says:

"I well know your long and faithful services in the army, and how often I have slept without apprehension of being surprised, because you guarded the ont-post, and I knew that the enemy would not be allowed to evade your vigilance."

In January, 1781, an attack was made by Maxwell's regiment on a detachment of British under Colonel Delancey at Morrisania. An officer was afterwards sent from the British lines with a flag of truce. Meeting Major Maxwell and speaking of the recent attack, the Briton admitted that he had fled in his night-gown. "Ah," said Maxwell, "is that British discipline? An officer on the lines undress and go to bed!" The officer replied, "We will take you so, some time or other." Said Maxwell, "If you ever take me on the lines in the night, you shall find me dressed throughout, with coats and spurs on, my pistols loaded at my pillow, and my horse saddled at the door."

At another time Major Maxwell was reconnoitering with his detachment when he was surprised by the close approach of the enemy in large numbers. There was no way of retreat, to fight was out of the question, and he had recourse to stratagem. Marching to the top of a hill, he ordered his men to stack their arms, then some of them to lie on the ground at their ease, others to engage in wrestling, pitching quoits and other sports in a careless and indifferent manner. The enemy came to the front of the hill and halted, the officers held a consultation, and then faced about and marched off! It was afterwards definitely learned that the British officers had considered the seeming inattention of Major Maxwell's men as being a ruse to decoy them into an ambush.

The end of the war was reached in 1783, and Maxwell left the army with the commission of a lieutenant-colonel, to take rank Oct. 12, 1782. So, after a service of nine years in the war of the Revolution, making, together with his service in the French and Indian war, fourteen years of hard fighting for his country, he returned to his family resolved that the deprivations of his wife and children should be at an end. But they had yet many hardships and perplexities. In common with other soldiers, he had been paid at the close of the war with paper money which depreciated greatly in value. Then, with his generous nature, he loaned considerable amounts to friends which were never repaid and finally brought him to very straitened circumstances. On Dec. 29th, 1794, he left home for Philadelphia to petition Congress for a pension. But while there, a law was passed which prevented any officer from receiving a pension until he should have returned his commutation to the Treasury. This deprived him of the compensation which he expected and believed his due. In a letter written soon after to Hon. John Lowell, of Boston, he says:

"I do not lament that I have fought many a hard battle for this country. I do not lament that in sundry instances I have suffered almost everything but death, in the service of these states, for I did my duty like an honest man. But still I did expect the promised reward. Still am I persuaded a reward from America is my due . . . Half pay as a Lieut.-Colonel is what I challenge as my honest reward from the beginning of 1784, during my natural life; it is due to my wife; it is due to my children. And may God grant that this or some future Congress may see it to be so, and conduct accordingly. But still I say, and will teach my children to say,—May the richest blessings of Heaven be poured down on the United States of North America."

In 1799 he resolved upon a venture with the view of relieving his financial embarrassment. He purchased some horses and with them embarked on board a vessel at Hartford for the West Indies. He sailed in July, had a prosperous voyage, and was within three days of port on his return when he was stricken with a fever. He died on the same day, October 14, 1799, and was buried at sea.

Colonel Hugh Maxwell was a man who possessed the elements of leadership in a large degree. It was due to his influence that, in the years of and preceding the Revolution, not a Tory was to be found in his town or the region round about. His services throughout the long struggle for independence were of great value to the cause, and it was due to no lack of ability, valor, or experience that he did not become a general. But there were not many, even of those who gained a higher military rank, who stood by their country more firmly in the long and dark years, or who inspired their comrades with more patriotic zeal than did this faithful soldier. When he returned to his home after the war was ended, he was honored and trusted in civil life as he had been on the field. In 1785 he went to Boston and obtained the charter of a new town which was set off from Charlemont on the north and which included his house. This town was named Heath in honor of his old General. In the church which was there formed he was the senior deacon; he was also town clerk for many years, and was commissioned in 1785 as justice of the peace for Hampshire County, and in this capacity took an active part in regard to Shays's Rebellion and its participants, receiving from the insurgents their arms and administering the oath in that county. Colonel Maxwell became also a member of the Society of the Cincinnati.

A monument was erected to his memory on July 4, 1859, in the "South Burying Ground" in Heath. On one side of the shaft is a long inscription, of which these are the closing words:

"A Christian Patriot and Christian Soldier: honored his God; served his country; loved his family. To duty was ever true; to his posterity his memory is a rich inheritance. May they emulate his virtues."

THE SAFFIN FAMILY.

By ISAAC J. GREENWOOD, A.M., of New York City.

The following is copied from Seymour's "Survey of London" (1735), Vol. II., page 718:

"On a grey Marble Tombstone, a pretty way Southward from the East End of the Church of St. Dunstan's Stepney, is this Inscription:

Here Thomas Saffin lyes interr'd: Ah! why, Born in New England, did in London dy? Was the third Son of Eight, begot upon His Mother Martha by his Father John. Much favour'd by his Prince he got to be; But nipt by Death at th' Age of twenty-three. Fatal to him was that we small-pox name, By which his Mother and two Brethren came Also to breathe their last, nine years before; And now have left their Father to deplore The Loss of all his Children, with that Wife, Who was the Joy and Comfort of his Life. Deceased (June the 18), 1687.

Also here are these Arms: Three Crescents, each surmounted by an Estoile of Eight Points; impaled with a Lion Rampant, in chief an Estoile of Eight Rayes, surmounting a Crown Murall."

Either the impaled arms have been wrongly cut on the stone, or the above heraldic description is at fault. The Saffin family of Wolf-Heriston, co. Somers, according to Burke's Gen. Armory, bore arms: Az. three crescents ar. jessant as many estoiles or. Crest.—On a mural coronet ppr. an estoile of sixteen rays or; these are given in the Visitation of Devon, 1564; Brit. Mus. Harl. MS. 1091, fo. 133b. The tombstone armorials agree with those occurring on a piece of silver plate, still in preservation, and referred to in the Heraldic Jour. (Boston, 1868), iv. 42; though again there is some descrepancy as to the impaled arms.

The epitaph, as printed above, differs slightly from what has already appeared in the REGISTER, iv. 109; the latter agreeing with Cheswell's "New View of London" (1708), i. 224. It was also published in the Spectator, No. 518 (1712), and is there spoken of as being "in the diffused and luxuriant stile, with much of the simple and pathetic." legible in 1796, according to Lyson's "Environs of London," it had attracted the attention of Dr. S. Johnson, whose observation, on reading the second line, was "I do not wonder at this; it would have been strange if, born in London, he had died in New England." If the witty Doctor's perspicacity had only informed us, as to what event in the deceased's life the fifth line of the epitaph refers, we would have been more edified. The stone was set up some time after the death of Thomas Saffin, for it refers to the loss of all John Saffin's children, whereas we learn from Sewall's Diary that "his only surviving son," name not given, was buried in Boston, Oct. 15, 1687, just about which time arrived the news of Thomas Saffin's death in London. Thomas was born in Boston, March 18, 1664; among the other children was Symon, born April 4, 1666. The last was a family name, and in the Camden Visitation of Devon, 1620, we have George, son of Simon Saffin of Woolverston, in com. Som., a place located on the Frome, just south of Philips-Norton. Jan. 15, 1638-9, Henry Ayshford, Dept. Lt. of Devon and Col. of a regiment in the eastern division of that county, reported to the Council that Edward Saffyn, John Saffyn, and Chris. Dabbinett, of Cullompton, and John Dunn of Willand, refractory at musters, have conformed and paid messengers' fees.—Col. of State Papers, Nathaniel Powell (or Ap. Howell), esq., of Ewhurst, in Sussex, etc., created a Baronet in 1661, was the son of Meredith Powell, Esq., of Brampton Ralf, co. Somers., who m. Alice, dau. of John Saffin of Culhampton, Devon. The Powell arms were, gu. a lion rampant regardant or, as descended from Ethelystan Glodrydd, Tributary Prince of Ferlys.

During the first half of the 18th century, Thomas Saffin and Mrs. Saffin gave each 100 l. towards support of the Episcopal charity schools at Exeter, co. Devon, and a like sum was given in 1742 by Penelope Saffin, to found a school for education of 12 children at Axminster in same county.

As to the New England settler, John Saffin, who was probably in Scituate as early as 1643, much can be gleaned from the REGISTER, iv. 109; viii. 65; xxxi. 115; also Sewall's Diary, Mass. Hist. Soc. Coll., and the Record Com. Reports of Boston. He was one of those who in right of Maj. Humphrey Atherton, and by grant from the native princes, held part of the lands of the Narragansett, etc., and proposed, 1663-'65, to improve it into an English Colony and Plantation. Dec. 30, 1701, the name occurs in an address to King William III. by his Protestant subjects of New York and vicinity.—N. Y. Col. MS. iv. 935.

Saffin is a name rarely met with, and is not found in the Index of the Gent.'s Magazine from 1731-1818.

GENEALOGICAL GLEANINGS IN ENGLAND.

By HENRY F. WATERS, A.M., now residing in London, England. [Continued from vol. xliv. page 398.]

HOLLIS.

I HAVE long felt it a pious duty to look up the Hollis and Holworthy families, and ever since I first came here I have been gradually picking up items about them in Wills. It has occurred to me that one or two numbers of my Gleanings especially devoted to these and other benefactors of my old college would be proper. I now send some Hollis matter. The Hollis family were cutlers by trade though Drapers by company. A pedigree and notice of the family may be found in Morant's Essex, Vol. II. p. 167. A letter of Thomas Hollis the great benefactor is printed in the REGISTER, Vol. II. p. 265. See also Memoir of Thomas Hollis, London, 1780 .- H. F. WATERS.

The following is a brief genealogy of the Hollis family:

"Thomas Hollis, of Rotherham in Yorkshire, a cutler, came to London during the civil wars. His wife's maiden name was Ann They had sons, Thomas, Nathaniel and John, and a Whiting. daughter Mary. Thomas died without issue. Nathaniel had several children, of whom only one, by name Thomas, survived him. This Thomas was the second benefactor of that name, and was the father of another benefactor, mentioned in the Harvard College Records as Thomas Hollis, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn. John Hollis had a considerable family of children, of whom the most important were Timothy and Isaac. All these men, with the exception of Thomas Hollis of Rotherham, appear in the College Records as benefactors. In these notes, the three benefactors who bore the name of Thomas Hollis will be distinguished as 1st, 2d and 3d. Robert Thorner was an uncle of Thomas Hollis 1st.—(See Morant's Essex, 2:16, and Memoirs of Thomas Hollis (3d), I. pp. 1 and 2.)" -EVARTS B. GREENE, of Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass. †1

THOMAS SMITH, citizen and cutler of London (aged) 21 November 1674, proved 6 May 1675. To wife Anna for term of her natural life my capital messuage or tenement &c in the parish of Walthamstow in Essex, except the little tenement wherein John Tompkins now liveth. And afterwards the reversion &c of the same to my son John Smith and the heirs of his body lawfully begotten. To my said son John my messuages &c in Dun-^{*} Few of our readers need to be told that the alma mater of Mr. Waters is Harvard College. He was graduated in the class of 1855. See Register, vol. 39, page 325.—Editor. † This and the other annotations to which Mr. Greene's name is affixed, have been kindly contributed by Evarts B. Greene of Cambridge, Mass., a member of the Harvard Seminary in American History.—Editor. VOL. XLV.

mowe, Essex, with condition that my said son John, his heirs or assigns, or some of them, shall and do within the space of three months next after my decease pay, or satisfy, or cause to be paid or satisfied, unto my foresaid wife Anna the full sum of four hundred pounds in performance of a contract made between us at and before marriage. I give and bequeath unto my eldest son Thomas fifty pounds, to my youngest son William fifty pounds, to my grandsonn Thomas Smith, son of my second son John, one hundred pounds, and to my brother Thomas Thorowgood twenty shillings (to buy him a ring). I give to my sister Frances Tompkins her dwelling free in the house wherein she now liveth during her natural life, and to her now husband after her decease, so long as he shall live a widower. To my brother Valentine twenty shillings each to my sister Margaret Ellis, to my sister Elizabeth, to my brother Thomas Hollis, to my sister Frances Tompkins and to my sister Susan. To my sister Katherine twenty shillings a year, to be paid out of my lands in Walthamstowe. The residue to my executrix and executor equally. Wife Anna to be the executrix and son John the executor.

ROBERT THORNER of Baddesley, in the co. of Southampton, gent, 31 May 1690. To my wife Rachel Thorner five hundred pounds absolutely &c in case she have no child by me; but if she have any child by me then I give the said five hundred pounds only for the term of her natural life; and after her decease I give the same to such child. [Under the record of a meeting of the Corporation held Dec. 24th, 1691, the provisions of Thomas's will, having reference to the College, are cited as above. On this page is entered a memorandum made at a later period, giving parts of a letter from Henry Newman, as follows. The letter is dated June 10th, 1710.

"I have enquired after Mr. Robert Thorner's legacy of £500. I compared the abstract you sent me out of the College register, & found them agree-ing with the will." He gives the names of the trustees at that time, among them, John Hollis, who succeeded Bennet Swaine, deceased (see College Book, IV. and V. p. 3, beginning at the back). On the same page is the following memorandum: "Mr. Thorner's lease will expire A.D. 1769, says Mr. T. Hollis (nephew), in his letter, Aug. 5, 1734."

In 1728, a copy of the will was received from Thomas Hollis 1st. randum by Wadsworth at this time suggests doubts as to the value of the leases mentioned (College Book, "Wills, Gifts and Grants," p. 18). The full amount of this legacy was not paid until 1775. In 1774, Timothy Hollis, then one of the trustees, announced that he was ready to pay £100 at once and the remainder of the legacy before the new year. In the winter of 1774-5, an order was drawn on Hollis for the remainder, which he had already declared himself ready to pay .- (See Hollis Letters, p. 83, and Harvard College Papers, 2: p. 31.)-EVARTS

In Newman's letter of June, 1710, already quoted, to the college authorities, is the following very interesting clause: "Mr. Thomas Hollis, one of the Trustees at the Cross Daggers in Little Minories, desires his will may be inquired for after his death. About the year 1718, an effort was made to divert Hollis's gifts to the College at New Haven. In this design, Cotton Mather, then on bad terms with the college authorities, took a prominent part. The gist of this episode is given in letters quoted by Quincy in his history of Harvard College, 1: p. 527, 528. In his letter to Increase Mather, Aug. 25th, 1719, already referred to, Hollis speaks of having sent over produce to the amount of £300 for the benefit of the college, and adds: "I have thots living or by will to order over to you a large parsel [of] goods, the produce to be added for same uses to the sum you now have in

The "diverse sums of money" remitted at "Sundry times to the Treasurer of Harvard Colledge" may be found noted from time to time in the records of the Corporation for this period. His first gift was that just mentioned. On May 24th, 1720 (Coll. Book, IV. and V. p. 66), the following vote was recorded: "Voted that the thanks of the Corporation be rendered by Mr. Pr's'd't & Mr. Coleman to the worthy Mr. Thomas Hollis of London, for the further valuable donation he has been pleased to make to the College, and is already in part arrived." The gifts made by Hollis up to 1775 are summarized in the following extract, from the formal acknowledgment given by the Corporation in response to his request of Hollis.—(See Coll. Book, IV. and V. pp. 105, 106):

"Whereas it hath pleased Almighty God to inspire Mr. Thomas Hollis, merchant in London, with most pious and generous designs for ye honour of our great and glorious Lord & Saviour & for ye good of mankind & hath in particular disposed him to execute some of those designs in ample & most beneficial donations to Harvard College aforesaid, Insomuch ye there hath already flowed into ye Treasury from ye bountiful hand of ye said Mr. Thomas Hollis to ye value of three thousand six hundred & seventy pounds, thirteen shillings & an half penny he hath transmitted statutes date January ye tenth 1722 which are penny he hath transmitted statutes date January y tendr 1722 which are lately come to ye hands of ye said Pres'd't & Fellows of Harvard College, wherein he directs yt ye Increase or produce of ye same be applied to ye ends following, yt is to say, eighty pounds per Annum, part thereof for a Salary & support for his Professor of Divinity, ten pounds apiece per annum to ten scholars, more or fewer according to ye produce ye money shall make per Annum." It is interesting to note in this connection that one of the first scholars on the Hollis foundation was Samuel Mather, a grandson of Increase Mather.— (See Letter of Hollis in "Hollis Letters, 9.") The Divinity Professorship was founded in 1721. Various letters on this subject, which passed between Hollis on one side, and the President and Mr. Colman, a Fellow, on the other, are reprinted in Quincy's History, 1: 529-540. The first reference in the college records to this subject is in the College Book, Nos. IV. and V., under date of April 25th, 1721. There was a prolonged discussion on the subject of the new Professorship (q. v. Quincy, 1: 529-540, where a large number of these letters are reprinted from the College archives), of which we find frequent record in the College books. Hollis showed throughout this discussion a liberality of spirit remarkable in those times. Hollis, it must be remembered, belonged to the Baptist denomination, though affiliating to some extent with the Independents in London (see his letter to Increase Mather, REGISTER, 2: 265). In his regulations for the Divinity Professor, the only theological test required was "that he declare it as his belief that the Bible is the only and most perfect rule of faith and manners." The Overseers amended by striking out the words "and most," and substituting for "Bible" the "Scriptures of the Old and New Testament."—(See Hollis's Book, pp. 3 and 4; Records of Overseers, 1: 21, 22.) In January, 1721–2, Edward Wigglesworth was elected the first "Hollissian Professor in Harvard College."—(Coll. Book IV. and V. p. 74.) In the winter of 1726-7, Hollis transmitted £1127 to found a Professorship of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, and in the following year presented the college with a valuable set of philosophical apparatus. Aside from these larger gifts, he proved his constant interest in the College by sending, from time to time, valuable collections of books for the library.

On learning of the death of Hollis, the Corporation, at a meeting held April 21, 1731, passed the following vote (see Hollis Book, p. 23):

"Having lately received ye tidings of ye death of our worthy and generous benefactor, Thomas Hollis, Esq., of London, who departed this life ye 21st of January last*—Voted yt a copy of ye sermon preached in ye College Hall on yt sorrowful occasion by ye Revnd Doctor Wigglesworth (his Divinity Professor) be desired in order to its being printed."

The clause in the will reserving to his successors the same right of approving the nomination of scholars and professors on his foundation, which he had reserved for himself, created some difficulty. The Corporation called the attention of his nephew and executor to the clause in the original orders which in the case of the scholars and the divinity professor limited the right of appointment to the founder himself, and in the case of the mathematics professor continued it only for his immediate successor. Hollis averted any possible friction by generously waiving all claims to exercise such rights (Hollis Book, pp. 23-25).—EVARTS B. GREENE.]

[At a meeting of the Corporation held Oct. 21, 1724, "Professor Wigglesworth laid before them a letter from the worthy Mr. Thomas Hollis, merchant of London, informing them of a very valuable gift of books from his brother, Mr. John Hollis, merchant of London." Coll. Book IV. and V. p. 99.

Two of the sons of John Hollis, Isaac and Timothy were also benefactors. On p. 81 of College Book, "Hollis Letters," is a letter from Isaac Hollis, apparently to some one of the college authorities, referring to a sum of £500 which he had sent over for the education of Iudian boys, and expressing his intention of sending an additional amount. The letter is dated 1746-7.

Timothy's name appears in the Donation Book for a subscription of £20 to the College. He succeeded his father as trustee of the Thorner will, and it was by him that the final payments were made. The records of the Corporation (Coll. Book VII. p. 32) state that in Feb. 1732, Timothy was appointed an agent for the College in London.—EVARTS B. GREENE.]

Harvard College Papers, 2: 31.

"I give to the College instituted for promoting Learning at Cambridge in New England, Five hundred pounds to be laid out in books for the use and benefit of England, Five hundred pounds to be laid out in books for the use and benefit of that College" (cited in a letter from Thomas Brand Hollis to John Hancock giving notice of the death of Hollis. Dated Pall Mall, May 28th, 1774.)

Thomas Hollis 3d was, with the exception of the first Thomas Hollis, the most liberal benefactor of the family. His gifts are well summed up in the following passage taken from the College Donation Book, p. 79.

"This gentleman began to honor the College with his notice a short time before the destruction of Harvard Hall. As soon as he was made acquainted with this event, he subscribed £200 sterling to the apparatus and the same sum to the library. . . . He hath at different times enriched the Library with a very large number of curious, valuable and costly books. The whole amount of his benefactions amounts, it is supposed, to more than fourteen hundred pounds sterling."

Note.—Hollis Hall was named January 13th, 1764, with elaborate ceremonies, by Francis Barnard, then Governor of Massachusetts (Coll. Book, VIII. p. 112).

Specially useful sources of information relating to the Hollis family and their gifts, are the Hollis Book (No. VI. of the College series); the Hollis letters bound in volumes entitled "Hollis Letters" and "Hollis Letters to Leverett"; the Donation Book; the "Memoirs of Thomas Hollis" (in three folio volumes). Quincy's History of Harvard College gives much interesting matter on this subject gathered from the College Papers.—Evarts B. Greene.]

[The foregoing verses I found in two separate manuscripts in the British Museum, viz. Add. MSS. 12496 and 15227. The former was purchased at the Strawberry Hill sale, 30 Apr. 1842 (Lot 84). It has the bookplate of Mr. Horatio Walpole and contains an inscription showing that it was bought at the sale of Sir J. Cæsar's MSS. Dec. 1757 (Lot 54) for I. 8. 6. It was evidently a collection of MSS. (with a few printed proclamations. &c.) made by Sir Julius Casar, knt., Master of the Rolls. At least many of the documents had certainly belonged to him. The last half dozen seem to refer entirely to Virginia. ()ne (f. 433) appears to be a form of policy for settling and governing Virginia and is entitled "Mr. Capt. Bargraves project touching Va. 8 Dec. 1623." Another (f. 435) by Jo. Martin, is styled The manner how to make a Royal Plantation. Another (f. 439) by the same, The manner how to bring the Indians in Subjection. A letter (f. 449) from John Martin to Sir Julius Cæsar, written 8 March 1626, at Martin Brandon, refers to the arrival of cousin Richard Martin, and names Capt. Prinne. It is signed "Your Honnors ever faithfull brother in law at Command—Jno. Martin." Another (f. 452) is the King's Com. for settling a Government in Virginia, 15 July, 1624. The Verses upon Thomas Washington begin fo. 364 and are endorsed "Epitaphiall Verses uppon the death of young Mr. Washington Prince Charles his page in Spaine in anno 1623.

The second MS. (Add. 15227) is a little duodecimo volume of miscellaneous poems and metrical translations in manuscript, many of them epitaphs, some humorous. The two copies differed somewhat. I have given the two readings where these differences seemed worth noting. The upper reading is from MS. 12496, and the lower from MS. 15227.

The connection between Sir Julius Cæsar and his "Bro. Martin" as he calls him, is explained by the marriage, 26 Feb. 1581 (2) of Julias Cæsar, doctor of laws and one of the advocates of the Arches, and Dorcas Lusher, widow. Gen. license granted 28 Feb. 1581-2 (Diocese of London). She was a daughter of Sir Richard Martin, kn⁴., Lord Mayor of London, and widow of Richard Lusher, gent. She died Monday, 16 June 1595, and was buried in the Temple Church. This I learn from my friend R. G. Rice, Esq.—HENRY F. WATERS.]

[In April, 1890, I received from Rev. R. M. Samson, Head Master of Hawkshead Grammar School, Lancaster, England (which School was founded by Edwin Sandys, Archbishop of York in Elizabeth's time), a copy of the record in the Archbishop's Bible which is kept at the School house, and I herewith enclose a copy from the lower part of the page (the upper part being a record of the births of the Archbishop's children), and you will notice the frequency of the names Washington, Spencer, Meuce, Anderson, etc., as godparents of these Sandes children. Now as Rob' Sandys, the eldest son of Thomas Sandys, 4th son of the Archbishop, was married to Alice Washington, sister of Sir William, Sir John and Lawrence Washington, I am inclined to think most of the children mentioned in the record were the children of this Robert Sandys (the name is variously spelt Sandys, Sandis, Sandes, Sands). The deep interest the Sandys family in England took in the settlement of America—both Virginia and New England, and also later on in Connecticut and New Jersey, coupled with the marriages of the Sandes and Washington family—may make the record of some use to you, particularly if read in connection with Mr. Waters's note in the

[Readers of the letters of Roger Williams printed in the REGISTER for July, 1889, have doubtless felt a curiosity to know the name of the lady whose hand the future founder of Rhode Island sought in vain about 1629. Having found what I thought to be a clew to the mystery, I sent a query to the editor of the London "Notes and Queries." It appeared in the issue of that periodical July 5, 1890, as follows:

"Whalley.—A list of the manuscripts of George Alan Lowndes, Esq., of Barrington Hall, co. Essex, in the 'Seventh Report of the Historical Manuscripts Commission,' Appendix, contains this entry:—

"'(No. 156) 1628, July 28 [22], Screaveton.—Ryc. Whalley to Lady Joane Barrington, baronettess, at her house Hatfield in Essex.—On a report of the death of her husband, Sir Francis, he condoles with her. Asks that his daughter (her niece) may still remain with her. Sends the third and last volume of Mr. Parkins's works.'

"Can any reader of 'N. & Q.' tell which of Mr. Whalley's daughters this was? The pedigree of Whalley, in the 'Visitations of Nottingham,' 1569 and 1614, Harleian Society's Publications, vol. iv. p. 118, shows that he had two daughters, Elizabeth and Jane, the former of whom married William Tiffin, of London, mercer. The famous Roger Williams, the founder of Rhode Island, then chaplain to Lady Barrington's son-in-law, Sir William Masham, of Otes, solicited of her, about the year 1629, the hand of her niece; but the niece's name is not mentioned in the correspondence on the subject, which is printed in the New-England Historical and Genealogical Register, vol. xliii. (1889), pp. 315-20, from a copy furnished by Mr. Lowndes, the owner of the original letters. I have queried whether it was not the niece mentioned in Mr. Whalley's letter whose hand Williams aspired to. A brother of Miss Whalley, Major-General Edward Whalley, one of the king's judges, came to New England and died here. Jane, the youngest daughter of Richard Whalley, named in the pedigree, married Rev. William Hooke, a graduate of Oxford University, who was vicar of Axmouth, in Devonshire, but as early as 1639 came to New England. He preached a few years at Taunton, in Plymouth colony, and from 1644 to 1656 at New Haven, Conn. He then returned to England, and was private chaplain to Oliver Cromwell. Some letters of Mrs. Jane Hooke to friends in New England are printed in the 'Massachusetts Historical Collections,' vol. xxxviii. pp. 260-68. If this was the niece of Lady Barrington whom Roger Williams wished to marry—and I think it not unlikely that it was—though one clergyman failed to obtain her hand she became the wife of another."

Soon after the article appeared, I received the following letter from Samuel Rawson Gardiner, Esq., LL.D.:

"South View, Wedmore Road, Bromley, Kent, July 8, 1890.

" DEAR SIR:

It will hasten matters if I reply directly to your enquiry headed 'Whalley' in 'Notes and Queries.' The Barrington correspondence is now in the possession of the British Museum, and Whalley's letters are in Egerton MSS. 2,644.

"The letter which you quote is of July 22, not July 28, and is at folio 275. It affords no indication of the name of the daughter, but from another letter I gather that it was Jane. In a letter dated Nov. 15, 1623 (folio 204), Whalley writes to Lady Joan:

"'And for my daughter Jane for whom I ought ye at Bartholomew tide

"From a letter of July 4, 1622 (folio 202), I gather that Elizabeth was already married. Whalley says he has been arrested by Tyffyn, 'who was a dogge to my daughter and hath performed neither to her or her daughter what he was bound unto.' Believe me, yours sincerely,

SAMUEL R. GARDINER.

John Ward Dean, Esq., Boston, Mass., U. S. A."

It is reasonable to suppose that Lady Barrington's niece, whose hand Williams sought, was in some way under the care of that lady. We find that Jane Whalley, in all probability, resided in her family about the time that Williams made his proposal; and we know of no other niece of hers who did. From the facts stated, there is little reason to doubt that Jane Whalley was the lady in question. She and her husband, the Rev. William Hooke, came to New England, and for some years lived at Taunton, not many miles from Providence, the home, if my theory be correct, of her former lover.

third marquess and first duke of Hamilton, to whom the territory described in the above instrument was granted by the Council of Plymouth. The line of descent is through Anne Hamilton, his daughter, who married William Douglas, earl of Selkirk, and was the mother of James, fourth duke of Hamilton, who was created Duke of Brandon, Sept. 10, 1711.

James Hamilton, the grantee of this tract, was the third marquess of Hamilton. He was born June 19, 1606, and succeeded to the peerage on the death of his father, March 3, 1624-5. He went in 1631 with an army to the assistance of Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden. In the civil war he was an ardent supporter of the royal cause, and was created by Charles I., April 12, 1643, Duke of Hamiton. He was captured by the Parliamentary forces August, 1648, was tried by the High Court of Justice, and was convicted and sentenced March 6, 1648-9, to be beheaded. He was executed on the 9th. A memoir of him, with a portrait, will be found in Lodge's Portraits of Illustrious Personages, Bohn's edition, vol. iv. pp. 271-283. See also the several editions of Collins's Peerage. He was a member of the "Council established at Plymouth, in the County of Devon, for the planting, ruling, ordering and governing of New England in America," incorporated Nov. 3, 1620. On the 3d of February, 1634-5, the Council, preparatory of the planting of the council, preparatory of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council of the council o tory to a surrender of its charter, made a division of its lands among eight of its members, namely: 1, Thomas Howard, earl of Arundel; 2, James Stuart, duke of Lenox; 3, James Hay, earl of Carlisle; 4, James Hamilton, marquess of Hamilton; 5, Edward, Lord Gorges; 6, Capt. John Mason; 7, Sir Ferdinando Gorges; 8, Sir William Alexander, earl of Stirling. A portion of the record of the Council, from May 31, 1622, to June 29, 1623, and from Nov. 4, 1631, to Nov. 1, 1638, is extant, and is printed in the Proceedings of the American Antiquarian Society for April, 1867, pp. 51-131. The record of Feb. 3, 1634-5, containing the bounds of the above named grants, will be found on pages 114 to 118. the 22d of April, 1635, deeds of feofment were made, under seal, to the eight grantees. One of these deeds, that to Capt. John Mason, is printed in Tuttle's Capt. John Mason, published by the Prince Society, pp. 209-15.

The territory under the grant to the Marquess of Hamilton was to be called the County of New Cambridge. Efforts were made at various times by his descendants to establish this claim, which were resisted by Rhode Island and Connecticut. In 1664, William and Anne, duke and duchess of Hamilton, petitioned Charles II. that their claim might be heard by the King's commissioners, which was granted. Their petition is printed in Trumbull's History of Connecticut, vol. i. pp. 537-8. The answer of Connecticut, to the petitioners, is printed in the same work, pp. 563-6. For the action of the commissioners, see Massachusetts Historical Collections, vol. v. pp. 218-19 and 230-31.

On the 17th of April, 1683, Charles II. appointed Edward Cranfield and others, commissioners to inquire into the respective claims to the King's Province or the Narraganset Country. The commission is printed in the Massachusetts Historical Collections, vol. v. pp. 232-3. The duke and duchess of Hamilton, and their son, the earl of Arran, gave a letter of attorney, July 30, 1683, to Edward Randolph, one of the commissioners, to prosecute their claim before the commission. The letter is printed in Hinman's Antiquities of Connecticut ("Letters of English Kings and Queens," etc.), pages 157-8. The commissioners held various sessions, and decided that the jurisdiction of the Narraganset Country belonged to Connecticut, and the soil to the Narraganset purchasers. Their report, dated Boston, October 20, 1683, is printed in the Rhode Island Historical Collections, vol. iii. pp. 229–38, and in the Massachusetts Historical Collections, vol. v. pp. 233–44. Randolph did not arrive until after the report had been agreed upon and signed. The commission, however, again convened, heard the duke's deed read, and listened to the pleas of Randolph, which they voted to transmit, with the answers of the Narraganset proprietors, to the King for his consideration.

After the accession of James II. the earl of Arran petitioned, April 3, 1685, in behalf of his claims. The petition was referred, with others, to the Board of Trade.

Much on this subject will be found in Arnold's History of Rhode Island, vol. pp. 119, 305, 471-80; 505, 529, 537-8; vol. ii. p. 90. An abstract of documents relating to the claim is printed in the Records of the Colony of Connection. ticut, edited by Dr. J. Hammond Trumbull, vol. ii. appendix, pp. 333-36. SOLDIERS IN KING PHILIP'S WAR.

A GENERAL REVIEW OF THE EVENTS OF THE WAR.

THE sole object of this series of papers was, at the beginning, the preservation in convenient form of the names of those soldiers who served in the Indian War of 1675-7, known as "King Philip's War"; so called from the name of the recognized leader of that war, whose Indian name was Metacom or Pometacom, or Metacomet; but whom the English called Philip. He was the second son of Massasoit, who at the settlement of the English at Plymouth and Boston seems to have been chief sachem of all the various tribes and fragments of tribes living between the Charles River and Narraganset Bay, and including that part of Rhode Island east of the Bay, and also the Cape Cod tribes. The rule of Massasoit was probably rather indefinite both as to limits of territory and extent of authority over the subordinate chiefs. While Massasoit seems to have been the acknowledged head of the tribes within the limits above named, the league between the chiefs of the tribes was evidently very loose, and held mostly for convenience in defence, and perhaps for the settlement of difficulties between individual tribes. The territory of this Sachem was bounded upon the west by the Nipmucks and Narragansets. But a very great proportion of this had been sold by the Sachems before the opening of the war. Massasoit had several children, three of whom are known to us by name; Wamsutta and Metacom, who came to Plymouth about 1656 and at their own request received English names from the Governor, who "christened" them "Alexander" and "Philip." A sister of these was the wife of Tuspaquin, chief of the Namaskets; she was called by the English "Amie." Mention is made of another son and also a daughter, but I have not proper authority for their names. Alexander married a Sachem's daughter, or widow, of the Pocasset tribe, and after his death, soon following Massasoit's, 1661 or '62, she returned to her own people, and ruled there with influence and ability until the war; when her second husband, Petananuet, Petonowowett, or "Peter Nunnuit" (as he is sometimes called), took sides with the English, she, possibly reluctantly, joined the fortunes of Philip, who had married her sister Wootonekanuske, and had great influence with her.

Massasoit had always maintained a cordial and firm friendship with the English; and it would seem that Alexander also was somevol. xlv. 8 what of his father's nature and disposition. The moment, however, which saw Philip raised to the place of power, gave signal of a far different course of conduct on the part of the Wampanoag Sachem. The limits of his father's olden territory had been greatly reduced before he came to power. The English had purchased and otherwise absorbed a large proportion of their lands. Philip kept on selling and surrendering, till at last, as early as 1670-1, he began to feel the pressure of civilization upon their hunting and fishing grounds as well as cornfields. The Court at Plymouth itself had interfered and forbidden the transfer of certain parts of the Wampanoag territories, and thus doubtless saved the Indians in various tribes a home. Pokanoket, the hereditary home, was thus saved to Philip's people; and here he lived at the time of the opening of the war. This place was called by the English "Mount Hope," and it is now embraced in the town of Bristol, R. I.

But now having given some account of the principal character in the war, we may state briefly the method of collecting the material in these papers, and the purpose of this present chapter.

The method adopted in arranging the soldier's names needs ex-The material which served as the basis of the work, and indeed first suggested the undertaking, was found in three manuscript volumes, containing the accounts of John Hull, who was the Treasurer of the colony at the time of the war. These volumes are devoted to the accounts pertaining to the war, and consist of a Journal and two Ledgers. The Journal was opened June 24th, 1675, and originally contained over five hundred pages, as the Ledger shows, but now has only four hundred and sixty-one complete. There was evidently a later Journal and also a Ledger, now missing, which belonged to the set. The third book is later, and contains the closing accounts in the war. These old books were preserved in private hands for a century and a half, until discovered by one who appreciated their value for genealogy and history, and secured them for those purposes. In searching these books for the name of one who served in the Indian war, the present writer discovered the importance of the accounts in the matter of the Indian war of 1675. Every soldier who served in that war is credited with military service, and the name of the officer under whom he served is given in the credit. The date at which payment is made is given in the "Cash" account, but the time and place of service is not designated; nor is the residence nor any further information about the soldier given. Some of the soldiers served at different times and under different The best method therefore of arranging the men in companies was found to be that of following the names of the officers as they occur in the credits. The names were thus gathered from the Journal, and placed in companies with their officers. fortunes of each company were followed as carefully as possible throughout the several campaigns of the war. But it was found that a great amount of unpublished material is still preserved in our State Archives, County and Town Records, and elsewhere; and this, in the light of the great number of names identified in these credits as soldiers, becomes available and interesting as history. Additional material has been gathered and incorporated here from all sources, whenever it would add to the sum of knowledge concerning the war.

The officers and soldiers, many of them, served in several, some in all the different campaigns; and thus in following their fortunes, it was necessary to go over the same events many times, so as to marshal the various companies in order in the military operations.

It will be seen that by this method of arrangement, a great amount of important material has been massed together conveniently for the study of history, while the story of the war has not been followed by consecutive events, but according to the experience of individual officers and companies. It is proposed in this final chapter to give a brief account of the war, following events in order as nearly as possible. It will not be necessary to discuss the causes leading up to the war. It is enough to say here, that the English had assumed the government of the country, and followed their course of settlement with small regard to the rights of the natives. In some of the plantations, the settlers purchased their lands of the Indians, as a matter of precaution; partly that they might have that show of title in case any other claim should be set up in opposition to theirs, and partly to conciliate the savages, whose hostility they feared, and whose friendship was profitable in the way of trade, in furs and other products of the hunt. The Indians were always at disadvantage with the English, in all the arts of civilized life. The English paid no heed to Indian laws or customs or traditions; and ruthlessly imposed their own laws, customs and religious ideas, with no apparent thought of their intolerance and injustice. They made treaties with the savages in the same terms which they would have used had they been dealing with a civilized nation. They made out deeds, in language which only the learned framers themselves could understand. In brief, the Pilgrims and Puritans mostly looked upon the Indians as heathen, whose "inheritance" God meant to give to his people, as of old he had dealt with Israel and their heathen. There were some, however, who, with Rev. John Eliot, believed that the Indians had immortal souls, and that they were given to God's people to educate and save. But there was nothing which the rulers of the Indians resented more persistently, nor complained of more frequently, than the attempts of the Christians to convert their people. Indirectly one of these converted Indians was the immediate cause of the opening of hostilities. There were many grievances of which the Indians complained; but they had not the foresight to see the inevitable result of the constantly increasing power of the English, in their acquisition of land, and multiplying of settlements. It was only when they felt the pressure of actual privation or persecution, that they began to think of opposition or revenge. Their chiefs had been summoned frequently before the English courts to answer for some breach of law by their subjects; several times the English had demanded that whole tribes should give up their arms because of the fault of one or a few. The Indians live mostly by hunting and fishing, and at the time of the war used fire-arms almost wholly. They had learned their use and bought the arms of the English, nearly always at exorbitant prices. They were expert in the use of their guns, and held them as the most precious of their possessions. The order to give these over to the English, with their stock of ammunition, was regarded by them as robbery, as indeed in most cases it was, as they seldom regained their arms when once given up. We can now see that from their standpoint there were grievances enough to drive them to rebellion. But our forefathers seem to have been unable to see any but their own side. But now to the story.

John Sassamon (Mr. Hubbard says Sausaman) was the son of a Wampanoag Indian who with his wife and family lived in Dorchester. They had been taught by Mr. Eliot, and professed the Christian faith. The son John was the pupil of Mr. Eliot from his early youth, and was made a teacher among the Christian Indians at Natick. Mr. Hubbard says that "upon some misdemeanor" there, he went to the Wampanoags, where he became the secretary and interpreter of the chief, to whom he was a most valuable assistant and trusted adviser. He was soon prevailed upon by Mr. Eliot to return to Natick, where he became a preacher, while still preserving friendly relations with Philip and his tribe. In 1672-3 he was at Namasket as preacher among the Indians, whose chief was Tuspaquin, whose daughter Sassamon had married. While here he discovered that a plot was in process, extending among many tribes, to exterminate or drive away the English settlers from the country. This plot Sassamon disclosed to the authorities at Plymouth, and afterwards the story was told to the Massachusetts authorities; and Philip was summoned to answer to the charge. At the examination, where nothing positive could be proved against Philip, he found by the evidence that Sassamon had betrayed him, and he immediately condemned him to death in his council. The sentence was carried out January 29, 1674-5 while Sassamon was fishing through the ice upon Assawomset Pond. His executioners were brought to punishment, and it was discovered that the deed was done by Philip's order. The trial was in March, 1675, and the principal actor, Tobias, and his accomplice, Mattashunannamoo, were executed as murderers, June 8, 1675; while Tobias's son, who was present but took no part in the crime, was reprieved for one month and then shot. After the execution of the two in June, Philip threw off all disguise as to his plan, and pushed his preparations as diligently as possible. The plan had been to complete preparations and include all the tribes in New England, so that a simultaneous assault could be made upon all the settlements at once. This plan was spoiled, and probably the settlements saved from destruction, by the impatience of the leader's vengeance. While Philip's preparations went forward, the authorities thought best not to make any immediate military demonstration further than the placing of a guard by the various settlements to prevent a surprise. They thought Philip would soon tire of holding his men in arms and training, so that they could get him in their power. But his company increased, and the younger warriors began to demand some open act of hostility. At last they began not only to insult the English settlers in the nearest settlements, by their words of insolence and threats, but to shoot their cattle and plunder their houses. The Indians increased greatly in numbers, from the neighboring tribes, many "strange Indians" appearing among them, and most of their women and children being sent away to the Narraganset country. At Swansy they appeared in considerable numbers, and used all their ways of provocation to induce some act of resistance from the settlers; and at last, upon June 24th, one man was so enraged at the shooting of his cattle and the attempt to rifle his house, that he shot at an Indian, wounding him. Upon this the Indians began open and indiscriminate hostility, and on that day eight or nine of the English at Swansy were killed and others wounded. Two men were sent for a surgeon, but were waylaid and slain, and their bodies left upon the road. Messengers, sent from the English authorities to treat with Philip and prevent an outbreak, came upon the bodies of the men slain in the highway, and speedily turned back. The colonies awoke to the fact that an Indian war was upon them, but supposed that a few companies sent down to Swansy would at once overawe the savages and reduce them to submission. A speedy muster was made, both at Plymouth and Boston, and on the afternoon of June 26th, five companies were mustering or on the march from the two colonies. The details of the account of the war will be found in the body of the preceding chapters. Here only a brief outline of current events can be given. The first company of infantry from Boston was made up from the regular military companies of the town. A company of cavalry, or "troopers," was gathered from the regular organization in three counties. A third company, of "volunteers," raised about the town and vicinity, from all sorts of adventurers, sea-faring men and strangers, with a number of prisoners who had been convicted of piracy and condemned to death, but were now released to engage in fighting the Indians. Capt. Daniel Henchman commanded the first company; Capt. Thomas Prentice the troopers, and Capt. Samuel Mosely the "volunteers." These three companies marched out of Boston on the 26th and 27th and arrived at Swansy on the 28th, having formed a junction with the Plymouth forces under VOL. XLV.

Major James Cudworth and Capt. Fuller. The forces quartered about the house of Rev. John Miles, the minister at Swansy, whose place was nearest the bridge leading over the river into Philip's Some of the troopers that evening rode across the bridge and had a slight skirmish with the enemy. On the 29th, Major Thomas Savage arrived with another company of foot with Capt. Nicholas Paige's troop. Major Savage took command of the Massachusetts forces; while, according to the custom in the United Colonies, the senior officer of the colony in which the forces were The present seat engaged at the time became commander-in-chief. of war being in Plymouth colony, Major Cudworth was thus the commander of the whole army. On June 30th, the troopers, supported by Mosely's company, charged across the bridge for a mile into the woods, driving the enemy before them into swamps, with a loss of five or six, Ensign Perez Savage being severely wounded on the English side. This charge so frightened the Indians that they fled, in the night, out of their peninsula of Mount Hope, across the channel to Pocasset, now Tiverton, R. I., so that on the next day when the whole force marched over into Mount Hope, and marched back and forth sweeping the country with their lines, they found no The forces were engaged several days in scouting the neighboring country in search of the Indians, not yet knowing that the main body were in Pocasset.

Then orders came from Boston for Major Savage's forces to march into Narraganset, to enforce a treaty with that powerful tribe, and prevent their junction with Philip. They found the country apparently deserted, few except the very aged being left in any of the villages. Neither Canonchet nor any of his leading Sachems could be found. The officers, however, spent several days completing a very ceremonious treaty with some of the old men whom they were able to bring together. Canonchet afterwards treated the whole matter with scorn as being a farce.

In the meantime the Plymouth forces passed over to Pocasset and found a body of Indians, and had a skirmish with them. Capt. Fuller was in command, and Benjamin Church conducted a part of the force, which became engaged with a much larger force, and after hard fighting were drawn off with difficulty by the tact and courage of Mr. Church, after inflicting serious injury upon the enemy, and suffering little loss themselves. After this the Indians retired into the swamps about Pocasset, and were held at bay until the return of the Massachusetts forces; when all marched together for concerted action against their enemies.

On July 18th the combined forces arrived at the Pocasset swamp, and made a resolute attack upon the enemy concealed in the thick underbrush, from whence at the first volley they killed five and wounded seven of our men. After this volley the enemy retreated deeper into the swamp, where it was impossible, night coming on, to follow them. The commanders in council concluded that they had the enemy now enclosed securely within the swamp, whence it was impossible to escape, if a suitable guard were left to watch. Major Savage and the Massachusetts men returned to Boston, except Capt. Henchman's company of one hundred men, who, with the Plymouth forces, remained at Pocasset. Capt. Henchman began to build a fort there, which might serve as a stronghold for the English and might guard the entrance to the great swamp.

JOHN LAKIN'S DEED, 1653.

Communicated by the Hon. SAMUBL A. GREEN, M.D., of Boston.

THE following deed by indenture, once belonging to John Lakin, of Groton, was found several years ago among some old papers in that town. In early times deeds were often given in this form, as there was then no general system of public registration. Lakin was a native of England, who came to this country with his elder brother William, his mother, and his grandfather Lakin. The family settled first at Reading, where the name was sometimes spelled Laukin; and a few years later they were all living at Groton. In the spring of 1655 the two brothers were petitioners for the Groton Plantation, and both were original proprietors of the town, each owning a twenty-acre right. Their names are given in the fac-simile copy of the petition, printed in the REGISTER (xxxvi. 23) for January, 1882, where it is stated that the signatures appended to the document vary in the style of hand-writing, though they do not appear to be autographs, and may have been written by the same person. From the resemblance between Lakin's signature to this deed and several of the signatures to the petition, I am inclined to think that he wrote some of the names on that paper; and perhaps William Martin, who heads the list of signers, wrote others.

John Lakin married Mary, daughter of Michael Bacon, as appears from a communication in the REGISTER (xli. 262) for July, 1887; and George Polle (or Polly) married Elizabeth, daughter of Edward Winn, as appears from Sewall's History of Woburn (page 630); and these facts will account for their witnessing the deed.

RETURNS OF THE UNITED STATES DIRECT TAX OF 1798.

On the 24th of August, 1844, Mr. William H. Montague,—one of the founders of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, of whom a memoir will be found in the REGISTER for October, 1890,—was appointed Debenture Clerk in the Custom House at Boston. While holding the office he made the discovery of the returns of the United States Direct Tax of 1798 for the state of Massachusetts, including the District of Maine, which returns have been bound in twenty thick folio volumes and are preserved in the library of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society. Mr. Montague having occasion to go to the Custom House earlier than usual, found the janitor making a fire, and taking up some of the paper used to kindle it, he saw on examining the sheets that they were returns of the above-named tax. He asked the janitor where he got the paper, and was shown a large pile of these returns. Directions were given that no more of them should be destroyed, and application was made to have them deposited in the library of this Society, which, after some unavoidable delay, was granted. Before depredations were made, they contained an inventory of all the buildings and lands in the state, with their valuation and the names of every owner and every occupant. The returns for Boston will be printed by the Boston Record Commissioners. Those of no other state are known to be preserved, though duplicate returns of each state were made, one of which was sent to Washington.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

THE PRESERVATION OF BEAUTIFUL AND HISTORICAL PLACES IN MASSACHUserrs.-On May 24th, 1890, a conference of persons interested in the preservation of scenery and historical sites was held in Boston at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. President Henry H. Sprague, of the State Senate, presided. Suggestive speeches were made by the Hon. Leverett Saltonstall, Judge William S. Shurtleff, Professor C. E. Norton, Mr. J. B. Harrison, and others; and letters from Governor Brackett, Dr. Holmes, Mr. Whittier, and many others, were read. The Conference created a Committee to promote the preservation of beautiful and historical sites in Massachusetts, and this Committee now issues the following CIRCULAR (No. 1):

The fundamental facts of the subject with which the Committee has to deal are two, namely:

1st. It is the self-interest of the Commonwealth to preserve, for the enjoyment of her people and their guests, all her finest scenes of natural beauty and all her places of historical interest.

2d. Private ownership of such scenes and places now prevails, so that not only is the public completely barred out from many especially refreshing and interesting spots, but these valuable places are often robbed of their beauty or interest for some small private gain.

The problem calls for intelligent action on the part of the Legislature, and generous action on the part of private citizens. The Committee will ask the Legislature to act for the best interests of the Commonwealth by establishing a Board of Trustees, capable of holding lands for the use and enjoyment of the public; and the Committee will ask the owners of lands, and the possessors of money which can buy or maintain lands, to endow the Trustees with suitable lands and considerable funds immediately upon their incorporation. With the fostering approval of the Legislature, the large and small gifts of enlightened citizens have provided Massachusetts with colleges, libraries, art museums, and hospitals. When the State shall have established the necessary organization, gifts of beautiful and interesting places and sites may be confidently expected, for no pobler use of wealth can be invariated. for no nobler use of wealth can be imagined.

Judge William S. Shurtleff of Springfield, Hon. Henry L. Parker of Worcester. and Moses Williams, Esq., of Brookline, have been appointed a Sub-Committee on Legislation. The establishment of an advisory Board, in addition to the Board of Trustees, will probably be recommended to the Legislature, its members to be elected as Delegates from existing incorporated associations. The State possesses many thriving historical and out-of-door societies, and they will be called upon to unite in establishing and assisting a Board of Trustees which shall be capable of holding property valuable to one and all. Such acts of the Trustees as involve the assumption of permanent trusts will come before this Board of Delegates for confirmation.

The Committee desires to hear from the officers of all societies which may wish to send Delegates to the proposed Board, and also from the officers or members of any societies which may see fit to assist the Committee by adopting resolutions favoring the establishment of the proposed Board of Trustees for public places.

The Committee hopes to be informed of all movements now on foot looking to the opening to the public of any beautiful or historical places, as also of all lands which it may be desirable and possible to obtain for the proposed Trustees. Letters may be addressed to the nearest member of the Committee, or to the Secretary, Charles Eliot, 50 State Street, Boston.

Lastly, the Committee requests all persons who may feel interested in this attempt to facilitate the preservation of natural scenery and of historical memorials to send contributions for this purpose to the Treasurer of the Committee, George Wigglesworth, Esq., 89 State Street, Boston. If the working fund can be made large enough, the work of the Committee can go on prosperously; otherwise it must languish.

FRENCHES IN NEW AND OLD ENGLAND:-

John¹ French, of Ipswich, was a Denison subscriber in 1648; he went to Northampton, Mass., and held land at Deerfield; he married Freedom, daughter of John Kingsley of Dorchester, and afterwards of Rehoboth. His wife Freedom French died at Northampton, 26 July, 1689. He died there 1st Feb'y, 1697. Children:

John² French, born in 1655; married at Rehoboth, Nov. 27th, 1678, Mary Palmer; 2^{dly}, Hannah. His will was proved April 20th, 1725.
 Thomas² French, born at Ipswich, May 23d, 1657; settled at Deerfield;

- married Oct. 18th, 1683, Mary, daughter of John Catlin; she was captured and killed March 9th, 1704, on the march into Canada. 2d, married Feby 16th, 1709, Hannah, daughter of Atkisson; she had first married, Nov. 17th, 1674, Joseph Edwards, at Northampton; 2d, she married, March 2d, 1691, Benoni Stebbins; and her 3d husband was Thomas French as above stated. He died April 3, 1733. His wife Hannah French died Sept. 7, 1735.
- 3. Mary² French, born at Ipswich, Feby 27th, 1659; married Samuel Stebbins,
- son of John Stebbins, of Rowland. Divorced Dec. 27th, 1692.
 4. Samuel² French, born at Ipswich, Feb'y 26th, 1661; died Sept. 3d, 1683, Savage states unmarried.
 - 5. Hannah² French, born at Ipswich, March 8th, 1664; married Francis Keet.

Elizabeth French married Samuel Pomeroy, son of Caleb Pomeroy of Eltwed. Jonathan French had a wife Sarah, as appears by the administration of his estate, granted to his widow in 1714.

Thomas French, of Ipswich, Mass., married, Feb. 29th, 1659, Mary Adams; in 1687, according to one of the publications of the Massachusetts Historical Society, he was among "the six principal resistants at Ipswich" to the Andros Tax; as such the Rev. John Wise was suspended from his ministerial functions, fined, and gave a bond for his good behavior. John Appleton, John Andrews, Sr., Robert Kinsman, William Goodhue, Jr., and Thomas French were excluded from bearing office, fined, and gave bonds for good behavior for one year. Five of these, with possibly John Appleton, proved their damages sustained, before Chief Judge Dudley, "for their unwillingness to Rayse money without the consent of the people."

Richard French.—By the Court held at Plymouth, Mass., May 3d, 1659, it appears by its records, that Richard French owed His Highness the Lord Protector, £40; he may have been a relative of Peter French, D.D., canon of Christ Church, Oxford, who married Rebina, sister of Oliver Cromwell.

A. D. WELD FRENCH.

LAWRENCE.—Rev. Lawrence B. Thomas, on page 129 of his Pedigrees of Thomas, Chew and Lawrance (New York, 1883), quotes a MS. letter received from the late Mr. G. D. Scull, the editor and author, who was a frequent and valued contributor to the Register, announcing the discovery, on the Register of St. Stephen's Church, just outside of St Albans, Hertfordshire, of a record of the marriage, 16 Feb. 1617–8, of William Lawrence and Joan Brooke; and Mr. Thomas entertains "no reasonable doubt they were the ancestors of the American family."

As applicable to the above, attention should be given to the age of Jane, wife of George Giddinge, of Ipswich, a daughter of Joan Tuttle, which is entered on the list of passengers by the Planter (REGISTER, vol. 14, pp. 303-4) as 20 years, on 2d April, 1635.

GEO. A. GORDON.

LAUGHTON.—On a former occasion, I sent some English monumental inscriptions, likely to be of interest to Americans, which were printed in the REGISTER [vol. 44, p. 115]. Below I send an inscription I met with on a tombstone in Hornsey Churchyard, Middlesex.

R. H. Edleston.

THOMAS JOHNSTON was an early Boston engraver, and lies buried in the King's Chapel Burying Ground. Thomas Bridgman, in his "Memorials of the Dead in Boston" (page 79), gives the epitaph very incorrectly; and for that reason I send you the following copy:—

Here lies Buried the Body of Mr. THOMAS JOHNSTON who departed this Life May 8th. 1767 Aged 59 Years.

EBENEZER BUTTERFIELD, of Townsend, blacksmith, Martha Cleveland, widow, Jonathan and Dorothy Fish, sell all their rights in the estate of Gershom Heald, late of Concord, being lawful heirs by the death of our honoured mother, Dorothy Butterfield late of Westford, to Stephen Blood, 5 June, 1765.

Mdx. Deeds, Lib, lxvi: 121.

CLARKE.—In my "Genealogy of the Descendants of Nathaniel Clarke of Newbury, Mass.," published in 1885, page 7, I suggest a near kinship between the said Nathaniel and some of the Clarks at Ipswich. My later investigations discredit this theory, and I have abandoned it. On page 35 of the above work I refer to an assertion, which has been in print, that John Gage of Rowley was a younger son of Sir John Gage, created a baronet, March 26, 1622. It seems to me that the evidence is conclusive that this assumed relationship is purely fictitious, and that the ancestry of John Gage of Rowley must be sought for elsewhere.

DEA. MILES WARD.—The following item from "The Boston Post-Boy and Advertiser," September 10, 1764, may have sufficient genealogical interest to be inserted among the Notes of the REGISTER.—S. A. G.

On the 20th of last Month died at Salem, Deacon Miles Ward, aged 92 Years: He was of a chearful Disposition which he retained with his Memory to the last; he never had been ill till very lately, and then only weak and lame with age; he was able to give a very particular Account of Things done upwards of 80 Years ago; he was a Person of Good Conversation, a good Neighbour and Friend, and a sincere tho' chearful Christian. His first Wife was Daughter of Mr. John Massey, who was the first English Male Child born in the Massachusets Colony.

QUERIES.

MAREAN or MARION.—A wish to learn the origin of that William Marean who married at Roxbury, Mass., 7 Jan. 1701-2, with Elizabeth Clark, led to the compilation of the following records, from such sources as I could reach. The question is not yet solved, and I will be thankful for any help which can be given by those who are within reach of the records. The family pronounce the name in three syllables, with the accent on the second.

A careful study of the printed records of Boston, 1630-1700, has convinced me that persons mentioned under a variety of names were really of one family-Marion, Marean or Merion. I send this study in the hope that it may be of service to some other student.

D. WILLIAMS PATTERSON, of Newark Valley, N. Y.

JOHN¹ Marion, a cordwainer, of Watertown, Mass., about 1640, married with Sarah Eddy, daughter of John and Amy Eddy. They removed to Boston, Mass., before 22 Feb. 1651-52; and he was made a freeman 26 May, 1652, as "Jo. Marrjon." He was selectman in Boston in 1693, and died there 7 Jan. 1705-06, in his 86th year. She died 3 Feb. 1709-10, in her 85th year.

Children of John and Sarah (Eddy) Marion:

2. i. Mary² Marion, born at Watertown about November, 1641; died there in January, 1641-42; and was buried 24 Jan. 1641-42, aged two months.

3. ii. John Marion, born at Watertown, 12 May, 1643; and died in three days.

4. iii. ELIZABETH² MARION, born about 1644; married 10 Jan. 1665-66, with Henry Dearborn, son of Godfrey Dearborn of Hampton. She died 6 July, 1716, aged 72 years. See Savage's Dictionary, II. p. 32.

5. iv. John² Marion, b. probably at Boston, about 1651; baptized there 22
Feb. 1651-52, as son of "John Merion." He went to Cambridge, Mass., re-Persis () Harrison, of Boston, where she was baptized in the First Church 21 Dec. 1656. He joined the First Church in Roston 26 Aug. 1677 turned to Boston, and married with Anna Harrison, daughter of John and 21 Dec. 1656. He joined the First Church in Boston 26 Aug. 1677; was made a freeman 15 Oct. 1679, as "John Marrion"; and was a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company in 1691. His wife died 3 Nov. 1692, in her 35th year, and was buried in the Granary Burlal Ground. He was ordained a deacon of the First Church 6 Sept. 1696, and was a selectman in 1698. He married 2d, 27 June, 1700, with Mrs. Prudence (Balston) Turner, a widow, daughter of Jonathan and Mary () Balston, of Boston, where she was born, 28 May, 1655. Mr. Bridgman erroneously ascribes this marriage to his son John Marion, who died in infancy. "Deacon John Marion died on Wednesday, January 3d, 1728, in the 78th year of his age. He was a very important man in Boston, equal in rank and influence to any person there. A Christian man. 'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord.' He was interred in the King's Chapel Burial Ground. Mrs. Prudence Marion died ——. She was interred in the Granary Yard." See Bridgman's Memorials of the Dead in Boston.—King's Chapel Burial Ground, p. 264.

6. v. Isaac2 Merion, born in Boston, 20 Jan. 1652-53; baptized there 30 Jan.

652-53, as son of "John Meriam." He had a wife, "Phœbe." He joined the First Church in Boston in 1696. He died 25 June, 1724, aged 72 years. His will, proved 13 July, 1724, gave all of his property to his wife and her heirs. She died 27 Oct. 1724, aged 67 years.

7. vi. Samuel Miriam, born in Boston, "14 Dec." 1655, according to the printed record, which should, perhaps, be 4 December, as he was baptized there 9 Dec. 1655, as son of "John Meriam." He had a wife, Hannah, who died 4 April. 1688. "in a sad manner." He was a member of the Artillery Company "in a sad manner." He was a member of the Artillery Company He married 2d, with Mary Wilson, daughter of Edward and Mary (Hale) Wilson, of Charlestown, Mass., where she was baptized 20 July, 1662, and owned the covenant 4 Jan. 1690-91. Now I LAY ME DOWN TO SLEEP.—The very earliest publication in print, of which I have any knowledge, of the familiar little prayer—

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray the Lord my soul to keep;
If I should die before I wake,
I pray the Lord my soul to take"— was in the old "New-England Primer," the first edition of which was printed about the year 1691—nearly two hundred years ago.

Have you, Mr. Editor, or any of your multitude of readers, may I ask, knowledge of the little prayer having been any earlier in print? And was it first in print in the United States of America or in some other part of the world? I am very desirous of learning when and where, and in what language, the little prayer was first in print, and what is known concerning the oral transmission of this hymn, and in what language it was originally composed.

I have information that a learned gentleman, who is making a search for the genesis of this child's prayer, has traced it back to England and Scotland, and expects to find it in an old Latin hymn.

Can you, Mr. Editor, or any of the readers of the foregoing kindly give me the information desired, or suggest to me where and of whom I may possibly obtain it?

CHARLES MARSEILLES.

Richard Cutter had wives Elizabeth and Frances and daughters Elizabeth by each. The first is said to have died in 1663, the second was b. 1669, and is said to have married a Hall. From dates of death and birth neither of these could have been the mother of Jonathan—to say nothing of his eldest sister Elizabeth, b. about 1670. Who can unravel this tangle?

HISTORICAL INTELLIGENCE.

A GUIDE TO PRINTED BOOKS AND MANUSCRIPTS RELATING TO ENGLISH HERALDRY AND GENEALOGY.—This book by Mr. George Gatefield of the Department of Manuscripts in the British Museum, was announced by us in the REGISTER for July, 1886, page 326. We are happy to learn that it is now in press. The work is a classified catalogue of works on those branches of literature. It consists of about twenty thousand titles, and is intended to supplement and to form one of a series of valuable Guides which have already been published; such as Sims's "Index to Heralds' Visitations in the British Museum," and "Manual for the Genealogist, Topographer and Antiquary"; Marshall's "Genealogists' Guide to Printed Pedigrees"; Anderson's "Book of British Topography"; and other works of a like nature. The need of such a Guide is apparent. The book will be published by Messrs. Mitchell & Hughes, 140 Wardour Street, London (W.) England, to whom subscriptions should be sent at once. Price one guinea to subscribers, and a guinea and a half to non-subscribers. The book will probably be published early in the spring. The edition will be limited to 300 copies.

SCOTCH GENEALOGY AND HERALDRY.—One of the officials of the Lyon office is about publishing, with copious genealogical notes, the recently discovered "Lockhart Collection," comprising over three hundred coats of arms. They were executed either for, or under the supervision of Alexander Nisbet (b. 1672, d. 1725), the most celebrated of all the Scotch heraldic authorities.

Among these coats, are those of Aikman, Ainslic, Baillie, Balderston, Birnie, Burden, Campbell, Carstairs, Corser, Craw, Dalziel, Dalmahoy, Drummond, Dunbar, Duncan, Dundas, Edgar, Farquharson, Fleming, Fullerton, Hamilton, Hay, Haig, Hoy, Home, Innes, Kirkpatrick, Lauder, Lithgow, Lockhart, Macgregor, Morison, Murray, Nisbet, Ogilvie, Pollock, Primrose, Pringle, Purves, Row, Scot, Seton, Skene, Somerville, Stewart, Trotter, Watson, Wyllie, Young, Thiosephyrill dealths her between the state of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of the control of th

Letters and Manuscripts of Thomas Jefferson.—Paul Leicester Ford, of 97 Clark Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., being engaged in the preparation of an edition of the writings of Thomas Jefferson, and desiring to make it as complete as possible, requests that any one possessing any of Jefferson's letters or manuscripts will communicate with him. Or if such persons will either loan these to Mr. Ford for a few days, he will guarantee their safe return; or if they will have them copied at his expense, and will enclose a bill, he will most gratefully pay for the copying, and give due credit for such assistance in the work.

THE POETS OF NORTH CAROLINA.—An interesting article with this title by J. D. Cameron, with sketches of the lives of the poets and specimens of their poetry, is the leading article in the November 1890 number of The Lyceum, a monthly magazine published at Asheville, N. C. It is the first of a series of articles on "Southern Fields of Poesy."

County Historical Societies.—Rev. Anson Titus, of Towanda, Penn., has furnished to The American, a literary newspaper published at Philadelphia, an able article showing the advantages which flow from the formation of County Historical Societies in that state. The article appears in the issue of that paper Nov. 29, 1890. He thinks that Town Historical Societies, so common in New England, are best for this section of the country, but that for Pennsylvania and the middle and western states county societies are preferable. The number of such societies in that state is increasing, and they are doing good work in collecting materials for local history. Rev. Mr. Titus's article furnishes excellent suggestions for our people as well as those of Pennsylvania.

Mr. AND Mrs. EDWARD E. SALISBURY of New Haven, Conn., are printing, "privately," and have nearly completed, a book of "Family Histories and VOL. XLV. 9*

Genealogies." It is not a mere collection of names and dates, but a book of family-history, adding to previous information many new facts which have been obtained abroad, as well as in this country. The book will be of great and ever-increasing interest to present and future generations of the families specified, and their allies, and also valuable to genealogists, antiquaries, and specified, and their alies, and also valuable to generalogists, altiquaries, and historians, in general. The work comprises monographs on the families of McCurdy, Mitchell, Lord, Lynde, Digby, Newdigate, Willoughby, Griswold, Wolcott, Pitkin, Ogden, Johnson, Diodati, Lee, and Marvin; with notes, more or less full, on the families of Buchanan, Parmelee, Boardman, Lay, Hoo, Locke, Cole, DeWolf, Drake, Bond, Swayne, Dunbar, and Clarke. The text, indexes, and armorial bearings, accompanied by thirty-one large folded pedigree charts, on bond paper, will be in three volumes, large 4to. The edition is of three hundred copies, of which nearly two-thirds have been sold or otherwise appropriated. Mr. and Mrs. Salisbury will give further information, on application.

GENEALOGIES IN PREPARATION.—Persons of the several names are advised to furnish the compilers of these genealogies with records of their own families and other information which they think may be useful. We would suggest that all facts of interest illustrating family history or character be communicated, especially service under the U.S. government, the holding of other offices. graduation from college or professional schools, occupation, with places and dates of births, marriages, residence and death. When there are more than one christian name they should all be given in full if possible. No initials should be used when the full names are known.

His English pedigree is printed in the REGISTER, vol. 13, pp. 123-4. Persons by the name of Chute and those descended from that family should send in their records early.

NECROLOGY OF THE NEW-ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY.

Prepared by Hamilton Andrews Hill, A.M., Historiographer of the Society.

THE Historiographer would inform the Society, that the sketches prepared for the REGISTER are necessarily brief in consequence of the limited space which can be appropriated. All the facts, however, which can be gathered are retained in the Archives of the Society, and will aid in more extended memoirs for which the "Towne Memorial Fund," the gift of the late William B. Towne, is provided. Four volumes, printed at the charge of this fund, entitled "Memorial Biographies," edited by the Committee on Memorials, have been issued. They contain memoirs of all the members who have died from the organization of the society to the year 1862. A fifth volume is in preparation.

WILLIAM ALVORD BURKE, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., a life member, died at Lowell, May 28, 1887, in his 76th year. He was a son of Benjamin's and Roxana (Alvord) Burke, and was born at Windsor, Vt., July 7, 1811. He was a descendant in the 6th generation from Richard's Burke of Sudbury, Mass., who died about 1693-4, by wife Mary Parmenter; through Richard's and wife Abigail Sawtell; Jonathan's and wife Thankful Wait; Solomon's and wife Keziah Benjamin; and Registration in the state above parents.

and Benjamin, his father above named.

He attended the academy at Windsor, kept by Mr. Josiah Dunham, with the intention of receiving a collegiate education; but in May, 1826, his parents removed to Dunstable, N. H., now the city of Nashua. This with other circumstances led him to give up the intention. William in December of that year entered the machine shop of the Nashua Manufacturing Company as an apprentice to the machine shop of the Nashua Manufacturing Company as an apprentice to the machine shop of the Nashua Manufacturing Company as an apprentice to the machine shop of the Nashua Manufacturing Company as an apprentice to the machine shop of the Nashua Manufacturing Company as an apprentice to the machine shop of the Nashua Manufacturing Company as an apprentice to the machine shop of the Nashua Manufacturing Company as an apprentice to the machine shop of the Nashua Manufacturing Company as an apprentice to the machine shop of the Nashua Manufacturing Company as an apprentice to the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the company and the compan entered the machine shop of the Nashua Manufacturing Collipany as an apprentice to the machinist's trade. After finishing his apprenticeship, he worked at his trade in Nashua,—except a part of the years 1829 and 1830, when he was employed in the machine shop of the Locks and Canals in Lowell,—until January, 1834, when he removed to North Chelmsford, Mass. In this place he had charge of a machine shop owned by Messrs. Ira Gay & Co., of Nashua, N. H., till March, 1836, when he became master mechanic at the Boott Cotton Mills in Lowell. The agent of the mills was Mr. B. F. French. In October, 1839, he removed to Manchester, N. H., and took the agency of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company's machine shop, which had just been erected in that place. He put in operation these works and had direction and charge of them until April, 1845, when he returned to Lowell and became superintendent of the Lowell Machine Shop, a corporation that had just been organized and had purchased the machine shop and some other property of the "Proprietors of Locks and Canals on Merrimack River." He held this situation seventeen years, until April, 1862, when he became the agent of the Boott Cotton Mills of Lowell, Mass. Mr. Burke continued as agent of these mills until 1868, making great alterations and improvements in them, and putting the entire plant on a firm

In 1868 he assumed the treasureship of the Tremont Mills and Suffolk Manufacturing Company, both of Lowell, Mass. He remained here for two years, and in 1870 was elected assistant treasurer of the Great Falls Manufacturing Company, of Great Falls, N. H., and of the Dwight Manufacturing Company, of Chicopee, Mass.; for about six years he devoted his time principally to the remodelling of both these plants. In 1876 Mr. Burke was elected Treasurer of the Lowell Machine Shop, and continued until 1884 to fill the position acceptably, when owing to the infirmities of age he resigned.

Besides the positions mentioned above, Mr. Burke was director in many corporations, and his advice was often sought after in matters relating to their management.

Mr. Burke was twice married: first at Bedford, N. H., June 6th, 1837, to Catherine, daughter of John and Amy (Nevins) French, who died March 7th, 1870, by whom he had children:—1, Ellen Maria (died young); 2, Catherine Elizabeth; 3, William French (died young); 4, Annie Alvord; 5, Edward Nevins. Married second, to Elizabeth Mary Derby, June 4th, 1872, who survives him.

He was admitted a member of this society September 4, 1858. The Burke and Alvord Memorial, published in 1864, was compiled for him by Mr. John A. Boutelle, and was printed at his expense.

J. W. D.

JOHN EGLINGTON BAILEY, F.S.A., was born at Edgbaston, Birmingham, When he was quite young his family removed England, February 13, 1840. into Lancashire, and he was educated at the old Botcler Free Grammar School at Warrington. From an early age he displayed an interest in historical subjects; and, in after years, although actively engaged in business in Manchester during the greater part of the day, Mr. Bailey found time in the evening for an amount of reading and research which enabled him to produce a quantity of work characterized by unusual accuracy and thoroughness. He took an especial interest in the lives of the Lancashire ministers of religion in the 17th century, and probably knew more of that branch of local history than any other writer. Possessed of an excellent library of the literature of the 16th and 17th centuries, archæological works, and local histories, which he knew how to use to advantage, and having formed a valuable collection of manuscripts bearing on the history of Lancashire, Mr. Balley was able to edit four volumes of the "Palatine Note Book" in a manner which may well serve as a model for other periodicals of a similar nature. But the work he will best be remembered by is the "Life of Dr. Thomas Fuller," published in 1874, and now exceedingly scarce; a thick otayo volume of great interest and much originality, which makes the reader regret that its author was not longer spared to continue the work for which he was so eminently fitted. Mr. Bailey was elected a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries of London, 13 January, 1876, and a corresponding member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, May 17, 1883; he was an active member of most of the local antiquarian societies, a not infrequent contributor to periodical literature, and was for several years the Honorary Secretary of the Chetham Society. Declining health, due in a great measure to his indefatigable labors, terminated in his death on the 23rd of August, 1888. (Com.)

Brevet Major-General Adin Ballou Underwood, A.B., a life member, admitted to the Society, Nov. 4, 1865, died at Boston, Mass., January 14, 1888, aged 59. He was the eldest child of Brig.-Gen. Orison and Mrs. Hannah Bond (Cheney) Underwood of Milford, Mass., and was born in that town, May 19, 1828. He was the 8th generation in descent from Joseph¹ Underwood, an early settler of Hingham, Mass., afterwards of Watertown, through Joseph.² Joshua,³ Joseph⁴ and Orison¹ Underwood, his father. When seventeen years old he entered Brown University, where he was graduated in 1849. He studied law first with Hon. Charles R. Train, Framingham, then at the Law School of Harvard University, and then with Judge B. F. Thomas at Worcester, after which, 1852-8, he spent one year in Europe, the summer months at Heidelberg and the winter months at Berlin, attending lectures on jurisprudence. He was admitted to the bar of Worcester County in Nov. 1853, and commenced practice at Milford, and was for a few years associated with H. B. Staples. About 1856, he formed a partnership with Hon. Charles R. Train in Boston, which continued till the war for the preservation of the Union broke out. He then resided in Newton, and was among the most active in encouraging recruiting in that town. In May, 1861, he accepted a commission as Captain in the Second Massachusetts regiment commanded by Col. George H. Gordon, and left the state with this regiment the 8th of July. In 1862, he was commissioned as Major of the 33d regiment, and the same year was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel. In April, 1863, he was commissioned as colonel of the regiment. He commanded it at the battle of Gettysburg. The regiment was soon after transferred to the army of the Cumberland and took part in the battle of Lookout Mountain, where Colonel Underwood was dangerously wounded. his bravery he was raised, Jan. 13, 1863, to the rank of brigadier-general. wounds, which made him a cripple for life, were slow in healing, but on his re-covery he went again into active service, and August 13, 1865, was commissioned as brevet major-general "for meritorious service during the war." He was mustered out July 10, 1866.

On his return from the war he was appointed, in 1866, Surveyor of the Port of Boston, and held the position twenty years till July, 1886. From that time till his death, he devoted himself to the practice of the law in partnership with his son William O. Underwood, and to literary work.

He married at West Newton, June 5, 1856, Miss Jane L. Walker. They had three children:-1, Amy; 2, Anna; 3, William Orison.-J. W. D.

JOHN KIMBALL ROGERS, Esq., of Brookline, a resident member, died in that town January 27, 1888, aged 67. He was a son of Daniel W. and Betsey (Kimball) Rogers, and was born in Gloucester, Mass., January 31, 1821. When a boy he came to Boston and served as a clerk in several establishments. About 1849, he became connected with the Boston Type Foundry as bookkeeper, and in 1852 he assumed its agency. The next year, in connection with Edward Pelouze and David Watson, Jr., he purchased the Foundry, and carried on business under the firm of John K. Rogers & Co. In 1871, the Boston Type Foundry was incorporated and Mr. Rogers made treasurer and agent, which positions he filled till his death. He was "devoted to his business, and it was his continued efforts that brought the type foundry to its present position. A sound business man, thorough in all his methods, he had all the qualifications for material success, while his fondness for literature and for the fine arts displayed a refined taste that brought much enjoyment to himself and to his friends. For three or four years he was selectman of Brookline. In his earlier years Mr. Rogers was an officer of the Boston City Guards. He was admitted

He was admitted to membership in this Society Oct. 7, 1858.

He was twice married; first to Sarah M. Niles, daughter of Thomas Niles, January 31, 1854. She died April 11, 1862. His second wife was Mary P. Thompson, daughter of John Thompson. She survives him with three children of his first wife, Frank, Susan and Sarah M. Rogers.—J. w. D.

Suum Cuique. John Dickinson the Author of the Declaration on Taking up Arms in 1775. By George H. Moore, LL.D. Superintendent of the Lenox Lib-rary. With a fac-simile from the Original Draft. New York: Printed for the Author. 1890. Royal 8vo. pp. 55. Price $1.

" John Dickinson had no superior in the highest rank of the advocates of his country's rights during the period of the Revolution," says Dr. Moore in the work before us, read as a paper before the New York Historical Society, June 6th, 1882.

The main object which Dr. Moore had in view in preparing this paper and in now laying it before his countrymen in print, was to investigate the subject and decide upon the authorship of "A Declaration by the Respresentatives of the United Colonies of North America now met in General Congress at Philadelphia, setting forth the Causes and Necessity of their taking up Arms," reported by a committee of which Dickinson was a member, and adopted by Congress in the summer of 1775. At that time Dickinson was reputed to be its author. The "Declaration" was included in his Political Writings in two volumes published in 1801. Three years later, in asserting his claim to another paper in that collection, Dickinson wrote: "Every one of these writings was composed by me."

For more than half a century, Dickinson enjoyed the undisputed credit of being the sole author. In 1829, the "Memoirs, Correspondence and Private Papers of Thomas Jefferson" were published. In the memoir, which he began writing in 1821, at the age of 77, Jefferson gives the date of his taking his seat in Congress, which was on the 21st of June, 1775. He then adds: "On the 24th a committee which had been appointed to prepare a declaration of the causes of taking up arms, brought in their report (drawn I believe by J. Rutledge) which not being liked, the House recommitted it on the 26th, and added Mr. Dickinson and myself to the committee. I prepared a draught of the Declaration committed to us. It was too strong for Mr. Dickinson. He still retained the hope of reconciliation with the mother country, and was unwilling it should be lessened by offensive statement. He was so honest a man, and so able a one, that he was greatly indulged even by those who could not feel his scruples. We therefore requested him to take the paper, and put it into a form that he could approve. He did so, preparing an entire new statement and preserving of the former only the LAST FOUR PARAGRAPHS AND HALF OF THE PRECEDING ONE. approved and reported it to Congress who accepted it." For another half a century—till 1882 when Dr. Moore read his paper—this later statement was received as true. In the work before us the author examines the question as to the authorship of this document. With his usual thoroughness, Dr. Moore brings together a mass of facts bearing upon the question. After reading the evidence produced in these pages, it seems obvious to me that Dickinson was the sole author of the production, and that the claim of Jefferson is preposterous. final evidence, Dr. Moore, when he read his paper before the New York Historical Society, produced the original manuscript of the "Declaration" in Dickinson's own handwriting, which had been preserved in the archives of that society. Upon this he remarks:

"I am well aware of the danger of attempting to determine the authorship of a paper, intended for the public, from the handwriting in which the manuscript appears—unless the proofs are patent that it came from him whose thoughts and expressions it records. In this case there is no room whatever for doubt. The suggestion of imitation or forgery is excluded. No person but the author himself ever had any hand in the preparation of this document. It is in the handwriting of John Dickinson, and these corrections, additions, interlineations, revisions, in number, extent, position and character, forbid the supposition that he copied any portion of this paper from a draft by Mr. Jefferson, or any other person. It is the original first draft of the whole, and the proof of it is in no portion of the whole more conspicuous and certain than in the 'last four paragraphs and half of the preceding one' claimed as his own by Jefferson—in his old age—and accorded to him without doubt or hesitation ever since." A reduced fac-simile, by Bierstadt, of the manuscript is appended to Dr. Moore's

Mr. Dickinson's fame as a patriot and an author is ably vindicated in these pages. As the author of the "Farmer's Letters," the "Liberty Song," and other writings, he won a high reputation in Revolutionary times; and Dr. Moore's paper shows that it was well deserved.

A valuable Appendix is added.

Economic and Social History of New England, 1620-1789. By WILLIAM B. WEEDEN. In two volumes. Boston and New York: Houghton, Mifflin and Company, The Riverside Press, Cambridge. 1890. 2 vols. Crown 8vo. Vol. I. pp. xv.+447; Vol. II. pp. xiv.+517. Price $4.50.

We were aware that Mr. Weeden had devoted years of patient research to the preparation of his Economic and Social History of New England, but until we saw it in print we had no adequate appreciation of its extraordinary value and importance. It is a mine of information, an encyclopedia of facts and statistics essential to a proper understanding of the commercial and social life of New England from 1620 to 1789, and includes in its wide range many subjects that have either been strangely neglected by other writers, or are found only in fragmentary form in many different volumes. As we read the chapters on the Formation of the Community and the Opening of Commerce, we were impressed with the author's happy treatment of these themes, and with his historical scholarship. Had there been nothing else of merit in the work we should have commended it, because of these chapters, but as we read further and found that these were but samples of others of equal or even greater value, we awoke to a realizing sense of what Mr. Weeden has done for American history. The chapters relating to the British and colonial attempts to regulate trade to the New-England currency, and to the commerce at different epochs, are entitled to special mention. Mr. Weeden indulges in no glittering generalities, but cites his authorities, and in commercial matters often takes his facts from the record books of the merchants of the period. We have reviewed many historical works, and for the first time remark that the subject of the notice is indispensable to a well-equipped library. There is a good index and the volumes are printed in the best manner.

The Dates of Variously-shaped Shields, with coincident Dates and Examples. By George Grazebrook, F.S.A. Liverpool: Printed for Private Circulation. 1890. Crown 8vo. pp. 92.

This book is an enlargement of a paper read before the Historic Society of Lancashire and Cheshire.

The line of inquiry in this book has never before been attempted. The author is a proficient in the history of Seals, the result of forty years' study and research; and he has nearly completed for publication an elaborate "Corpus Sigillorum," which will "bring together in one view a large number of English Seals of each century for the eye to rest upon and so to comprehend the various styles at different dates."

"It seems desirable," says the author in his preface, "that a classified body of such knowledge should be drawn up and available—enabling us to date with some certainty (within the limit of a few years) seals pendant to undated charters, stone carvings on ancient buildings, and illustrations in MSS., which are now labelled 'circa.'" The volume before us, though small in size, contains the essence of his long and laborious research. In it "each century from the eleventh to the fifteenth is separately dealt with. After that date," the author states, "the nomenclature of shields devised by my friend, Mr. J. Paul Rylands, F.S.A., is followed, and the earliest and latest examples found of each shape adduced—thus showing the range of time when the variety was most commonly in use. References are given for every statement. Mantlings, torces, wreaths, palm branches and other adjuncts are discussed under their several headings—with descriptions and dates of any varieties found." This book will be useful to antiquaries, who will find here aids to research which are nowhere else to be obtained. The book has a good index.

We take this opportunity to call attention to the larger work of the author, his "Corpus Sigillorum," and to advise our readers to send in their subscriptions at once, so that he may be able to put it to press at an early date. The price to subscribers will be thirty shillings. It will form a bulky volume, and it will require a large list of subscribers to cover the expense. We quote from the prospectus:

"What the author contemplates would show perhaps fifty selected characteristic seals for each century from the eleventh to the seventeenth, displayed in order of date. So large a number would not be needed at the earliest or latest dates, but for some of the periods a greater number ought to be given. Students now get together such collections in tracings and drawings—as the labor of years; and it is feared very few have perseverance enough to carry out fully their aim; but without such exact data conclusions must be guess-work." Mr. Grazebrook has such a collection for his own use, and knows from experience what a great advantage it is.

"This proposed well-illustrated book would not only be most valuable and "This proposed well-illustrated book would not only be most valuable and instructive to the antiquary, it would also possess a far wider and general interest, because these are the highest specimens of Art remaining to us of the early times in which they were made. Seals at all dates are the results of the greatest skill and care to be procured, according to the owner's means; and many of them are masterpieces, both of design and execution. "Such a pictured History of Art could not fail to be interesting and attractive to many who would not care to study the subject from a strictly antiquarian point of view. This large collection of engravings would be accompanied by explanations giving an account of most of the seals, the origin of their decorations, and other particulars involving a considerable amount of genealogical research."

Mr. Grazebrook's address is, "Oak Hill Park, near Liverpool, England."

The Antiquities of the State of Ohio. Full and Accurate Descriptions of the Works of the Mound Builders; Defensive and Sacred Inclosures; Mounds, Cemeteries, and Tombs, and their Contents; Implements, Ornaments, Sculptures, etc. Illustrated with maps, plans, views and relics. By Henry A. Shepherd. Cincinnati: Robert Clarke & Co. 1890. 4to. Cloth. pp. 139. Price $2.00.

This reprint, from the popular History of the State of Ohio, by the Hon. Henry A. Shepherd, is chiefly a description of the wonderful ancient remains within the limits of that great state, concerning whose builders history is silent, even to their names. Each of the six chapters is devoted solely to the description of a single class of these works. Following the dictum of the wise and philosophic Warburton, that "human nature will, under the same circumstances, without any help, exhibit the same appearances," each chapter concludes with a few brief remarks upon the purposes and objects of these constructions, commonly accepted among archeologists. No absolute conclusions are asserted. In our baffled ignorance, it alone appears clear that vast labors were expended, which must have required a steady and plentiful subsistence, which only an extensive and productive agriculture could have maintained. which only an extensive and productive agriculture could have many manufacture. That all this was possible without a considerable attainment in civilization seems incredible. These are not the public works of primitive savages. They evidence skill and no low order of rude intelligence. The gratitude of scholars is due the careful and competent author who, here, places upon record, with illustrative maps, plans and views, the condition of these mounds in the present generation. All interested in ethnological or archæological studies will find in this volume one of the most important repositories of American contribution.

Southern Historical Society Papers. Vol. XVII. Edited by R. A. Brock, Secretary of the Southern Historical Society. Richmond, Va.: Published by the Society. 1889. 8vo. pp. 441.

This collection of the Southern Historical Society is so largely devoted to the ceremonies attendant upon the erection of the monument to General Lee that it is called "Lee Monument Memorial Volume." Besides placing upon record the entire history of the inception, execution and dedication of the Lee monument, the volume opens with the address last November before the annual meeting of the Southern Surgical and Gynæcological Association, by its President, Dr. Hunter McGuire, LL.D., who served during the war as the medical director of the 2d (Stonewall Jackson) Corps of the Army of Northern Virginia. This is followed by the address before the Survivors' Association of Confederate Surgeons, at Columbia, S. C., also last November, by Dr. Peyre Porcher, A.B. A very valuable and interesting paper upon the Race Problem at the South, delivered at the National Cemetery, at Memphis, on Memorial Day, 1889, will attract attention by its boldness. Other addresses upon subjects of historical interest at the South, with lists of Confederate garrisons placed under fire, on Morris Island, in 1864, a roster of surviving general officers of the Confederate Army, and a copious index complete a volume, pregnant with matter otherwise unattainable, and indispensable to the correct appreciation of events, of which they were part and parcel.

Index to Davy's Suffolk Collections. By George Gatfield of the British Museum. 8vo. pp. 33.

Davy's Suffolk Collections in the British Museum have long been known to genealogists, and Mr. Gatfield has done a good service in preparing this index genealogists, and Mr. Gatheld has done a good service in preparing this index of them. The manuscripts, he informs us, are arranged alphabetically and make forty-three volumes. They are among the "Additional Manuscripts," and are numbered 19,114 to 19,156. They were compiled by David Elisha Davy, and consist of pedigrees of Suffolk families and of families connected with that county, with genealogical and biographical notes. As many of our New-England emigrants came from Suffolk, the book will be of much assistance to American genealogists in their researches.

Aryan Sun-Myths the Origin of Religions. By Sarah E. Titcomb, Author of "Early New England People," etc. With an Introduction by Charles Morris, Author of "The Aryan Race," etc. Boston: Published by the Author, 83 Pinckney Street. 12mo. pp. 192, with Appendix and Notes. In cloth, price $1.25.

Here is a very ingenious and apparently successful attempt to prove the close similarity of the traditions of the ancient religions of Asia and other parts of the Old and New Worlds, with the doctrines and incidents of the Christian religion. One hundred and twenty-eight different authorities have been consulted, on a great variety of subjects, including works on the religions of India, China, Persia, Phœnicia, Carthage, Babylon, Egypt, Ancient Greece, the Indians of the American continent, and many others in which many of the institutions and traditions of the Old Testament and some of the New Testament are shown to have existed in a somewhat modified way in the other oriental faiths. The author has shown much industry and research in her work, which makes a very interesting and readable volume.

The Congregational Year Book, 1890. Issued under the Sanction of the National Council of the Congregational Churches of the United States, by its Publishing Committee. Boston: Congregational Sunday School and Publishing Society. 1890. 8vo. pp. 484. Price $1. To be purchased of Rev. H. A. Hazen, Congregational Library, 1 Somerset St., Boston, Mass.

The editor of this work is the Rev. Henry A. Hazen, who has had charge of the annual issues for several years. It seems to us by far the best of the Year Books issued by the various religious denominations in the United States. It contains, as stated in a lengthy title-page, "The General Statistics" of the Congregational Churches in the United States "for the last previous year; an alphabetical list of the Congregational ministers, and of the officers and students of Congregational theological seminaries; the annual record of changes; the vital statistics of Congregational ministers deceased in 1889; statements of the National co-operative societies; the National and State organizations of Churches; and other miscellaneous information."

This volume is larger than previous issues, as it contains the quinquennial statistics of the denomination. The National Council recommended in 1877 that these statistics should be collected every five years, but this is the first time that they have been printed. They add to the value of the book. A section in the volume which will be found very convenient, is an alphabetical list of Congregational ministers who have died in the last thirty-six years, from 1854 to 1889 inclusive, being an index to the annual obituaries published in the Congregational Quarterly and in the several year-books.

Rev. Mr. Hazen, the editor of this volume, is the secretary of the National Council of the Congregational Churches of the United States, under whose auspices the book has been prepared and issued. He has done his work faithfully.

New Amsterdam, New Orange, New York, with chronological data. By Charles W. Darling, Corresponding Secretary of the Oneida Historical Society, N. Y. Privately printed. 1889. 8vo. pp. 43.

This monograph is disappointing because it is too short. It will, however, stimulate interest (one of the best results wrought by a good writer) in regard to the history of the period treated of, and lead to further study and research.

The author's "Notes" (as he modestly calls them) "embrace the years between the discovery of this land by Hudson in 1609 and the recall of Gov.

Wouter Van Twiller in 1637."

It is interesting to observe that in 1626 Gov. Minuit purchased from the Indians the entire island of Manhattan, for the value of 60 guilders, or about $24. of our present currency. The Colony retained its name of New Amsterdam until the war between England and Holland in 1673, when a Dutch fleet recaptured it, and the officers named it New Orange, in compliment to the Prince of Orange. It retained this name but a short time, for, in 1674, a treaty was concluded between England and Holland, and the English gave it the name of New York.

The government of the Colony was vested in a Governor and Council.

It had almost unlimited power, for in it were combined the legislative, executive, and judicial authority. The people lived in a walled town, or rather fortified camp, and strict military rule was observed.

Money, or at least money in our use of the term, was scarce in the colony. The government officers were paid in "Seawant," or beavers, e.g., owners of large vessels paid annually to the city "one beaver" for the privilege of anchoring in the harbor during the winter. This seawant, or seawan, was the name of Indian money. "It was called also wampum, and consisted of beads formed of the shells of shell-fish. It was of two colors, the black being considered double the value of the white. Its current value was six beads of the white, by three of the black, for an English penny." The following proclamation of Gov. Lovelace, issued Dec. 10, 1672, is a document too curious to be Majesty's Commands, who enjoynes all his subjects, in their distinct colonyes, to enter into a strict Allyance and Correspondence with each other, as likewise for the advancement of Negotiation, Trade, and Civil Commerce, and for a more speedy Intelligence and Dispatch of affayres, that a messenger or Post bee authorised to sett forth from this City of New Yorke, monthly, and thence to travaile to Boston, from whence within that month hee shall returne againe to this City. The Original Mother Goose's Melody as First issued by John Newbery of London, about A.D. 1760. Reproduced in fac-simile from the edition as reprinted by Isaiah Thomas of Worcester, Mass., about A.D. 1785. With Introductory Notes. By William H. Whitmore. Albany: Joel Munsell's Sons. 1889. Small 8vo. pp. 18+23.

"Few books in the English language," says Mr. Whitmore in his preface, "have had so great and persistent circulation as the collection of Nursery Rhymes known as Mother Goose's Melody. In presenting a reprint of the earliest known edition, some bibliographical notes may be in place. According to my present knowledge, I feel sure that the original name is merely a translation from the French; that the collection was first made for and by John Newbery of London about A.D. 1760; and that the great popularity of the book is due to the Boston editions of Munroe and Francis A.D. 1824–1860."

In the REGISTER for 1873 (pp. 144-6; 311-15) are several articles on the authorship of Mother Goose's Melodies. In the first article Mr. Whitmore gives excellent reasons for disbelieving the story that the name Mother Goose is of New England origin.

In the pamphlet before us are collected an array of facts relating to the book and the name. Mr. Whitmore does not find the name Mother Goose in American nor in English literature at a very early date; but he finds its equivalent to be of considerable antiquity in the French language, "la Mère Oye" being found in a poem bearing date 1650. The popularity of the name, however, dates from the publication, in 1697, of the nursery tales by Charles Perrault, entitled "Histoires ou Contes du Tems Passé," also styled "Contes de ma mère l'oye." This work seems to have been translated into English by Robert Samber, and published as "Tales of Passed Times by Mother Goose" as early as 1729, perhaps earlier.

John Newbery, the London bookseller, who died in 1767, famous as the publisher of little story books for children, issued one or more editions of Mother Goose's Tales. It has not definitely been ascertained when the title "Mother Goose's Melody" was first used, but Mr. Whitmore thinks it originated with Newbery. Reasons are given for believing that he was the original publisher of "Mother Goose's Melody or Sonnets for the Cradle," of which, though none of the early English editions are known to be extant, Mr. Whitmore has found an American reprint of about 1785. This he reproduces in fac-simile in this pamphlet. Oliver Goldsmith was a writer for Newbery, and Mr. Whitmore suggests the possibility that this famous "Melody" was his work.

electrotype process, and the reader has before him an exact fac-simile of it, with all its curious wood cuts.

Mr. Whitmore would be pleased to hear from those who have English copies of the book, or early copies of the editions published by Munroe and Francis. .

The Lutheran Movement in England during the Reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI., and its Literary Monuments. By HENRY EYSTER JACOBS, D.D., Norton Professor of Systematic Theology in the Theological Seminary of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Philadelphia, etc. etc. Philadelphia: G. W. Frederick. 1890. 8vo. pp. 376. Price §2.

The principal purpose of this book, as the preface declares, is "to promote a thorough understanding of the historical relation of the Lutheran Church to the various English-speaking communions in this country, whose course has been influenced by the history of the Church in England during the sixteenth century." This purpose is a most laudable one; and, as the author remarks, "it is surprising that a book filling this place has not appeared before." In view of the recent appearance of the German Lutheran Church of the Northwest as a compact power cooperating with the German Catholics in opposition to the exclusive teaching of the English language in the public schools, this work of Dr. Jacobs may be regarded as a book for the times, since it emphasizes the fact that Lutheranism is not German any more that it is English, or Scotch, or Dutch, or Hungarian.

The Lutheran Church in the United States now numbers between four and five millions of members, including more than a million communicants, and it is growing with great rapidity in all the elements of denominational power. In spite of all that some short-sighted Lutherans of German extraction have done to make it a German Church distinctively, the English language has already been adopted by many Lutheran congregations, and this revolution in language will steadily go forward. "As the various nationalities which its adherents represent, merge in one American nationality, so their various languages," as Dr. Jacobs foresees, will sooner or later be "laid aside for the common language of the country." And this book will hasten the movement. In another guage of the country." And this book will hasten the movement. In another aspect also it is a book for the times. In view of the impulse toward Christian unity now felt among different denominations of English-speaking Protestants, unity now felt among different denominations of English-speaking Protestants, Dr. Jacobs has done well to recall the discussions which took place in the times of the Tudors, with reference to a union of the Lutheran and Anglican Churches. When the proposals for unity, which the bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church put forth at Chicago in 1886, were presented to the Southern Synod of the Lutheran Church, the latter replied that it was ready to resume the negotiation for the union of the two Churches at the point where it was broken off in the reign of Henry VIII. Perhaps the mainspring of the movement, in 1535, was Queen Anne Boleyn, though Thomas Cromwell, Archbishop Cranmer and several other prelates, favored it; but Henry's ambition to be a sort of Grand Caliph of the united Churches was too much for the Lutherans to gratify; and the judicial murder of that queen in 1536 excited such horror and disgust for the royal ruffian that the movement failed. It may be renewed disgust for the royal ruffian that the movement failed. It may be renewed with better success now, both these churches being in this country free from any entangling alliance with the state. The great indebtedness of the English-speaking world to Luther and Lutheranism for the English Bible, the Book of Common Prayer, and very much of its early religious literature, is well and elaborately set forth in this volume. We have noticed several minor errors. which, when a second edition appears, should be corrected. For example, it was not "the bishop of London" (page 3), but Longland, bishop of Lincoln, which then included Oxford, who caused the arrest of so many Lollards in 1521. Again: Edward the Sixth was not regarded by Roman Catholics as "a usurper," page 191. Again: the year 1621 is ten years too early for the birth of William Tyndale, according to Bosse and Demaus, and eight years too late, according to Benjamin W. Greenfield, F.S.A.

The elegant illustrations and careful descriptions in this volume give the date a feeling of personal acquaintance with the peaceful people who inhabited the Cumberland Valley perhaps four or five hundred years ago. A cordon of forts and outworks protected the group of well-peopled villages where considerable progress had been made in the development of civilization before the red Indian of the historical period overran the country. The author traces a relationship and considerable commercial intimacy between these early settlers of Tennessee and the mound-builders of the West, and shows a likeness between their civilization and that of Mexico and Peru. Plans are given showing the general outlines of their towns and houses and graves. In the latter, which are curious stone boxes constructed with great skill, have been found, both in stone and pottery, their cradles, bowls, pipes, toys and ornaments, their ancestral statues, their weapons, the tools of their trades, and utensils of their religious ceremonial.

Abraham Lincoln's Pen and Voice, being a Complete Compilation of his Letters, Ciril, Political and Military. Also his Public Addresses, Messages to Congress, Inaugurals and others, as well as Proclamations upon Various Public Concerns, showing him to have been the greatest Constitutional Student of the Age, and the Noblest Pattern for Future Generations America has ever known. Col. Van Buren has chosen an appropriate title for his attempt to let the great President tell the story of his own public life from his nomination to the presidency to the hour of his assassination, for the whole book was spoken or written by Mr. Lincoln. It is, in effect, a treatise on the War of the Rebellion, for in it the motives of the rebels and the patriots, their principles of action, their modes of thought, their resources and their conduct are explained by the man who best understood them all. It is as good an introduction as can be found to the study of the details of the war. It has a value equivalent to a history of the American Revolution by George Washington or of the English Commonwealth by Oliver Cromwell. The glory of soul and mind that shine from all its pages is Mr. Lincoln's; to the editor belongs the honor of such implicit faith in his hero that he does not fear to present him to the most crucial test,—to let him be judged by his own words. Criticism of such a book would be presumptuous.

The Constitution of the Society of Sons of the Revolution and By-Laws of the Pennsylvania Society. Instituted April 3, 1888. Philadelphia. 1890. 8vo. pp. 42.

It is gratifying to notice that societies like this and kindred societies are formed from time to time to do work along lines similar to those laid down by the New-England Historic Genealogical Society and other historical societies, for not only preserving and collating such historical matter as is easily accessible, but, also, as far as possible, of searching for and bringing out new facts bearing upon the history of our country, gathering and arranging data which will throw additional light upon the past. The original sources from which information may be obtained are liable—through carelessness, accident, or the lapse of time—to become destroyed.

The object of this Society, as set forth in its constitution and by-laws, is an

As the title indicates, it proposes to take for its special study admirable one. and research the period of the Revolution, and it has for its praiseworthy object the purpose of perpetuating "the memory of the men, who, in the military, naval and civil service of the Colonies and of the Continental Congress, by their acts as counsel, achieved the Independence of the country, and to further the proper celebration of the anniversaries of the birthday of Washington and of prominent events connected with the war of the Revolution; to collect and secure for preservation the rolls, records and other documents relating to that period."

Male descendants of any one who served faithfully in the military or naval service under the authority of any of the thirteen Colonies or of the Continental Congress, or a descendant of one of the signers of the Declaration of Inde-pendence, or of any member of the Continental Congress or of the Congress of any of the Colonies or States, or as an official appointed by or under the authority of any such legislative bodies, actually assisted in the establishment of American Independence by services rendered during the war of the Revolution, are eligible to membership in the Society.

There is a general Society with its board of officers. It also intends to include such branch societies from the different States as may desire admission. The name of John Woolf Jordan (the donor of this pamphlet to our Society) appears in it as the Registrar of the Pennsylvania Society.

We wish the Society and its branches every success.

Memoirs of John Bannister Gibson, Late Chief Justice of Pennsylvania. By THOMAS P. ROBERTS. With Hon. Jeremiah S. Black's Eulogy; Notes from Hon. William A. Porter's Essay upon his Life and Character, etc. etc. Pittsburgh: Joseph Eichbaum & Co. 1890. 8vo. pp. 247.

Chief Justice Gibson, to whose memoirs this volume is devoted, was born in a house still standing in Perry county, Pa., Nov. 8, 1780, and died at Philadelphia, May 3, 1853. He was a student at Dickinson College, but probably did not graduate. He was admitted to the bar of Cumberland county in 1803, and began practice at Carlisle, which was his residence for the greater portion of his life. In 1813 he was appointed a district judge, in 1816 he was promoted to the Supreme Court, and in 1827 was made chief justice of the state.

Mr. Roberts, his biographer, is a native of Carlisle, and has distinguished himself in a different calling. In the volume before us he first presents to us the incidents in the private life of Judge Gibson, with a history of his ancestors and kindred, who were prominent in Pennsylvania history. This chapter is very interesting. Not being bred to the law himself, Mr. Roberts prefers to let those who were tell the story of his life at the bar and on the bench. This is done by Chief Justice Jeremiah S. Black, in his eulogy delivered at Harrisburg, in May, 1853, in the proceedings of the Supreme Court on the death of Judge Gibson, which are here printed in full. Selections from an essay by Judge William A. Porter on Judge Gibson's life and writings, present to us his character "as a Lawyer, a Legislator and a Judge." Tributes from other speakers and writers also appear in these pages. An appendix contains other interesting and valuable matter. The book is well printed and is illustrated by engravings, two of which are portraits of Judge Gibson. It has an index.

Illustrated Americana, 1493-1889. Articles read to the American Antiquarian Society. By James F. Hunnewell. Reprinted for the Author from the Proceedings of the American Antiquarian Society. 1890. Sm. 4to. pp. 37. copies printed.

Some of Mr. Hunnewell's previous works have been noticed in the REGISTER, among them "The Lands of Scott," "The Historical Monuments of France," "The Imperial Island," and "A Century of Town Life." In the present work he gives an account of illustrated books on America. "Along with examples of nearly all styles and qualities of engraving," says the author, these books "show us an even greater variety of what has been learned or imagined about the western hemisphere. the western hemisphere. Maps, which are very numerous, form a class by themselves, as in later times do almost countless wood cuts. Before 1590 the latter were, however, about the only sort of engravings relating to the New World."

Mr. Hunnewell divides his work into two parts, the first devoted to Illustrated Americana from 1493 to 1624, and the second to such books as have appeared since 1600; in other words, those printed since the English settlement of this country

The bibliography of illustrated books on America here presented, has been compiled with much labor and care. The reader will obtain from it clear and definite information on the subject. The book makes a handsome volume, and is illustrated with a fine portrait of Columbus from De Bry.

Transactions of the Kansas State Historical Society, embracing the Fifth and Sixth Biennial Reports, 1886-1888. Compiled by F. G. Adams, Secretary. Vol. IV. Topeka: Kansas Publishing House, Clifford C. Baker, State Printer. 1890. 8vo. pp. 319.

This young historical society shows evidence of activity and vigor. The bulky volume before us contains the fifth and sixth biennial reports of the proceedings of the Society. Much valuable matter relating to the history of Kansas is preserved in the annual addresses of the presidents and in the reports of the as preserved in the annual addresses of the preserved and in the repeated several officers here printed. About half the volume is devoted to "copies of official papers during a portion of the administration of Governor Wilson Shannon, 1856, and the Executive Minutes of Governor John W. Geary, during his administration beginning September 9, 1856, and ending March 10, 1857."
These papers have been gathered by the secretary of the Society, the Hon.
Franklin G. Adams, from Congressional documents, and will be found of great use to students of the history of Kansas. A chronological index to these papers fills eleven closely printed pages. A very full alphabetical index to the volume fills thirty pages.

The book makes a handsome volume. It does credit to the Society and secretary Adams.

The Presentation of Flags to the Schools of Portsmouth, N. H., October 9th, 1890. by Storer Post No. 1, Grand Army of the Republic, Department of New Hampshire. With an Appendix relating to the Whipple and Farragut Schools. Portsmouth, N. H.: Printed by the Times Publishing Company. 1890. 8vo. pp. 36. Price 50 cts. Address Paymaster Joseph Foster, U.S.N., 26 Middle St., Portsmouth, N. H.

The proceedings at the presentation of flags last October to the Portsmouth schools were very interesting, and were calculated to inspire patriotic feelings among the scholars of those schools. They have been prepared for publication by Paymaster Foster, and are printed in the pamphlet before us.

The Appendix contains considerable genealogical information as to the ancestors and kindred of Gen. William Whipple, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, with a sketch of his life. A biographical sketch of Admiral David G. Farragut, and other valuable matter, are also to be found in the pamphlet.

The Northern Boundary of Massachusetts in its Relation to New Hampshire. By Samuel A. Green, M.D. Cambridge: John Wilson & Son, University Press. 1890. 8vo. pp. 23.

Remarks on an Early File of the Boston News-Letter made before the Massachusetts Historical Society. With a Letter by Thomas Jefferson. By SAMUEL ABBOTT GREEN, M.D. 8vo. pp. 7.

We have before us two recent pamphlets by Dr. Green.

The first is "a part of the Council's Report made to the American Antiquarian Society, at Worcester, on October 21, 1890," and is reprinted from the Proceedings of that Society. It gives a history of the disputes concerning the boundary line between New Hampshire and Massachusetts, which began very early after

The second pamphlet is a reprint from the Proceedings of the Massachusetts Historical Society. The file of early News-Letters of which an account is given once belonged to Chief Justice Samuel Sewall, and is now the property of the New York Historical Society. It begins April 24, 1704, and ends April 19, 1708. The value of this file is increased by the contemporary broadsides which have heen bound up with it, and the marginal notes by Judge Sewall. Dr. Green describes the several broadsides, The letter on Jefferson is on business, and is dated August 5, 1817.

Wells Wills, Arranged in Parishes and Annotated. By Frederic William Weaver, M.A. London: Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner & Co., Ltd. 1890. 8vo. pp. xii.+234.

The editor of this work is an experienced antiquary. He is the editor, for the county of Somerset, of the "Somerset and Dorset Notes and Queries." His "Somerset Incumbents" was commended by us in April, 1889. He is also the editor of "Visitations of the Counties of Somerset and Hereford."

The volume before us contains abstracts of the Wills in the first two books of Wills at the District Probate Register, Wells, England. About six hundred wills are recorded in those two volumes, and abstracts of all of them are here given. The dates run from the year 1528 to 1536, though a few of the wills bear earlier dates.

There are some new features of the work which will commend it to those for whose use it is prepared. The different parishes are alphabetically arranged, and under each parish the wills of the testators who resided in that parish are printed. This must have caused no little labor to the editor, but the advantages of this arrangement will repay him for it. Prefixed is a table showing "The Saints and Services of North and West Somerset as seen in the Devotions of the several Parishes."

The preface contains much interesting information relating to church services in Pre-Reformation times, while numerous marginal annotations explain and illustrate the text. The whole book is fully indexed, there being Index Rerusa in addition to the usual Index Nominum. The Rev. Mr. Weaver deserves much credit for the excellent manner in which he has performed his editorial

The book is handsomely printed on fine white paper.

Index to the First Volume of the Parish Registers of Gainford in the County of Durham. Part III. Burials 1569-1784. London: Elliot Stock, 62 Pater-noster Row, E. C. 1890. 8vo. pp. 140. Price six shillings.

In July last we noticed Parts I. and II. of the work before us, containing an index to the baptisms and marriages in the oldest Volume of the Parish Registers of Gainford. Part III. just issued contains an index to burials there recorded, and completes the work. The registers of baptisms, marriages and burials for the parish of Gainford form thirteen volumes and preserve a continuous record from 1569 to our own day. The present publication contains an index to the first volume only, but a manuscript index of six later volumes to the year 1837 on the same plan as that here printed has been made by the same compiler.

To the Rev. Joseph Edleston, LL.D., the vicar of Gainford, who has borne the expense of printing these volumes, and to the editor for the labor, taste and judgment bestowed upon them, the thanks of genealogists and antiquaries are due.

A volume is now in preparation which will contain complete copies of the Monumental Inscriptions in Gainford Church and Churchyard. It will make a fit companion to the three volumes devoted to the Parish Registers.

Proceedings of the Rhode Island Historical Society, 1889-90. Providence: Printed for the Society. 1890. 8vo. pp. 126.

The Rhode Island Historical Society. Sketch of its History with a List of Papers read at its Stated Meetings. Providence: Printed for the Society by Snow & Farnham. 1890. 8vo. pp. 37.

The first of these two pamphlets contains the Proceedings of the Society for the year 1889. This series of pamphlets was begun in 1872, and since then they have been printed annually, the present being the eighteenth issue. It contains a full report of the proceedings at the annual meeting, with the able address of the president, Gen. Horatio Rogers; a history of the society by the secretary; the annual necrology; a list of donors, and other articles. It shows that the year 1889 was an active and prosperous one for the society, though it had to mourn the loss of its learned president and benefactor, Prof. William Gammell, LL.D.

The next pamphlet is a reprint from the preceding. It gives a brief history of the Rhode Island Historical Society, prepared by the secretary Amos Perry, LL.D. The society was formed in June, 1822, and was the fourth state historical society organized in the United States, the Massachusets Historical Society, formed in 1790, being the first; the New York Historical Society, formed in 1804, the second; and the Maine Historical Society, formed in April, 1822, the third. The society has been an efficient instrument in collecting, printing and otherwise preserving materials for the history of the State. It has issued seven octavo volumes of Collections filled with rare and valuable historical matter, the first having been printed in 1827, and the last in 1885. It has also printed its Proceedings annually for the last eighteen years. Besides this it has printed a variety of miscellaneous documents, such as addresses, reports, circulars, etc. Dr. Perry has appended to his History, a chronological list of papers and lectures read at the stated meetings of the society from Nov. 18, 1835, to Dec. 31, 1889. There are 343 different papers in this list, read or written by 164 different persons at 314 different meetings held within a period of fifty-six years. The pamphlet is carefully compiled and gives much interesting information relative to the work of the society.

We continue in this number our quarterly notices of recently published works relating to genealogy.

The first book on our list, "Genealogical Memoranda of the Family of Ames," is a large and elegant volume, handsomely printed on heavy white paper and profusely illustrated with portraits and views. It shows how much can be done by research, good judgment and taste, and ample means, to preserve in an artistic manner the memorials of a family. The volume seems to be intended to preserve in print the ancestry of the author and his brothers and sisters, and a record of various families from which they are descended or to which they are allied. The illustrations are of a high order of merit, and quite a number of historic personages are among the portraits. One folding pedigree is that of the descendants of Matthew Ames of Doulting, Somerset, who lived in the seventeenth century and is the ancestor of the author; and another gives thirty-two lineal ascents of the author for five generations. The author is a descendant of President Charles Chauncy of Harvard College, and a very full tabular pedigree of the Chauncy family is given. There are also pedigrees of Mauduit, Mortimer, Gouge and other families. Many wills, diaries and other documents illustrate the work.

The next book, on the Bigelow family, is a bulky volume containing a very full genealogy of the descendants or John Bigelow of Watertown, Mass. The author seems to have made his research with great thoroughness, and has collected the records of about five thousand persons descended from the immigrant. The material is well arranged. The dates of births, marriages and deaths are full and precise. Much biographical matter has also been obtained. The book is embellished with sixteen portraits. Indexes of heads of families and of other surnames that occur in the volumes are given. The author has done a good service to his kindred.

The book on the Breck family, by Gen. Breck, is devoted to the descendants of the immigrants Edward and Thomas Breck, who settled at Dorchester, Mass., in the middle of the seventeenth century. The book is divided into two parts. The first part contains the posterity of Edward, and is called by the author the Dorchester Branch. Part second gives the descendants of Thomas, whose only known son, Thomas, settled at Sherborn, and this is therefore called by Gen. Breck the Sherborn Branch. The family seems to have been thoroughly traced. Much biographical matter is given and numerous portraits are printed in the text. There is an "Appendix of additional biographical and historical matter, obituary notices, letters, etc., and armorial bearings." The author has produced a valuable book. A complete index is given.

The next book contains memoirs of two brothers, Hon. Matthew and Dr. Gerardus Clarkson, prominent citizens of Philadelphia in the last century. Each memoir is written by a great-grandson. The lives of these brothers included the whole period of the Revolutionary war, of which both were supporters, the elder having rendered military service as an officer in it. He was for several years mayor of Philadelphia. Much illustrating the history of Pennsylvania is preserved in the pages. A considerable portion of the work is devoted to the ancestry and descendants of these men. The authors have done a service to the public by giving them this memorial of their ancestors and kindred. The volume is handsomely printed on thick white paper, and is embellished with twelve fine engravings, consisting of portraits, views of buildings, etc.

The book on the Fisher family gives the descendants of Joseph Fisher, born April, 1734, a native of Saxony, who emigrated to this country at an early age, and settled in New Jersey. In 1788 he removed to Northumberland County, Pa. The volume is compiled by Clarence W. Fisher of Mechanicsville, N. Y. The Fisher Family fills 146 pages, the rest of the book being devoted to the other families named on the title-page. Mr. Fisher has succeeded in gathering a full account of the descendants of his immigrant ancestor, with much biographical matter relating to the members of the family. It is carefully arranged on the Register Plan, and is handsomely printed, with twenty illustrations, consisting of portraits, views of residences, etc. Fac-similes of two family records are given.

The book on the Torrey family is by Mr. Dolphus Torrey of New York city. Four brothers, William, James, Philip and Joseph Torrey, sons of Philip and grandsons of William Torrey of Combe St. Nicholas, co. Somerset, England, were among the early emigrants to New England. William settled at Weymouth, James at Scituate, Philip at Roxbury, and Joseph at Rehoboth. From them a numerous progeny has proceeded. A full genealogy is not attempted. What we have here are "genealogical notes showing the paternal line of descent from William Torrey of Combe St. Nicholas, Somerset County, England, A.D. 1557, to Abner Torrey of Weymouth, Massachusetts, with all descendants of Abner Torrey." The descendants in all surnames of this Abner Torrey, born 1736, are very fully traced in this book. An appendix of interesting matter and a good index are added. We commend the book to our readers.

The Sayward book is by the Hon. Charles A. Sayward of Ipswich, Mass. The first of the name found in New England was Edmund, who resided in Ipswich, Mass., in 1634, and subsequently removed to York, Maine. His brother Henry came here in 1637 and settled at Hampton, N. H., but also finally removed to York. The book gives a very full account of the descendants of these brothers, besides some records of persons of the name who have not been connected with them. The book is well arranged and has a good index.

The next four works whose titles we give—those relating to the Warren, Conant, Bogman and Morey families—are issued in one volume. They were compiled for the late Moses Conant Warren, who did not live to see his work completed, but died, after a brief illness, Oct. 1, 1890, just as the last sheets of his book were going through the press. The Warren family here recorded is descended from Arthur Warren, who settled at Weymouth, Mass., as early as 1638. No connection has been traced between him and Richard Warren of Plymouth, and John Warren of Watertown. The parentage of neither of these early immigrants has yet been discovered. The Conant family is from Roger Conant, a native of East Budleigh, Devon, where his ancestors were settled. He was at the head of the colony planted in 1623 at Cape Anne, and subsequently removed to Salem (See Register, ii. 233–39, 329–35). The Bogman family is descended from Jacob Bogman, a wealthy planter of Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, whose son, Charles Laurens Bogman, born May, 1747, emigrated to New England and settled at Providence in 1767. The Morey family is descended from Roger Morey, who settled at Providence, R. I., in 1636. The branches of the several families recorded in these books are carefully traced and well arranged. They are handsomely printed and illustrated by fine engravings. Each work has a separate index.

The Bartow book is by the author of the works on this family noticed by us in July, 1876, and in April, 1887. This seems to be a revision and extension of the latter work, much new matter being added. It has a folding tabular pedigree, is handsomely printed and is embellished by several fine engravings.

The new number of the history of the Dudley family, of which five have now been issued, sustains the interest of the work. The genealogical account of the descendants of Gov. Thomas Dudley in the line of his oldest son, Rev. Samuel Dudley, is here continued. More matter relative to the English Dudleys, and to others of the name in this country, is given. It is illustrated with numerous portraits and views.

The book on the Joy family is by Mrs. Cornelia C. Joy Dyer, the compiler of the Dyer genealogy noticed by us in July, 1884. The New-England Joys are descended from Thomas Joy, an early settler of Boston. Much interesting matter is here preserved.

The "Memorial to my Honored Kindred" is prepared by Mr. Darling as a tribute of affection to his father, Rev. Charles Chauncey Darling, his mother, Mrs. Adeline Eliza Darling, and his brother, Mr. Elisha Colt Darling; and as a memorial to their ancestors and kindred. Memoirs of these and others of the family are given, with genealogical matter concerning the Darling, Chauncey, Davis, Dana, Ely, Harlakenden, Haynes, Pierpont and Noyes families. It is embellished with portraits of the Rev. C. C. Darling and President Chauncey of Harvard College.

To the well-written memoir before us of the Rev. Daniel D. Tappan, born 1798, died 1890, is appended "Some Account of the Tappan Family." "A List of the Descendants of his father Samuel Tappan of Portsmouth, N. H.," shows that seventy-three descendants of Samuel were living July 15, 1890.

The Low pedigree, which is next in order, gives the descendants to the fifth generation of William Low, born in Boston, Mass., Feb. 13, 1748, and died there Sept 13, 1812. The record is fully traced, with precise dates.

Dr. Lapham's genealogy of the Knox family, like all his work, is carefully compiled. Though the descendants of Thomas Nock or Knox of Dover, N. H., continued, with a few exceptions, to reside in that vicinity for a century, they are now widely dispersed. The author has succeeded in obtaining a very full record of them.

The Parker family, to which the next pamphlet is devoted, is descended from Thomas Parker, who came to New England in 1635, and after a short stay in Lynn, removed to Reading, of which he was one of the first settlers. The author has not attempted a full genealogy of this family, but merely a record of that part of it which may be characterized as the Roxbury branch. Of this branch we find here a good record.

The next pamphlet on the Forsyth family contains much genealogical matter relative to persons of that name in Europe and America. Matthew Forsyth, a native of Ireland, settled at Chester, N. H., in 1742. From him the author of this work, Frederic Gregory Forsyth (Forsyth de Fronsac) of Leesburgh, Londoun County, Va., is descended.

The pamphlet on the Perry family is descended from Jonathan Perry of Topham, Me., who was born at Scituate, Dec. 28, 1730. His father was Joseph Perry, but the line has not been traced further back. A very good record of his descendants is here preserved. An engraving of the homestead is given.

The next pamphlet gives the proceedings at the third gathering of the Poor family, which was held at Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 14, 1887. The oration was by Albert Poor of Boston. Other interesting addresses, remarks, poems, letters, etc., are here printed. Thirty-nine pages are devoted to "Obituary Notices," which are embellished with a fine portrait of the late Major Ben: Perley Poor, and a view of his Mansion House at Indian Hill, West Newbury, Mass.

The Allerton and French pamphlets are reprints from the REGISTER, the former from the number for July, 1890, and the latter from that of Oct. 1890.

DEATHS.

CEPHAS BRIGHAM, Esq., died at Newton, Mass., Oct. 31, 1890, in his 69th year. He was born at Deerfield, Mass., Dec. 26, 1821. He was educated at the academy in his native town. After this he taught public and private schools in various places. In 1861 he accepted the position of master of the Williams School, Auburndale, in the town now city of Newton, and soon became a leading teacher in that place. He taught here about seven years, during which time he completed his law studies with David H. Mason of Newton Centre. He was admitted to the bar, and held for a time the office of trial justice. He assisted in organizing the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and was a member of the Newton school board. In 1874 he removed to Boston and opened a law office in Court Street. He returned to Newton in 1883 and resided there till his death. His wife died in 1887.

Dr. John Danforth Greenwood died at Motueka, N. Z., June 15, 1890, aged 87; his wife, Mrs. Sarah (Field) Greenwood, died Dec. 13, 1889, aged 80 years 28 days. Dr. Greenwood, who born in London, settled in New Zealand in 1843, where he took an active part in political and social matters, and was the leading spirit of the Commission whose report to the Prov. Council was the basis of the Nelson Education Act. He filled several important positions at Nelson, was the first Inspector of Schools, Principal of the Boys' College, Editor of the Nelson Examiner, and finally Sergeant at Arms in the House of Representatives. He and his good wife were exemplary Christians, and veritable friends in need to many of the settlers amid whom they had cast in their lot. They leave a goodly number of descendants. Dr. Green-wood was a cousin of Mr. James Greenwood of Norwich, Conn., of Mrs. George W. Bond of Jamaica Plain, and of the late Mrs. Sol. Stoddard of Northampton, Mass.; his grandfather, a native of Boston, was John Greenwood, artist and mezzotinter of Amsterdam and London.

Mrs. Mary Agnes Greenwood, wife of Isaac J. Greenwood, died at New York, Oct. 31, 1890, aged 44 (vide Register, xxxix. 108). "Honored for her loyalty to the Reformed Church, to which she was devotedly attached, and for her consecration to the cause of her Saviour in the numerous spheres of usefulness which she occupied, * * suddenly, in the prime of life, in the fulness of successful work for the Master, and just when she seemed most qualified for further service, she is called away. The family circle of which she was such a conspicuous ornament grieve over their irreparable loss; but their grief is shared by a far larger circle."—(Chris. Intell.)

Capt. Henry Kinesbury died at Salis-burypoint, Amesbury, Mass., Aug. 6, 1890, aged 76. He was the oldest son of Samuel and Miriam (Gilpatrick) Kingsbury, and was born at Bath, Me., May 4, 1814. He was a descendant in the 8th generation from Henry Kings-bury of Ipswich and Haverhill, Mass., through John,2 John3 and wife Hannah; Henry' and wife Rebecca Kent; Lt. Col. John's by wife Patience Tappan (daughter of Abraham Tappan and granddaughter of Rev. Michael Wigglesworth, author of the Day of Doom) John⁶ and wife Miriam Place; and Samuel,7 his father, abovenamed (see REGISTER, vol. xiii. page 159). "Capt. Kingsbury's life," says the Amesbury Villager, has been one of adventure. At the age of eight years he was placed in charge of the late Capt. Reuben Osgood, of Salisbury, while running a vessel between Salisbury and the coast of Maine. From a cabin boy he advanced from second and first mate of several ships, all the while studying thoroughly the system of navigation, and fitting himself in his younger years for the position he sought, that of cap-tain of a merchant vessel. He was finally placed in charge of a ship belonging to Caleb Cushing, and sailed out of Newburyport on several voyages to foreign parts, having seen service on the ocean for twenty-four years. In 1846 he entered the West India goods trade at Salisburypoint, in company with the late Robert Fowler. The firm with the late Robert Fowler. The firm continued for several years, when Capt. Kingsbury purchased Fowler's interest and largely increased the business; added coal supply, purchasing coal by the ship-load. He constructed coal sheds and was the pioneer in this branch of trade, and at one time was considered one of the wealthy men of the town and active in advancing its interests, but reverse of fortune followed to some extent, and he retired from active business life. "Capt. Kingsbury was the oldest member of Powow River Lodge of Odd Fellows up to the time of his death; he was also a member of Warren Lodge of Masons."

He married Miss Nancy Pike Lowell, who died Sept. 3, 1888. He leaves two sons, Henry L. and Charles B. Kings-bury, and an adopted daughter, Annie, wife of the Rev. Otis O. Wright of Riverside, R. I.

Mrs. CLARISSA Towne died at her home on Nashua Street, Milford, N. H., on Sunday, Nov. 2, 1890, the anniversary of her marriage, aged 100 yrs. 8 mos. 21 days. She was a daughter of Capt. John and Mrs. Sally (Crossman) Hoit of Concord, N. H., where she was born Feb. 12, 1790. On the 2d of November, 1809, she was married to Jonathan Towne, of whom a sketch is printed in towne, of whom a sketch is printed in the Register, vol. xxix. page 326. They settled at Bow, N. H., where they lived happily till March, 1830, when they removed to Milford, taking possession of the old homestead where her husband was born; and here they both resided till their deaths. They celebrated both the fiftieth and the sixteth anniversaries of their wedding. anniversaries of their wedding. On the 12th of February last, the one hundredth anniversary of her birth, numerous relatives and friends met at her residence and testified their appreciation of her worth. It was a pleasant occasion to them and to her, she being in the full enjoyment of her health and faculties. "A woman of rare principle, of a strong loving nature, a devoted christian," says the Farmer's Cabinet, "her life has been an inspiration to many in the years past, and her memory will be kept sacred by them in years to come. She leaves five children: Mr. Ezra Carter Towne, Mrs. Nancy Duncklee and Mrs. Clarissa Adams of Milford, Mrs. Caroline Nye of Keene, N. H., and Mr. John Parker Towne of Edgerton, Wisconsin. The late William B. Towne, A.M., vice-president of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society and founder of the Towne Memorial Fund (see Register, vol. xxxii. pages 9-29) was also her son. Eighteen grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren survive her, who with other relatives and friends "hold as their most precious legacy, the mem-ory of her noble christian life, rounded out by works of usefulness and charity to all mankind."

WILLIAM FLETCHER WELD.

THE family of Weld dates back to 1352, William Weld, High Sheriff of London. The New-England branch came from Suffolk, the home of Governor Winthrop.

In 1632 Captain Joseph Weld, with his brother, the Reverend Thomas Weld, being "Puritans of the Puritans," came to New England for freedom; not penniless adventurers, with nothing to lose and everything to gain, but leaving behind home, comfort, prosperity and assured position, for conscience' sake. Captain Joseph Weld settled in Roxbury, Mass., and became a Captain Joseph Weld settled in Roxbury, Mass., and became a freeman in the colony, which made him a grant of several hundred acres, now West Roxbury Park. This was the family home for nearly two hundred years.

Being well trained in arms, he was a valuable aid to Governor Winthrop in military affairs, and served in numerous fights with the Indians. His death was a great loss to the colony, and is mentioned by Winthrop. Savage stated that he was the richest man in the colony, at the time of his death, and was one of the first donors to Harvard College, of which his brother Thomas was of the first Board of Overseers.

William Fletcher Weld, the subject of this sketch, the sixth generation from Captain Joseph Weld aforesaid, was born in the old homestead, April 15th, 1800. His grandfather, Eleazer Weld, was a Judge, and also Colonel in the Revolutionary War, and Paymaster of Washington's army at Cambridge, in 1777 and 1778.

His father, William Gordon Weld, was intended for the bar, but became a ship owner, sailed and loaded his own ship to foreign ports. It was he, who, while commanding his armed ship the "Jason" in 1802, off Tunis, beat off an Algerine pirate vessel and recaptured two American brigs with their crews. In July, 1812, returning in the ship Mary, with a valuable cargo of wine and Spanish silver dollars from Spain, not knowing that war had been declared, he ran into Boston harbor, right into the jaws of the British frigate Spartan, 38 guns, was captured and his vessel, crew and cargo sent to Halifax, and condemned. But the commander, Brenton, being an old friend, allowed him to escape without imprisonment, but almost penniless, to his home. In 1798 he married Hannah Minot, daughter of Jonas Clarke Minot, a well-known merchant of Boston.

The family losses during the Revolution, and the death of Colonel Weld, necessitated the sale of the old homestead in Roxbury, in order to divide the property among his brothers and sisters.

William Fletcher Weld was the eldest of eleven children, and only twelve years old at the time. At the age of fifteen he was obliged to forego Harvard College, for which he was intended, and went into the office of T. K. Jones & Co., largely engaged in foreign trade, and considered the leading importers of Boston.

He became their head confidential clerk; and at twenty-two years of age went into business for himself, which prospered well until he was induced to take a partner, who started a house in North Carolina, and by bad management wrecked the firm.

Mr. Weld was obliged to spend a whole year at the South to settle the firm's obligations, and returning to Boston, "cast down but not destroyed," recommenced business as a commission merchant on Central Wharf. When able to do so, he sought out his old creditors, by whom he had been legally released, and paid them in full.

In 1833 he built the ship "Senator" at Charlestown, the largest ship of that day; and from that time forward, ship after ship was added to his fleet, until the firm of William F. Weld & Co. became the largest ship owners in America, and it might be truly said that "their sails whitened every sea."

He also became interested in the building of railroads in this country, and was a large stockholder and influential director in many of the Western railroads, as well as in those of New England. It was largely through his instrumentality that the Boston & Maine Railroad was built into Boston in 1844. He imported the rails for this road, and transacted the business so much to the satisfaction of Messrs. Thompson and Forman, the leading ironmasters of England, that they sent for him to visit them; which resulted in his becoming their sole agent in America of all their rails.

The able and liberal manner in which he negotiated these sales to the Western railroads, made it possible to build roads and open up new territory that otherwise might have remained unoccupied for years, and brought him in contact with all the principal men of the great West.

He was a man of uncommon foresight, prudence, and sagacity. His investments were wisely made, and he owed his great success to his good judgment and steady belief in their future value, rarely selling, through all the various depressions and panics that have taken place from time to time in this country.

Foreseeing the decline in the shipping interest in America, no more ships were built, and the fleet was gradually disposed of. Mr. Weld retired from business in 1861, and henceforward devoted his attention largely to real estate, purchasing and building stores and warehouses in Boston and New York, believing real estate in the large growing cities to be the only safe investment of property in this country for a long series of years. This policy he directed, in his will, should be carried out by his trustees.

Mr. Weld was the oldest of eight brothers, none of whom died young, but the Hon. Francis M. Weld was the only one who survived him.

It was as a memorial of his brother, Hon. Stephen Minot Weld, one of the overseers of Harvard College, that he built and presented to that institution, Weld Hall.

He gave a Home to the Children's Hospital in Philadelphia, where he died, December 12th, 1881, leaving a handsome sum to the Butler

Hospital, and other charities.

He was buried in Forest Hills Cemetery, close to the old homestead where he was born, and where six generations of his ancestors had lived and died.

His ample fortune was the result of his activity, industry and decision, united with a sagacity rarely equalled in the business life of any American merchant.

In his religious belief he was Unitarian; and he was Republican in his politics.

He left a widow, two sons and two daughters, and four grand-children.

He became a member of this Society in June, 1870.

A GENERAL REVIEW OF THE EVENTS OF THE WAR.

THE English were deceived by the apparent easy conquest of both the Wampanoags and Narragansets, and believed they had overawed them and set their hostility at rest, and now might take their own time in crushing Philip and thus finishing the war.

Plymouth Colony had been engaged from the first in seeking to conciliate the tribes, in their bounds, which were related to Philip. Through the efforts of Mr. Benjamin Church, a resident of Seconet, who was acquainted on pleasant terms with nearly all the tribes in the colony, negotiations were held with Awashonks the squaw-sachem of the Seconet Indians and Weetamoo the squaw-sachem or "queen" of the Pocasset tribe. Awashonks and most of her people passed over into the Narraganset country at the opening of active hostilities, and thus avoided joining Philip; but Weetamoo and her people were swept along with him in his retreat towards the Nipmuck country. Plymouth companies were abroad, too, scouting the country in the effort to protect their settlements, exposed, like Dartmouth, Middleboro', &c. They also established a garrison at Mount Hope after Philip retreated to Pocasset, to prevent his return. The entrance of Philip into the Pocasset swamps compelled the coöperation of the hesitating Weetamoo, and afforded him a safe hiding-place to recruit and prepare for his flight northward.

In the meantime the Massachusetts authorities had begun negotiations with the various Nipmuck Indians. Seven of the principal towns had been visited and treaties made with each. On July 16th Ephraim Curtis returned to Boston and reported the Quabaugs gathered at a great Island in a swamp beyond Brookfield, and showing a defiant and hostile spirit. The Council immediately sent Capt. Edward Hutchinson, escorted by Capt. Thomas Wheeler and his mounted company, with Curtis as guide, to find the Indians and bring them to terms. The company, accompanied by some friendly Naticks, arrived at Brookfield on August 1st, and immediately sent Curtis with the guides to arrange for a meeting next day. Quabaugs, whose leader was the famous Muttaump, agreed to come next day to a plain some three miles from Brookfield to meet the The next morning, the company, with three of the chief men of Brookfield, rode out to the appointed place, but found no Indians. Urged by the Brookfield men, but against the earnest remonstrance of the Naticks, they rode forward towards the place where Curtis met them the day before. But coming to a narrow defile between a high rocky hill and an impenetrable swamp, and riding single file, they found themselves caught in a great ambuscade of the Indians, who let them pass along until they were able to surround them, and then rose altogether and fired into their column at close range. They killed eight men outright and wounded five, including Capts. Hutchinson and Wheeler, the former mortally. English were forced to retreat, fighting, up the hill; and, under the skilful guiding of their Indian guides, were able to make a safe retreat to Brookfield where they gathered the people and fortified a house just before the Indians came sweeping furiously down upon the village. Here they defended themselves against great numbers for several days, till Major Willard and Capt. Parker came with a company and reinforced the garrison, when the enemy retired.

At Pocasset, Capt. Henchman continued building his fort, and Philip was making ready for his flight. The English seem not to have contemplated the possibility of a general war, nor to have at all appreciated the gravity of the present situation in the colonies. Philip with all his fighting-men and the greater part of his own and Weetamoo's people, escaped across the river and passed through the open plain in Rehoboth, where they were discovered by some of the settlers. A scouting party from Taunton made the discovery that it was Philip's Indians who were thus escaping. The situation of affairs may be briefly stated. Capt. Henchman was guarding the swamp wherein Philip and his people were supposed to be securely trapped. Major Cudworth and Capt. Fuller were at Dartmouth with a company of one hundred and twelve men. Lieut. Nathaniel Thomas of Marshfield was at the Mount Hope garrison with twenty men. At Rehoboth a company of Mohegan Indians under Oneko, under convoy of Corporal Thomas Swift, arrived from Boston on the 30th on their way to Capt. Henchman at Pocasset. Upon the alarm, Rev. Mr. Newman, of Rehoboth, began to organize a company of volunteers for the pursuit of the Indians. Lieut. Thomas, with a small detachment, happened to come to Rohoboth on the 30th, and hearing of the escape, hastened back to carry the news to Capt. Henchman, and urge his cooperation. Lieut. Thomas then, on the 31st, took eleven men of his Mount Hope garrison, and being joined by Lieut. James Brown, of Swansy, with twelve men, marched in the pursuit. The Rehoboth men, with some volunteers from Providence and Taunton, led by the Mohegans, had started earlier upon the trail of the enemy. Lieut. Thomas and his party overtook the others at sunset, and after a brief council-of-war, sent out their scouts, Indian and English, to discover the movements of the fugitives. Having found that they had encamped for the night, and apparently not suspecting pursuit, the English left their horses with a guard, and, with the Mohegans in the van, marched silently forward to a field, at a place called "Nipsachick" (said to be within the present town of Burrillville, R. I.). The night being very dark, they were forced to wait for light. At dawn they made their attack upon what proved to be Weetamoo's camp. The Indians were taken by surprise and fled, leaving everything behind them. But the Mohegans and English rushing forward found themselves confronted with Philip's fighting men entrenched behind trees and rocks ready for battle. Adopting the tactics of the enemy, the English and their allies engaged them fiercely until 9 o'clock, when still fighting desperately, but with powder nearly spent, the hostiles sullenly retired, leaving many of their dead upon the field. Some twentythree of the enemy were killed, it is said, including a prominent chief, Woonashum, called by the English, Nimrod. Of the English, two were killed and one wounded.

Near the close of the fight, Rev. Mr. Newman and a party came up, bringing supplies. Capt. Henchman arrived after the fight, having sailed to Providence and marched up thence, with sixty-eight soldiers and sixteen friendly Indians. He immediately took command, but concluded not to push the pursuit until next day. Rehoboth and Providence men returned home, to bring up supplies for the further pursuit. They hastened back next day with all speed, but found to their great disappointment that Capt. Henchman had not moved until that same day, giving the enemy a full day's start; and Lieut. Thomas and his party overtook him on the evening of August 3d, at a place called by them in the report, "Wapososhequash." The enemy were beyond pursuit, a part (Weetamoo's people, except the fighting-men) having turned off into the Narraganset country, while Philip and the rest passed into the great forests beyond Quabaug. The Mohegans went to their own country on August 4th, accompanied by Lieut. Brown and a small party, to Norwich, to secure provisions and news of the enemy. After awaiting the return of this party three days, Capt. Henchman on August 7th, marched back to Mendon, meeting Capt. Mosely with a company of dragoons coming up from Providence with supplies. Next day Capt. Henchman went up to Boston, and the Rehoboth men Capt. Mosely was left in command at Mendon. returned home. Capt. Henchman was relieved of command in the field and was sent to bring off his men remaining at Pocasset. Mendon had been attacked July 14th, by a party of Nipmucks, led by Matoonas, and six or more of the settlers were killed while at work in their fields.

When the Indians returned from their siege of Brookfield, they met Philip and his people in the woods and told him of their exploit. He was greatly pleased, and gave some of the chiefs presents of wampum, and promised them fresh supplies of ammunition and The Brookfield affair had the effect of bringing in the faltering tribes, and Philip's coming confirmed the plan to clear the Connecticut Valley of English settlers. Massachusetts Colony raised several companies to protect the frontiers. Capt. Mosely with his own and Capt. Henchman's men marched from Mendon, and Capts. Thomas Lathrop of Essex County with a fine company, and Richard Beers of Watertown with another, marched to Brookfield where their forces were joined by Capt. Watts of Connecticut with two companies of English and Indians. Major Willard took command of this force, and broke it into several parties in order to better protect the several settlements. These companies were engaged in scouting the frontiers and guarding supplies sent up to the various garrisons. The Springfield Indians, hitherto pretending friendship, fled and joined the hostiles on the night of August 24; and the English, pursuing, had a sharp fight with them at a swamp near Mt. Wequomps, losing nine of their own men. The English troops were concentrated at Hadley under the general command of Major On Sept. 1st the Indians attacked Deerfield, burning most of the houses and killing one of the garrison soldiers, and withdrew. On the 2d they fell upon Northfield, where many of the people were abroad at work in the fields, and the women and children at the houses in the town. The assault was from all quarters at once, and many were killed in the fields and as they escaped from their houses to the garrison. The Indians burned most of their houses and drove away their cattle. On the 3d, Capt. Beers, with thirty mounted men and an ox-team, was sent to bring off the garrison of Northfield, not knowing of this attack. This force on the next day was ambushed at Saw-Mill Bank, near Northfield, and Capt. Beers and some twenty of his men were killed. Next day Major Treat with a hundred men marched up to Northfield, finding and burying the dead of Capt. Beers's company, and then bringing off the garrison. It was now decided to strengthen the garrisons and act upon the defensive. Upon Sept. 18th Capt. Lathrop with his company was sent to convoy teams bringing loads of grain from Deerfield to Hadley. A strong ambuscade was made at a place known since as "Bloody Brook," and there the Indians encompassed and massacred nearly the whole company, some eighty, including the teamsters. Only eight or ten escaped. The number killed was between sixty and seventy. Capt. Mosely came hastily from Deerfield upon hearing the shots, and engaged the great company of several hundreds of Indians, charging in amongst them with intrepid fury which drove them headlong before him into the woods and swamps; but, finding them gathering in immense numbers and seeking to surround him, he threw out his lines to prevent being flanked, and began a cautious retreat; when Major Treat coming upon the field, the Indians, seeing the reinforcements, fled.

These terrible reverses threw a gloomy, superstitious fear over the colonies. The English troops, hitherto despising the Indians in war, now seemed helpless before them. On Sept. 26th the Indians assaulted Springfield, west of the river, burning the houses and barns. On October 5th, having made some demonstrations against Hadley, the soldiers were drawn from Springfield to strengthen the garrison, the Indians fell upon the latter village and destroyed it, before the companies could return to save it. After this blow, Major Pynchon begged the Court to appoint a commander of the forces on the river in his place, and Major Samuel Appleton was appointed, and by advice of the Council garrisoned the various towns not abandoned, and then withdrew the other troops to Boston. The Connecticut troops helped to garrison Northampton and Westfield, and the Indians withdrew to their winter camps. Philip had long

But now the colonies determined to strike the Narragansets in their own country before they should be able to join the hostiles. A great muster was made in three colonies, and an army of one thousand men was raised and equipped, half of which was sent from Massachusetts. The Narragansets were entrenched in a very strong position in a great swamp in what is now South Kingstown, R. I. It was claimed that great numbers of Wampanoags and other hostiles were among them finding refuge, and they were defiant and threatening. The English forces under command of Gen. Winslow of Plymouth gathered at Wickford, and on December 19th, 1675, marched some twenty miles through intense cold and a heavy snowstorm, to the swamp; the waters had been frozen by the severe cold, and this fact made it possible for the English to reach the rude Without waiting for any organized attack, the Massachusetts troops, being at the front in the march, rushed forward across the ice in an impetuous charge, and into the entrance, where the Indians had constructed rude flankers, and placed a strong block-house in front, so that the first to enter were met with a terrible enfilading fire from front and flanks, and were forced back for a time; but others coming on pressed into the breach, and, though suffering severe losses, at last stormed all the fortifications, drove the enemy from every line of entrenchments within the fort, and out into the woods and swamps beyond. They set fire to the wigwams and store-houses of the savages, in which were burned many of the aged, and women and children. Then taking their wounded, the English took up their march back through the deep snow to Wickford, where they arrived the next morning.

The details of this fight, as well as the subsequent movements and recruiting of this winter campaign, are given at length in the body of the work, and are thus briefly passed here. The Narragansets kept well out of the way of the English army, and made many pretences of negotiating peace, but at last, about January 26th, having made several daring raids into the settlements, and captured numbers of cattle and horses, Canonchet with his strong rear-guard took up his line of retreat for the north, and two days afterwards the army, some twelve hundred strong, marched in pursuit. The Mohegans and Pequots, among the Connecticut forces, led the pursuit, and had several sharp skirmishes with the enemy, always retreating northward. This running fight was kept up for several days, until provisions having failed and no base of supplies possible, the General abandoned the pursuit and marched his troops to Marlborough and thence to Boston. The men suffered severely in this march, from hunger, and it was known for several generations as the "hungry march."

The Connecticut forces separated from the others on February 3d, and the main body of the army arrived in Boston on the 8th and were dismissed. A company under command of Capt. Wadsworth was left at Marlborough to guard the frontiers and neighboring towns. Canonchet and his great and warlike Narraganset tribe, maddened by what they believed their wrongs, and thirsting for vengeance, were now joined with Philip and the other hostile tribes, and all within an easy day's call, except Philip and his band who still remained in their retreat beyond Albany. The time was critical for the settlements; prompt action was necessary on the part of the Indian leaders, to keep their young men in courage and training. Upon February 10th the Indians in great force fell upon Lancaster, and nearly destroyed the town. They killed or took captive fifty of the people. Among the captives was Mrs. Rowlandson, wife of the minister. One garrison-house was saved by the arrival of Capt. Wadsworth and his company from Marlborough. On February 21st a strong body of the enemy surprised Medfield, although a large force of soldiers was then in the town. There were no guards set, nor other precautions taken. The soldiers were scattered about in the houses, and the Indians placed ambuscades in front of each house, and shot them down as they rushed out upon the alarm. The enemy were frightened away by the firing of a cannon, and crossed the river, burning the bridge behind them. Another army was now raised and sent out to the Connecticut River towns, to protect them, and try to bring the enemy to battle. There were said to be two great fortified camps; one near the "Wachusett Hill," and the other at Menameset, beyond Brookfield. The army was under command of Major Thomas Savage, and consisted of three foot companies and a troop of horse from Massachusetts. Connecticut sent several companies of English and friendly Indians. A number of Christian Indians from the Naticks went with Major Savage. The army marched to Menameset, March 2d-4th, to find the enemy gone. They pursued them to Miller's River, across which they escaped. It was thought that this great body of the enemy would now fall upon the western towns, so that the army marched thither, abandoning the design upon "Wachusett Hill" encampment. Major Savage disposed his forces to guard the towns. On March 14th an attack was made upon Northampton, but was repulsed with severe loss to the enemy. On the 24th they appeared at Hatfield, but finding it well garrisoned made no attack, though driving off some horses and cattle. The Indians began to prepare for planting fields along the river; and Canonchet with a body of his men went back to their country to bring up seed-corn, of which large quantities were there stored. It is probable that a large company went towards Plymouth colony, a small party of whom destroyed the house and family of Mr. Clarke at Plymouth village. March 17th they burned Warwick. Plymouth Colony sent out a company of fifty under Capt. Michael Peirse of Marshfield, to protect its frontiers. A party of twenty friendly Indians under "Capt. Amos" was joined with Capt. Peirse. This company marched to Seekonk, and there had a sharp skirmish with the Indians on the evening of March 25th. Next day, supposing they had beaten the Indians, they pursued them and were drawn into an ambush and surrounded near Patuxit River with great numbers, so that they were obliged to fight to the death. The whole company, including the officers, were killed, together with eight out of the twenty Indians. The enemy, too, lost very heavily. March

In the meantime in Massachusetts the enemy were not idle. Lurking parties hovered about Groton, plundering the vacated houses, and driving away any stray cattle within safe reach. On March 13th they fell upon the town in force. The people were gathered in five garrison-houses. One of the garrison-houses was captured, but the people mostly escaped to another. The other garrison-houses were stoutly defended. The Indians burned the unfortified houses and withdrew. On March 26th, the fatal day of Capt. Peirse's destruction, they burned sixteen houses and thirteen barns at Marlborough. Capt. Brocklebank, then in command at Marlborough, sent out a party in pursuit, who overtook and surprised the enemy at night sleeping about their fires, fired into their midst and put them to flight. On the same day, at Longmeadow, a party going to Springfield to church was ambushed by a small company of Indians, and several were captured and killed.

Finding the campaign to have failed in its main object, the Council ordered Major Savage to withdraw his troops, leaving Capt. Wm. Turner, with a hundred and fifty men, to garrison the towns.

April 7th the army marched homeward.

But now the Connecticut authorities, fearing a return of the Narragansets to their vicinity, in numbers such as overwhelmed Capt. Peirse, mustered a mixed company of English and Indians, and sent them into the Narraganset country under command of Capts. Denison and Avery. These, guided by a captive whom they had taken, surprised and captured Canonchet not far from the Patuxit river, where he was encamped with a few of his men, while the great body were scattered, scouting and foraging. He was soon after executed by Oneko, by the judgment of the English authorities. The death of Canonchet was really the death-blow of the war, for he was the real leader of all active operations at this time. Philip was still the chief instigator, however, and now more than before, became, for the time, the controlling mind of a larger number than ever before. There were dissensions, however, and many of the chiefs began to murmur and some to threaten against him as the cause of all their troubles. Some of the river tribes began to show signs of weakening, and proposed negotiations with the English. Philip withdrew to the strong-hold near Wachuset with such as adhered to him, and with Quinnapin, and such of the Narragansets as followed him. The Indians were still active, and watched every chance to strike a blow. They came to Marlborough on April 18th and burned the abandoned houses of the settlers. Capt. Brocklebank commanded the garrison there and refused to be drawn out into the ambuscades, which, before the burning, the Indians had set. On April 20th they crept down and encompassed the town of Sudbury. On that day Capt. Wadsworth marched up from Boston with a company of fifty men, passed through Sudbury, and doubtless the lines of the enemy, without any knowledge of their vicinity. He was forcing his march to relieve the garrison at Marlborough, where they arrived about midnight on the 20th, and without delay leaving their recruits, took those relieved to come home, including Capt. Brocklebank, and came back towards Sudbury. The great numbers of Indians had encompassed the town, and in the morning of the 21st began to burn outlying houses, to draw out the inhabitants from the garrison. They soon made a furious and persistent attack on Haines's garrison from morning till mid-day, but were beaten off, until rumors of reinforcements from various quarters caused them to withdraw to meet these. Edward Cowell and eighteen troopers coming to the relief of Sudbury were attacked, but escaped with only four killed, they turning back suspecting the ambush laid for them. Capt. Wadsworth soon after arrived by another road, and meeting with an outpost of the enemy rushed forward to engage them, and, as usual, they soon found themselves surrounded by great numbers, and were forced to a position on a hill, where most of the company fell fighting, including Capts. Wadsworth, Brocklebank and Lieut. Sharpe. Some sixteen of the company managed to escape to a mill, and there defended themselves until relieved. A company from Watertown arrived soon after Capt. Wadsworth, and crossing the river, made a brave attempt to get to the hill to join him in his desperate fight, but were nearly surrounded themselves and forced to retire. Capt. Hunting with a company of Christian Indians and a squad of troopers arrived from Charlestown late in the afternoon, in time to rescue the men at the mill. After this fight, in which they struck such a terrible blow, and so close to Boston, too, they seem to have retired to their several camps, and soon to have gathered to their great fishing-places in order to take the run of fish. Capt. Turner was still in command of the garrisons at the west. From captives who had escaped, and scouts here and there, came rumors of a great company of Indians fishing at the "Upper Falls" of the Connecticut. Capt. Turner and his officers were anxious to strike a blow against the enemy, and Connecticut authorities were applied to, and promised speedy reinforcements. On May 12th the Indians made a raid into Deerfield meadows and stampeded some seventy head of cattle belonging to the English. Roused by this fresh outrage, the people urged retaliation, and Capt. Turner and his officers determined to attack the Indians at their great fishing place at once. On May 18th the whole company of soldiers and volunteers, about one hundred and fifty, mustered at Hatfield, and marched out at evening towards the "Falls." eluded the outposts of the enemy, and at daylight arrived undiscovered at the camp of the Indians at the fishing-place. The savages were asleep in their wigwams, and the English rushed down upon them and shot them by scores, pointing their muskets in through the wigwam doors. No resistance was possible, and those who escaped the first fire fled in terror to the river, pursued by the soldiers and were cut down or driven into the water without mercy;

many were drowned attempting to cross the river.

But it was soon found that there were several other great bodies of the Indians, above and below the Falls on both sides of the river, and these began to swarm towards the fight. Capt. Turner now prudently began a retreat, having struck his blow. As the soldiers retired the enemy gathered in great numbers upon rear and flanks, seeking to force the English into narrow defiles. Capt. Holyoke commanded the rear-guard, and checked the enemy by stout fighting, but for which, it is likely, the whole command would have been lost. Capt. Turner led the advance, and while crossing Green River was shot down by Indians lying in wait. Capt. Holyoke then led the company back to Hatfield, fighting nearly the whole way. There the killed and missing numbered forty-five. A few came in afterwards, reducing the number of the lost to about forty. It is estimated that some two hundred Indians must have been destroyed.

The blow struck by Capt. Turner greatly intimidated the enemy, though the retreat was so disastrous to the English. became divided and demoralized. They seem to have broken up into small wandering parties. Philip with large numbers of his adherents went down towards Plymouth. Massachusetts sent troops to the western frontiers again, and also to aid Plymouth. The operations in the field were mostly the pursuit of non-combatants, the aged, and women and children. Large numbers of the Wampanoags and Narragansets had now returned with Philip to their own Small parties from time to time plundered and killed as opportunity offered. The colonists were roused to new activity at the evident weakening of the Indians. Aid was sent to Plymouth, under Capts. Brattle and Mosely, and Capt. Henchman did good service in the parts about Brookfield. Major Talcott, with a mixed force of English and Indians, about five hundred in all, came up the river and marched into Hadley about the 11th of June, and was quartered there on the 12th, when the Western Indians, some seven hundred strong, made their last great assault in force in these parts. town was quite strongly garrisoned besides this reinforcement, of which probably the enemy knew nothing. The attack was altogether unexpected and was furious and determined, but the repulse was decided and sanguinary. Major Talcott then led his force down into the Narraganset country, where, about the 2d of July, he encountered a great body of Indians, and driving them into the woods and swamps slew great numbers, and took many captives. The plight of the savages was pitiful; without ammunition, without leadership, without country or hope of any sort, they found no mercy now at the hands of their olden foes, the Mohegans and Pequots, nor yet the English.

The remaining operations of the war in these parts were simply the hunting down of almost defenceless enemies. The colonial authorities issued a proclamation, calling all those Indians who had been engaged in the war to come in and surrender, submitting themselves to the judgment of the English courts. Many parties sought to take advantage of this, but were captured upon their approach by scouting parties, and treated as captives. Some of those who had been prominent in the war and could not hope for mercy, escaped to the eastward and put themselves under the protection of Wannalancet and his Pennacooks, who had remained neutral. Some fled further to the east, and there incited war.

The constant success which the Connecticut troops had always had after their use of the Mohegans and Pequots, was a plain rebuke to the Massachusetts colonists for the numerous disasters from which the Christian Indians might have saved them, if they had trusted and employed them. As soon as Capt. Hunting and his Indian company were put in the field, this appeared. The Indians in small parties skulking in woods and swamps might have eluded English soldiers for years, but as soon as other Indians were employed,

At the close of July, many of Philip's followers had been taken, and his wife and several of his chief men were captives or had been killed. With a small band of his followers he was hiding in the swamps at Mounthope and Pocasset. English scouting parties were active in all parts of the colonies hunting down the trembling and unresisting fugitives; and especially Philip. Benjamin Church was among the most active in hunting and bringing in the Indians, and when one of Philip's men came to betray his chief, he found Mr. Church at Major Sanford's in Rhode Island with his scouting party of English and Indians a short distance away. Upon the news of Philip's hiding-place and the offer of the Indian to lead thither, Mr. Church gathered as many as he could enlist in addition to his party, and, under the lead of the Indian deserter (who acted, it is said, from motives of revenge for his brother's death, by Philip's hand, because he advised him to make peace with the English), the party marched with great secrecy to Mounthope. Mr. Church arranged his attack with skill, and came upon Philip's party unguarded and asleep, and Philip springing up and attempting to escape to the swamp near by, was confronted with two of Mr. Church's guards, an Englishman and an Indian. The Englishman's gun missed fire, but the Indian, named "Alderman," immediately fired and shot the great chief through the breast, so that he fell forward into the water of the swamp, upon his face, dead. Philip was killed August 12th, 1676. Weetamoo's party, the sad remnant of her tribe, had been captured on the 7th, and she, trying to escape across a river, was drowned, and, her body being found, her head was cut off and paraded in the public streets. In the body of the VOL. XLV.

papers, by a strange continuance of an old mistake, this fact is accredited to Awashonks, squaw sachem of the Sogkonates.

After Philip's death, his chief counsellor Annawou led the rest of the party out of the swamp and escaped. With his party he soon after surrendered to Mr. Church. The death of Philip was practically the close of the war, though hostilities continued for some time longer, and at the eastward for a year or more longer. Major Richard Walderne had held command of the military interests and operations in those parts. He was a trusted friend of Wannalancet and the neighboring Indians. Under the proclamation the old chief and his people came in without fear, as they had taken no part whatever in the war. There were many Indians with them, however, it was suspected, who had been among the hostiles and now wished to come in with the Pennacooks and secure the advantages of their influence in giving themselves up. They began to come in at Dover about the first of September, and when, on the 6th, the companies, sent to the eastward under Capt. Hathorn, arrived at Dover, there were some four hundred there, including the Pennacooks. In some way the immediate surrender of all these was received, probably by Major Walderne's great influence with They were then disarmed, and as the Massachusetts officers insisted upon treating all as prisoners of war, Major Walderne was obliged to send all, save Wannalancet and his "relations," down to Boston to be tried there by the Court. The number sent was about two hundred.

Some of the Southern Indians, having lost all except their own lives, passed to the Eastern tribes and were active in exciting to hostility. The local Indians had been hostile the previous year, committing depredations from the Kennebec to Portsmouth. In the summer of 1676, it is thought that many who had been among the Indians in the war, came to these tribes and caused much of the trouble which ensued. The day before Philip's death the Indians fell upon the settlers at Falmouth, and killed or carried away some thirty-four persons and burned their houses. Further eastward also the settlements were attacked. It was upon these occasions that Capt. Hathorn's force was sent to these parts. They marched on from Dover on September 8th, as far as Falmouth, Capt. Hunting's Indians scouting the woods. This expedition was not of much avail, as the Indians easily eluded the troops, being only war parties without the encumbrance of women and children.

But the scope of this review of events did not contemplate the detailed account of affairs which have already been related in the body of the work, but to give a consecutive account for the convenience of readers.

Yesterday morning, about 9 of y Clock, three of my men going within a Gun shot of y Garrison (to drive up some Cows) were ambushed by about 50 or 60 Indians, whom we Judge fired upon the Enemy, who Immediatly discharged upon 'em about 20 Guns, & then Ran directly upon our men. After that, they fired upon this Garrison somtime, while a Party of 'em were destroying the Cattle; they tarryed here three or 4 hours before we discovered 10 Canoos going off, who Landed about a Mile distant from us upon this Island. I then Mustered of our Little Party what I Could Venture to draw out of y Garrisons, w the the assistance of Capt Tilton & five or 6 fishermen. I went out to bring off the dead men, Supposing they had been kill'd, & after we had Scouted an hour or two about a Mile Round upon this Point, We Return'd without finding them, so that we Judge they Carried 'em off alive.

The Indians are Still about us; this morning, before Sun Rise, Several appeared Runing into the woods, who Skulked near y° Garrison Last night. I expect we shall have 'em about us till we have some Reliefe, our weakness being now discovered. The Men being Posted in the three Garrisons I Could not, at this Juncture, send off a Boat wth Intelligence without danger of having her Surprized, as well as Runing y° hazard of Loosing the three Garrisons, so that I have desired Cap¹ Tilton to be the bearer hereof as far as Falmouth, otherways must have Run y° risque of Sending

May it please your Honour,

According to my letter of the 26th of April, web Informs that Leiut Harmon marcht the 23d and was not able to carry provision enough to stay out the time your Honour had ordered him, I ordered Sarjt Brown, with Twenty men, to meet him at Saco Sammon Falls, who mett Leiut Harmon on his return, who was not able to stay by reason of so much bad weather and all the back of the Country so full of Water, Especially the Intervale land on the Rivers, where he was to way lay, they were oblig'd to march some miles together up to their Middles in water, and some of the men fell into holes, and had like to have been drown'd, as they Inform me. Brown, notwithstanding, is gone about twenty Miles up Saco River, there to stay a few days and way lay two Rafts where Leiut Harmon had perceiv'd the Indians had come over the River. I doubt the Scouts on Amuscoggin and Westbrook, on the 5th of May of that year, to march with twenty-five men through the woods to Wells, and there to scout and guard the inhabitants of Wells, Berwick and York. "14th I went." he says, "with that part of my scout, I had with me, to Kittery, in order to Gard the Judges of our Superior Court to York: the other part of my scout kept scouting on the back of barwick. On the 15th: we Garded the Judges to York." "On ye 19th, Sabeth day, we scouted on the back of Wells, in hope to find sum of the Lurkin Enemy Lurking to take the people as they went to meeting, but we found none of them, although som of them was discovered by the Inhabitance while we wair in the woods." Subsequently, he was on a scout with Capt. Harmon.

Kennebeck Rivers will meet with the same disappointments. I am sending Captⁿ Harmon (as soon as the Country Sloop comes down which I suppos'd would have been here ere this, had there not been so many Easterly winds) with what men I can make, down to the Islands to range there, these moon light nights, it being the time of the Indians gathering Eggs and Catching Sea Ducks as they sitt. The Officers are very desirous to go and make up their Rolls in a little time, therefore, desire y' Hon' to send directions thereabout.

By the Rev. B. F. DE COSTA, D.D., of New York City.

PIERRE ANGIBAUT, called "Champdoré," has hitherto been known simply as a pilot in the service of De Mont, and not as an actual leader of an independent expedition. Nevertheless, in 1608, Champlain's former associate brought out a company of colonists to New France, and sailed down the Maine coast as far as Saco. This expedition has escaped treatment, for the reason that the statements concerning it have appeared confused, if not contradictory. It has been taken for granted, that the efforts of the French, after the desertion of Port Royal, in 1607, were suspended until 1610. This, however, will appear to be a mistake, as Lescarbot, in his edition of 1609, gives an account of an expedition that evidently went out in 1608. It is true that, in the autumn of that year, the Jesuit father, Biard, went to Bordeaux for the purpose of joining an expedition which he understood was to have been fitted out by Poutrincourt, but upon his arrival he could learn

[•] This article was written some fifteen years ago, on finding that Parkman had over-looked the expedition of 1608, which had also been overlooked by every author of whom the writer had any knowledge. Subsequently, Dr. Slafter, in editing the Prince Society's edition of Champlain's work, noted the fact that the voyage was made. It is time for Champlain's work, noted the fact that the voyage was made. Champdoré to have due recognition.

nothing about it. Poutrincourt had indeed promised the King to undertake the work again that year, but he made no movement until 1610. In the meanwhile, however, an expedition was sent by De Mont, who had secured a grant giving him the monopoly of the fur trade for one year. Biard probably knew nothing of this expedition, though he understood that a movement was in progress. Besides, the members of his Order were not wanted in the colony, and it was not until 1611 that Biard succeeded in getting out to Port Royal, notwithstanding the influence of the King and Queen was thrown in his favor.* From our general knowledge of the subject, it might be concluded that De Mont allowed the Jesuits to suppose that the expedition was to leave Bordeaux at the end of 1608, in order to be well rid of them, while at the time arranging to sail from St. Malo.

The same year, under the same monopoly, De Mont sent Champlain with two vessels to Canada. It is possible that the expedition of Champdoré was authorized in consideration of receiving a portion of the profits.

But before speaking of the voyage, it will be necessary to state what is known concerning Pierre Angibout, as in the future he must take rank with the worthies, who, amidst perils and privations, labored to achieve the conquest of the wilderness of New England.

In Champlain's narrative, Champdoré is traduced and denied his proper place, owing clearly to the jealousy excited by his merits. Champlain says that he was a good carpenter; but he must have been something more, in order to hold his place as pilot and navigator for a period of three years, and to be entrusted with an independent expedition in the fourth. Champlain, perhaps, felt that his appointment, after a long trial, to this responsible post, formed a sarcasm upon his attempts to cheapen Champdoré's merits, and he does not allude either to his appointment or his voyage. Lescarbot, however, recognizes Champdore's services, also addressing a sonnet to him, as Pierre Angibaut dit Champ-doré Capitaine de Marine en la Nouvelle France. †

In describing the buildings at St. Croix, Lescarbot speaks of the abodes of "Sires d'Orville, Chaplain, Champdoré, and other notable personages." Again, in speaking of those whom De Mont left behind at Port Royal to pass the winter of 1605-6, he mentions Monsieur Champlain and Monsieur Champdoré, the one for geography and the other for the conducting and guiding the voyages. ‡

The position of Champdoré while attached to the colony was clearly defined; and though at times the geographer was obliged to recognize the pilot's capacity, he nevertheless seeks every occasion to detract from his merit, and to set down every disaster to his credit. At the instance of Poutrincourt, Champdoré was on one occasion placed under arrest, having been charged with the wilful destruction of the shallop, which, in 1606, unfortunately struck upon the rocks at Port Royal, though they were glad to release him and secure the benefit of his skill.

Champlain vents his spleen in paragraphs like this: "We came near being wrecked on a rocky islet, on account of Champdore's usual obstinacy."

Lescarbot was probably indebted to Champdoré for portions of the material used in describing the voyages of 1604, '5 and '6, as he did not go in person further south than Grand Menan. On more than one occasion he refers to Champdoré as an informant.

The voyage of Champdoré is mentioned in three editions of Lescarbot's Nouvelle France, though the edition of 1609 forms the real authority. † The succeeding editions omit that part of the narrrative found in chapter iv. of the edition of 1609, evidently to avoid going over the same subject twice. The portion omitted in the two succeeding editions is very interesting.

Lescarbot says, first, that the colonists, returning to France in the autumn of 1607, brought samples of the products of the country, such as corn, wheat, rye and barley, and presented them to the King. Poutrincourt, as a special offering, presented some tame "Outards" or geese, which he had "taken from the shell." They pleased the King, and were at once domiciled in the beautiful ponds of Fontainbleu. The reports made appear to have encouraged his Majesty; and Lescarbot is correct in saying that at this time, "upon a fair exhibition of the fruits of the said country, the King confirmed to Monsieur De Mont the privilege for the trade in beavers with the savages," and that this, in connection with the general encouragement which the prospect afforded, led to the attempt in 1608. Lescarbot states that the King acted with direct reference to the establishment of colonies, and, writing in 1609, says: "By this occasion he [De Mont] sent thither in March last families to begin the Christian and French Commonwealth there, which God grant to bless in increase."

1 It is clear that the privilege, which was for one year only, had no special application to the territory ceded to Poutrincourt. The Patent to De Mont covered all of New France. See Patent in Champlain's Œuvres, Vol. I. p. 136.

^{*} Champlain's "Œuvres," Ed. Quebec, Vol. I. pp. 84-85.

† The Edition of 1612 (p. 459) mentions the voyage and the exploration of the St. John's River. In the heading of L. IV. C. xix. (p. 603) is the following: Voyage en la Nouvelle France, depuis le retour du dit Sieur Poutrincourt. In dropping the part of the narrative to which this refers, Lescarbot forgot to erase this reference to it. The edition of 1618 possesses the same features, though C. iv. takes the place of C. xix. The first edition of Lescarbot's work was published in 1609. Editions followed in 1611, 1612 and 1618. Le Long refers to an edition of 1617. See Bibliothèque Historique, Vol. III. No. 39,654. A letter attributed to Lescarbot by M. Gabriel Marcel, of the geographical section of the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris, has been published by that writer, with notes. Paris, 1885. It was written at Port Royal, Aug. 22, 1606, and is of interest. Lescarbot was born about the year 1565-70, and died about 1630.

† It is clear that the privilege, which was for one year only, had no special application

The statement that "families" were sent out is very significant, showing that the French saw distinctly the true policy to be pursued, and that they entertained the project of permanent homes. Of the experience of these "families" we, at present, have no particular knowledge. Nevertheless a glimpse is given of the condition of Acadia after the terrible winter which had frozen the spirits of Popham's men, but which the French happily escaped. They found the grain which had been sown the previous year in a flourishing condition, and the faithful old savage, Membertou, with his dusky followers, ready to extend a cordial welcome. It is not clear, however, that Champdoré and his colonists remained in New France during the winter of 1608-9. Perhaps the account of the severity of the previous winter dampened their ardor and hastened their return, notwithstanding they had brought out what are called "families."

Lescarbot mentions Champdoré's return, and says:

"The said ship, being returned, we have had report by Monsieur de Champdoré, and others, of the condition of the country we had left, and of the wonderful beauty of the corn that the said Monsieur de Poutrincourt had sown before his departure, together with the grains that have fallen in the gardens which have grown incredibly. Memberton gathered six or seven barrels of the corn that we had sown, and still had one left, which he reserved for the French whom he expected. When it was charged that he had eaten our pigeons which we had left there, he fell to weeping, and embracing him that told him, said it was the Macharoa, that is, the great birds called Eagles, which eat many of them while we were there. Besides all great and small inquired how we were, naming each by his own name, which is a proof of great love."

On other points Lescarbot gives interesting information, and says that Champdoré extended his observation as far as Saco, or "Chouakouet." He also visited the Saint Johns River. He says:

"This river is one of the fairest that may be seen, having many islands and abounding in fish. This last year, 1608, the said Monsieur de Champdoré, with one of the said De Mont's men, has been some fifty leagues up the said river, and testify that there is a great quantity of vines along the shore, though the grapes are not so large as in the country of Armouchiquois. There are also onions and many other good herbs. As regards the trees, they are the finest to be seen. When we were there we saw a great number of cedar trees. In regard to the fish Champdoré has told us, that, putting the kettle over the fire, they had taken fish enough for dinner before the water was hot. Besides, this river, stretching as it does far within the land of the savages, greatly shortens the long journeys."

The modern tourist who ascends this stream will justify Champdoré's praise.

Champdoré then descended the river, and sailed southward, visiting for the fourth time the wild coast of Maine. Lescarbot writes:

"The said Champdoré went as far as Chouakouet, the beginning of the Armouchiquois land, where he reconciled that tribe with the Etechemins, which was not done without solemnity. For as he began to speak of it the captive, named Asticou, who is now in the place of Olmechin,* a grave man of goodly presence, howsoever savage he may be, demanded that some one of the Etechenims should be sent to him, and that he would treat with him. Oagimout, Sagamore of the St. Croix River, was selected for that purpose, though he would not trust them; but under the safe conduct of the French, he went thither. Some presents were made to Asticou, who, upon the speech of peace, began to exhort his people and to show them the reasons which should induce them to listen to it. Whereupon they agreed, making an assent to each article proposed to them. Some five years† ago Monsieur de Mont had also arranged a peace between those people, and declared unto them that he would be the enemy to the first one that should commence war, and would pursue him. But after his return into France they could not maintain the peace. And the Armouchiquois killed a Sourequois savage named Panoniac, who went to them in order to trade in merchandise, which he obtained at the store house of the said de Mont. The war above mentioned broke out on account of this murder, under the leadership of Sagamore Membertou; the said war was carried on in the same place now mentioned where Monsieur de Champdoré treated the peace in this year. Monsieur Champlain is in another place, that is, in the great River of Canada, near the place where Captain Jaques Cartier wintered, where he has fortified himself."

In closing, Lescarbot says:

"As regards Monsieur de Poutrincourt, his desire is unchangeable to colonize and build up his Province, to bring thither his family, and all kinds of trades necessary for the existence of man; which, with God's help, he will continue to do, throughout the present year, 1609; and as long as he has health and strength, will prosecute the same, to live there under the King's obedience."

It is perhaps due to Champdoré, in the absence of the details of his life, that we should give the Sonnet which Lescarbot wrote in his praise; especially as it forms an offset to the envious criticism of Champlain, who, as the geographer, found a rival in Champdoré the navigator. Lescarbot, the witty lawyer, was evidently on the best of terms with the Pilot, and they doubtless enjoyed together good dinners and merry evenings in Acadia, when Lescarbot feasted royally, after the fashion of his brother of the Bar, Thomas Morton, of Merry Mount, wearing the Collar of the Order of the Bon Temps. In this Sonnet the Parisian Advocate bestows his praise with the liberality that marked Champlain's blame; and the neglect of renowned characters of antiquity is somewhat explained by the devotion exhibited to the overshadowing renown of Pierre Angibout.

[.] This appears to be an error. Asticou was a Penobscot chief, and appears to have succeeded Bashaba.

† He should have said three years, as the peace referred to was made in 1606. It was a poor peace at the best. See Champlain, Vol. I. p. 93, and Lescarbot, Ed. 1612, p. 560. For the names of various chiefs, see Champlain, Vol. I. p. 126.

‡ See ante; this fixes the date of Champdoré's voyage.

SONNET.

SI des pilotes vieux le renom dure encore,
Pour avoir sceu voguer sur vne étroite mer,
Si le monde à present daigne encore estimer
Ariomene, avec Palinure & Pelore:
C'est raison (Champ-doré) que nôtre âge t'honore,
Qui sçais par ta vertu te faire renommer,
Quand ta dexterité empeche d'abimer
La nef qui va souz loy du Ponant â l'Aurore.
Ceux-la du grand Neptune oncques la majesté.
Ne virent, ni le fond du son puissant Empire:
Mais dessus l'Ocean journellement porté
Tu fais voir aux Fraçois des païs tout nouveaux, Afin que l'à vn iour maint peuple se retire

WOODHULL ENTRIES FROM THE PARISH REGISTER OF MOLLINGTON, OXFORD COUNTY, ENGLAND.

Communicated by Rurus King, Req., of Yonkers, N. Y.

WHILE in England in 1882, I visited the Parish of Mollington, and copied from the Church Register the Woodhull entries given below.

The late Col. Joseph L. Chester had collected considerable material relating to the Woodhull family, including many extracts from the Mollington Register; these have been carefully compared with my own, and where any difference of reading occurs it is noted.

I found the Register so time-worn in many places as to be almost illegible. Col. Chester's Woodhull papers are now in possession of Gen. Maxwell Van Zandt Woodhull, of Washington, D. C.

[Walter Butler, son of Evan Butler of Cusop, Herefordshire, named above as being in New England, was probably the Walter Butler who in 1672 was one of the 27 purchasers of Horseneck in Greenwich, Ct. He was a legal voter of Greenwich in 1688, but his name does not appear in the town lists for 1694–5; though a Thomas Butler is found in that list. (See Mead's History of Greenwich, Ct., pages 67, 71 and 79.) The christian name Walter occurs in the Butler family of New London, Ct., at a later date. (See Caulkins's History of New London, page 342.)

It is supposed that he was the Robert Pennaire aged 21 years who with Thomas Pennaire aged 10 embarked at London for New England, Sept. 8, 1635. (See REGISTER, vol. 2, page 399).—EDITOR.]

WASHINGTON NOTES.

It was announced on the cover of the January Register that the will of Col. John Washington, the emigrant ancestor of President Washington, had been recently found. Both the original will and the original record of it were found at about the same time in different places. Mr. Moncure D. Conway of New York city, in a communication to the New York Nation, Oct. 24, 1889, says: "The Rev. E. C. McGuire writing in 1836 says that the will was then at Mount Vernon" (see Register, vol. 43, page 79), and he suggested that search be made among them. It was among these Mount Vernon papers preserved by Mr. Lawrence Washington of Alexandria, which last winter were temporarily deposited in the National Museum at Washington, D. C., that the curator of the Museum, Mr. A. Howard Clark, discovered the original will. The papers were withdrawn from the Museum in February last, to be sold at auction. Joseph M. Toner, M.D., of Washington, has made an exact copy of this will from the original. The wills of Lawrence Washington the emigrant; of Augustine Washington, son of the preceding and father of the general; and of Lawrence Washington, the general's half brother, are also extant and Dr. Toner has copies of them. The five wills are promised to us by him for the next number of the Register. The will of Augustine has never been printed. There is, as part of the same record, a copy of the Deed of Roger Gregory and his wife Mildred (Washington) Gregory—aunt and god-mother of George,—to Augustine Washington, her brother, of the Little Hunting Creeke, now Mount Vernon, Estate which she inherited from her father Lawrence Washington, son of John the emigrant. The recitals in this deed to Mildred's brother Augustine the father of George, makes clear the kinship of the Washingtons and also the claim of title to the Mount Vernon estate.

The record of the will was discovered, about the same time as the will itself, by Mr. J. Warren Hutt, clerk of the county court of Westmoreland, Va., in his office. Mr. Isaac J. Greenwood caused searches to be made in this office in 1873 and in 1889, and Mr. Conway made a search there personally in the latter year. They were all unsuccessful. But the search was not abandoned, and in December, 1890, the old original record book of Westmoreland county, embracing the proceedings of the courts, patents, assignments of patents, deeds, fiduciary acts, depositions, etc., after having been thrown aside, was accidentally discovered. In this volume the will of Col. John Washington was entered. Mr. Hutt promptly notified Messrs. Conway and Greenwood of the discovery, and sent them copies of the will. Mr. Conway had the will printed in the Nation for Dec. 18, 1890, and Mr. Greenwood sent his copy to the editor of the Register. The record is much mutilated, and there are many breaks in the copies furnished by the clerk. It was no doubt from this record that Bishop Meade got his brief notes of the will, which he says was much mutilated. The original will, fortunately, can all be made out.

Mr. Conway has written an article on the Washington family for Harper's Magazine, which will appear in the May number. It will be richly illustrated. The author visited England last year and collected much interesting material. His personal researches have resulted in finding important evidence in favor of Mr. Waters's theory, which will appear in his article. We shall lay it before our readers in our July number. Mr. Conway's article cannot fail to be interesting and trustworthy.

Mr. James Greenstreet has contributed to "The Genealogist" for January, 1891, page 145-7, an article entitled "The Ancestry of General Washington," in which he makes known to us some of the unpublished discoveries of Col. Chester, relating to the ancestry of Washington. Mr. Waters will print this article in the next number of his Gleanings. Mr. Whitmore expressed the feelings of Col. Chester's American friends, when he wrote in the Register for October, 1889 (vol. 43, page 424), in his annotations of Mr. Waters's article: "Every one will regret that Col. Chester did not have the good fortune to bring to a successful conclusion the investigation which he pursued for so many years."—EDITOR.

For his conduct on that occasion he received the thanks of the British Admiral, who, as the senior officer of the Treaty Powers, commanded the combined fleets; and was made by Queen Victoria a Companion of the Military Division of the Order of the Bath, which honor Congress, in 1875, authorized him to accept. CHUTE.—Thomas Chute, great-grandson of Lionel, the Ipswich school master (ante, page 92), was married in 1712 by Dr. Cotton Mather to Mary Curtis of Boston. He lived in Boston and Marblehead some thirty-five years, as tailor, trader, deputy sheriff for Essex County, etc. In 1737-8 he removed to Windham. Only one Thomas and Mary Chute had four sons and five daughters. son and two daughters grew up and had families. One daughter, Rebecca, married John Bodge, and was the great-great-grandmother of the Rev. George M. Bodge of East Boston, a contributor to the Register. The other daughter, Abigail, married Mr. Cobham. The son, Curtis, married in Windham, Me., in 1754, Miriam Carr, widow of Josiah Worster of Newbury, Mass.

REPLIES.

SAFFIN FAMILY (ante, p. 42)—The writer of the article in your January number has fallen into an error respecting the "Berceau" of this family. Wolvereston or Woolston is not Wolverton near Frome on the eastern boundary of Somerset, but is a hamlet of Bicknoller, a parish situated among the Quantock Hills, in the north west of the county.

In Brown's "Somerset Wills," edited by Dr. Howard, F.S.A., and myself

(2d series p. 25), will be found two Saffin wills.

1. Hugh Saffyne of Monksilver, Somerset, proved 27 Jan. 1594-5 by his brother William: he leaves bequests to the poor of Monksilver and Bicknoller.

Edward Saffyn of Stogumber, Somerset, gent., proved 15 Feb. 1620-1; and there are other references to the family in the 3d and 4th series of the same collection.

1628. Joh. Saffin gen. was patron of the Rectory of Lidiard St. Laurence.
1664. Apr. 2, Ric Saffin A.M., was instituted to the Vicarage of East Pen-

1678. Hug. Saffin gen. was co. patron of the Rectory of Enmore. See "Somerset Incumbents," pp. 162, 366, 395.

Richard Saffin held the living of East Pennard only for four years and then it seems that he moved to Gloncestershire, for we find one of the same name Vicar of Berkeley in 1682, in which year his pedigree was entered in the Visitation of Gloucestershire (see Fenwick and Metcalfe's 1682 Visitation of Gloucestershire, p. 151). From this it appears that he was the sixth son of William Saffyn of Newton in the parish of Bicknell [Bicknoller,] Somerset. In the ordnance map of the county, Newton Farm is to be found close to the hamlet of Woolston, both in the parish of Bicknoller.

Bicknoller.

Richard Saffyn died in 1690 aged 53, and there is (or was) a monument to him in Berkeley Church.

In 1596 John Saffin from Devon, gen. fil., aged 15, matriculated at Exeter College, Oxford. See Register University Oxon, Vol. II, Pt. II. 215.

These valuable registers have at present only been printed down to 1622, so that I am unable to say whether Richard Saffin was also an Oxford man. (Rev.) F. W. WEAVER.

Milton-Clevedon, Evercreech, Somerset.

In the January Number of the REGISTER, p. 41, I notice Mr. Greenwood's notes on the Safin Family. I send you the references at which he will find further information. In Jewett's Reliquary. Vol. xiv. 235, are several monumental inscriptions to the family. In Somersetshire Wills, printed by F. A. Crisp, 2d series, 25, will be found the wills of Hugh and Edward Saffyn, dated in 1594 and 1620, and a further note of Hugh in 3d series, 30. A pedigree of the later Saffins, who removed into Gloucestershire, is entered in the Visitation of Gloucestershire, edited by Fenwick and Metcalfe, p. 151. It is as well to note that in the first generation of this, the word "Bicknell" should be "Bicknell," and that the editors ignorance of local place names has led them into stating that "Wycomb" stands for "Wythecombe," whereas it is only the old form of spelling "Weacombe," a place in the parish of West Quantonhead which adjoins Bicknoller.

Mr. Greenwood states, p. 42, that "Woolverston in com. Som." is "a place located on the Frome, just south of Philips Norton." He has jumped to conclusions after the manner of Messrs. Fenwick and Metcalfe. It really stands for Wolston, which is a hamlet in the Parish of Bicknoller. Brampton Ralf, in a subsequent line, should be Brompton Ralph.

An examination of the Registers of Bicknoller and Stogumber, and other places in the district, and of the wills at Taunton, would probably enable any intelligent genealogist to work out a tolerably complete pedigree.

BIBLE FAMILY RECORDS (ante, vol. 44, p. 401).—I notice a query in the October Register with regard to blank leaves in family Bibles for family records. I can add my testimony to the fact that such were inserted in the last century. I have in my possession a family Bible, printed in Edinburgh, 1722, by James Watson, "Printer to the King's Most Excellent Majesty"—"cum privilegio"—in which two full leaves are left between the Old and New Testaments, filled with the records of my father's family (Hon. Wm. J. Bacon), beginning with the marriage, "on the 4th day of November, 1771," of his grandfather, the Rev. John Bacon, pastor of the Old South Church of Boston, to Elizabeth, daughter of Ezekiel Goldthwaite, Esq., of Boston. The Bible is about 20 x 13 inches in size, bound in brown leather, and though of course dingy with age, is in perfect condition. "The Psalms of David, in Metre," are included in it.

SAVAGE'S GENEALOGICAL DICTIONARY, CORRECTIONS AND ADDITIONS.

[AT the suggestion of WILLIAM EVERETT, Litt.D., of Quincy, Mass., we have added this new department to our Notes and Queries.—EDITOR.]

Avery and Wigglesworth (Savage, vol. 1, p. 82; vol. 4, p. 542).—In an article contributed by me to the Historical Magazine for September, 1862, vol. 6, pages 289-90, I called attention to an error of Mr. Savage in the date of the death of Dr. Jonathan Avery of Dedham, which he gives as Sept. 14, 1694. This date is at least three years too late. It is true that the Dedham records contain the death of a Jonathan Avery on that day, but, unless there be an error in the year, a different person must be intended. In the Suffolk Probate Registry is found the will of "Jona. Avery Practitioner in Physic & aged about thirty-five," dated Feb. 18, 1689, and proved May 27, 1691, showing that he was dead at the last date. The will names wife Sybil, daughters Sybil, Margaret and Dorothy and brother William Avery. It is probable from the letter of the Rev. Michael Wigglesworth to Mrs. Sybil Avery, Feb. 11, 1690-91, printed in the Register, vol. 17, page 139, that her first husband, Dr. Avery, was dead in October, 1690. Mrs. Avery's second husband was the above Rev. Mr. Wigglesworth, but the date of their marriage was not then known. The error of Mr. Savage in relation to the death of Dr. Avery led him to express a doubt as to whether Prof. Edward Wigglesworth, D.D., born in 1692 or 1693, was not a son of Mr. Wigglesworth's second wife, Martha, instead of being, as had been stated, the son of his last wife Sybil. I called attention to the fact that the second wife of Mr. Wigglesworth died Sept. 4, 1690, so that Edward could not have been her son.

Since my article was printed in the Historical Magazine I have found the exact date of the Rev. Mr. Wigglesworth's last marriage, showing clearly that Edward was a child of this marriage. A manuscript volume of historical and genealogical matter relating to Braintree and Quincy, collected for the New-England Historic Genealogical Society by the late Hon. Jonathan Marsh of Quincy, contains a record of marriages by the Rev. Moses Fiske of Braintree. On page 224 will be found this marriage entry: "Michael Wigglesworth of Malden and Lydia Avery of Dedham, June 23, 1691."

Lydia a very of Dednam, June 25, 1631.

Lydia is evidently an error for Sybil. I have not found the precise date of their son Edward's birth. He died January 16, 1765, in his 73d year, consequently he was born between Jan. 16, 1691-2, and Jan. 16, 1692-3. Can any one furnish the exact date of his birth?

BOOK NOTICES.

The Genesis of the United States. A Narrative of the Movements in England which resulted in the Plantation of North America by Englishmen, etc. etc. A series of Historical Manuscripts now first printed, together with a re-issue of rare Contemporaneous Tracts, accompanied by Biographical Memoranda, Notes and Brief Biographies. Collected, Arranged and Edited by Alexander Brown. With one hundred portraits, maps and plans, in two vols. Boston and New York: Houghton, Mifflin & Company. The Riverside Press. Cambridge. 1890. 8vo. pp. xxxviii+1157 in the two volumes. Price $15 for the set.

For two years and more, historical students have been looking with eager expectation for the appearance of the Genesis of the United States, by Alexander Brown of the Virginia Historical Society, a work, which it was understood would contain rare manuscripts discovered in the Archives of Simancas, relating to the early history of the English occupation of North America.

This work has at last appeared, and justifies the expectations of those who are interested in this fascinating subject, upon which so much light has recently been thrown by the publication of original documents by painstaking historians. Before the advent of Bancroft, how little we had of a definite nature relating to the beginnings of American History! The great historian set an example to the historians of his day, by collecting from every accessible source original documents as the foundation upon which to rear his work, and now students demand the publication, verbatim et literatim, of the documents themselves, that they may form their own conclusions and not take them at second hand.

The documents which Mr. Brown presents us in his Genesis of the United States, comprise letters from the representatives of the Spanish government at the Court of James the First, with replies to them, and documents surreptitiously obtained by these representatives in London, the want of which has left a serious gap in the British Archives. The study of these documents reveals a curious condition of affairs at the English Court. Spain, jealous of the attempts of her English rivals to found colonies in the New World, was watching every movement with eager attention. Her wily agents in London were gathering every scrap of news from returning mariners and adventurers, and such information as they could, relative to colonial undertakings, from the King and Court, and posting them to Madrid without delay. If a map or document of any kind could be purchased or secured by the wily Spaniard, it was forwarded with comments upon it to the Spanish King, who was urged to take measures to thwart the efforts of England to found colonies, by attacking and destroying the colonists, whom Spanish writers assured Philip, the English King declared he would not protect.

Besides the interesting documents from Spanish Archives in these two elegant volumes, Mr. Brown has given us extracts from, and an account of, rare contemporaneous publications of the period of which he treats, and a mass of biographical matter of great value relating to the men who took part in the momentous drama then being enacted. Doubtless the author's view of Captain John Smith will not be readily adopted by those who have been wont to regard him as a hero; but while we are in duty bound to award him all the praise that belongs to a daring adventurer, we should always remember that the marvellous achievements of which he is the hero, rest almost wholly upon his own evidence, and that a great deal of the history of American colonization in Smith's time has hitherto been inaccessible. Smith was unmistakably a boaster, and has had a too prominent place in our history. Some Virginian writers have extolled him beyond reason, and it is well that a Virginian has taken the lead in placing him in a truer light.

Mr. Brown is perhaps too tender in his treatment of James Stuart, a man of mean nature; cunning, secretive, penurious, and, if we may believe abundant evidence, an arrant coward. His treatment of Raleigh should forever condemn him in our estimation, certainly not less in the estimation of Virginians, and the documents in the Genesis are not calculated to increase our admiration of him; however, perhaps we should contrast him with some of his brother Kings, before and since his day, among whom he does not appear to disadvantage. Certainly we must admit that colonization prospered during his reign, though we may be inclined to add, in spite of him.

To New England readers, the discovery of the plan of the Popham Fort and the map of the coast at that early date, is an event of no little interest, and these two plans alone are worth to them the price of the work. It is unnecessary to speak of the mechanical excellence of these two sumptuous volumes, as the name of the publishers is sufficient guarantee of this; but we may express our admiration of the beautiful heliotypes, over one hundred in number, which adorn them. They are certainly the finest which have thus far been issued. Without doubt every book collector and student of history will not fail to obtain this work to add to his collection, which would be seriously incomplete

This elegant volume is the result of a vast amount of patient and exhaustive research. The main work has been done by three careful and experienced genealogists. The English researches have been conducted by the Rev. Augustus Jessopp, D.D., rector of Scarning in Norfolk, England, who has long held a high place as an antiquary, and Henry F. Waters, A.M., whose genealogical genius and important discoveries are so well known to our readers. The American portion, by far the larger part of the volume, has been compiled by Mr. Frank Farnsworth Starr, of Middletown, Ct., whose previous labors in similar work well qualified him for the undertaking.

Mr. Goodwin in a brief preface gives an account of the origin of the work and the assistance rendered by different persons in working out the problems.

We have first an article by the Rev. Dr. Jessopp on "The Goodwins of East Anglia," to which portion of England the brothers William and Ozias Goodwin have been traced. The surname has been and is very widely distributed not only over England but over most of the northern countries of Europe, and is to be met with in very early times. The Rev. Dr. Jessopp's article is exhaustive of the subject. He finds Goodwins in East Anglia as early as the fourteenth century, and he traces, with precision and fulness, the history of the families and prominent individuals which he finds there. He brings his record down to the seventeenth century, when the brothers William and Ozias left their native

Mr. Waters's "Report of English Investigations" is the next article in the book. His first discovery which located in England the family he was in search of was in the will of Robert Woodward of Braintree in Essex, dated May 27, 1640, in which the testator mentions his daughter Mary, wife of Ozias Goodwin, "now in New-England." This will he discovered in November, 1885. In June, 1887, his contract with the New-England Historic Genealogical Society having expired, Mr. Goodwin engaged him to make searches for him. "It was agreed upon between us," says Mr. Waters, "that I was to perform my part of the quest in the way I had been accustomed to work for years; i. e. I was to pursue a mousing method, hunting among wills of others besides Goodwins, in the hope to discover the objects of our search by side lights." The field in which this work was to be done was indicated by the above discovery. It was while pursuing this general search for Mr. Goodwin that Mr. Waters made his recent discoveries relative to the parentage and kindred of Roger Williams and the ancestry of Washington; and he dedicates his pamphlet on the latter discovery to Mr. Goodwin, "in grateful recognition of his friendship and his liberality in supporting these researches." The investigations in East Anglia furnish many reasons for thinking that relatives of the brothers have been found there. The will of Moses Wall of Braintree, Sept. 16, 1628, has the signature of a William Goodwin as a witness. The signature bears a strong resemblance to that of Elder William Goodwin, written in New England. It has certain peculiarities which are found in signatures of Elder Goodwin, and otherwise bears so strong a resemblance to them that we cannot resist the belief that they were all written by one hand. Fac-similes of the autograph attached to Moses Wall's will and of two known autographs of Elder William Goodwin are given by Mr. Waters, so that the reader can form his own opinion on this question. Mr. Waters in his report to Mr. Goodwin says: "I have preserved more than two hundred abstracts of wills bearing on your name, found in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, nearly one hundred and fifty collected in the Probate Registry at Ipswich, County of Suffolk, nearly fifty found at Norwich, and thirty or forty gathered from various smaller courts. Besides these I have examined and rejected many others which did not seem to me at the time worth the labor required to make notes from them. I have also made a partial examination of Inquisitiones post mortem, Feet of Fines, Claus Rolls, Subsidy Lists, Parish Registers and the genealogical manuscripts in the British Museum." A selection from the material gathered by him is printed in this volume. The research is to be continued this year, on Mr. Waters's return to England, and we hope that his persevering investigation of this subject will be rewarded with equally satisfactory results as his quests for Williams and Washington.

A Biographical Sketch of William Goodwin by Rev. George Leon Walker,
D.D., of Hartford, follows. Elder Goodwin was "one of the strong and interesting figures discovered through the mists and half lights of our early New-England history. . . . The sometimes picturesque and the generally dignified and important character of the matter he was concerned with, awakens curiosity to know more of him and something of wonder that not more is known." Rev. Dr. Walker furnishes an interesting account of the life of this Connecticut pioneer. It is followed with a careful sketch of the other brother, Ozias Goodwin, by Charles J. Hoadly, LL.D., editor of the Colonial Records of Connecticut.

We have next Mr. Starr's full genealogical record of the descendants of William and Ozias Goodwin, with some account of other families of Goodwin before the Revolution. It fills more than six hundred pages of the book. The com-Revolution. It fills more than six hundred pages of the book. The compiler has spared no labor to make this genealogy thorough and complete, and has been remarkably successful in his efforts. He gives full details of the biography as well as the genealogy of the scattered members of this family. Few, if any, books devoted to the record of a family with such numerous and widely dispersed branches are so complete as this. The arrangement of the records deserves praise. It is simple and easily understood, and by it the descendants and ancestors of an individual are easily traced. Mr. Starr furnishes three excellent indexes, filling over fifty pages, the first giving the christian names of Goodwins with dates of births, the second the intermarriages, and the third other surnames. He gives us ten tabular pedigrees which are of great service in showing the relationship of certain individuals.

The volume is handsomely printed by the University Press of Cambridge, he Union State. A Letter to our States-Rights Friend. By JOHN C. HURD, LL.D. New York: D. Van Nostrand Co. 1890. 8vo. pp. 135. Price 75c. The Union State. In this letter, or rather series of letters, Dr. Hurd presents with ability the theories antagonistic to state sovereignty. He has studied the subject with great thoroughness, and bases his arguments upon historic grounds, and upon general constitutional law. While we are inclined to traverse some of his statements, and to question his conclusions, we appreciate his candid and scholarly treatment of the great problems involved in the controversy. The author is familiar with the constitutions of foreign lands, and seeks to strengthen his position by reasoning that similar principles and interpretations apply to the United States. We think that while he sees clearly and presents ably the objections to state sovereignty, he loses sight of the greater and at the present time more threatening dangers of centralization.

DEATHS.

HENRY ATKINSON GREEN, Esq., died at his residence in Newbury Street, Bos-ton, on Jan. 8, 1891. He was a son of Dr. Joshua and Eliza (Lawrence) Green, and born at Groton, on April 29, 1828. He was educated at the academy in his native town, and in 1846 came to Boston to live. At the time of his death, and for many years previously, he was a member of the firm of Mackintosh, Green & Co. His wife, Mrs. Emily (Wagner) Green, died on Jan. 4, 1885. Mr. Green left two married children: Mrs. Caroline Sargent Green, wife of William Amory Meredith, of London, England; and William Lawrence Green, of Albany, N. Y. The interment took place at Groton,

Mrs. MARY ANN STEBBINS, widow of Dr. John B. Stebbins, died quite suddenly at her home, 465 W. Broadway, S. Boston, Tuesday morning, Jan. 6, 1891, shortly after 7 o'clock. She was the youngest child of the Hon. Benjamin Whitman, first Ch. Justice of the Municipal Court of Boston, when that town was made a city in 1822. She was born at Boston, Feb. 23, 1811, and lived to the advanced age of 79 years, 10 months and 14 days. She leaves two children, Oliver B. Stebbins, a valued contributor to the REGISTER and a useful member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, and Mrs. Mary Anna B. Gray, wife of ex-Alderman Hollis R. Gray of Malden, three granddaughters, to whom she was devotedly attached, and one great-granddaughter. "Mrs. Steb-' says the South Boston Inquirer, "was a woman of extremely generous disposition, fond of society and public entertainments of all kinds, and of a sensitive, ardent temperament. She had been looking forward to, and had commenced making preparations for, the celebration of her 80th birthday on the 23d of the next month, a celebration which never is to come. Her health had been gradually failing for the last two years. though she was able to be present at the Christmas festivities at the house of her daughter, Mrs. Gray, and was in good spirits on that occasion. immediate cause of her death was bronchial trouble combined with a heartfailure, from which at her great age she was unable to rally."

Mrs. SARAH DIODATI GARDINER THOMPson died March 8, 1891, at her late residence, 25 La Fayette Place, city of New York. She was the widow of David Thompson of New York, and daughter of the late John Lyon Gardiner of Gardiner's Island. She was born Nov. 1, 1807; married May 10, 1827, at the Manor House, Gardiner's Island. Mrs. Thompson was a lady of great refinement and culture, and through her long life, extending over 83 years, she held a high place in the esteem of a large circle of New York's most in-fluential people. Her husband David Thompson, who was born May 3, 1798, died February 22, 1871. He occupied many important financial positions with great credit and honor, and at the time of his death was president of the New York Life Insurance & Trust Company and vice president of the Bank of America. Mrs. Thompson was a descendant in the 8th generation from Lion Gardiner, whose settlement of Gardiner's Island in 1639 was the first English settlement in New York.

Mrs. Eliza G. Waters, widow of the late Hon. Joseph G. Waters, died at her home, 80 Washington Square, Salem, Mass., Tuesday evening, Nov. 13, 1890, at the advanced age of 92 years 9 months. She was the mother of Henry F. Waters, A.M., whose English Genealogical Gleanings and other contributions to the REGISTER are well

The Salem Gazette of November 21st says of her: She was "the wife of an honored citizen, the devoted mother of quite a large family, the mistress of a home that was noted for its wide and cordial hospitality. She was a woman of such genial spirit that she drew a large circle of friends about her, and to the last kept up her interest in them. Long after people of her age have re-tired from active social duties, Mrs. Waters was not only able, but desired to visit among her friends, to attend to the affairs of her household, and dispense genial hospitality. She was young in spirit, though the weight of years rested upon her. No one can help recalling with pleasure her cheerful greeting, her genuine affection, which flowed out so naturally, and made her a centre of attraction for so many years. She was a home-maker, and no more beautiful sight have we known than to see her living under the shelter of her roof-tree, far beyond fourscore years, the object of the devoted love of her sons, the admiration of her neighbors and friends; with ability to think and plan, and execute almost as well as in the days of her youth. What a witness is such a life to God's unfailing good-ness and love. We may rejoice that she has lived so long, and now

'Life's blessings all enjoyed, life's labors done, Screnely to her final rest has passed While the soft memory of her virtues yet Lingers, like twilight hues when the bright sun is set.' ''

Miss Caroline Quincy Wendell died at her residence, No. 38 Pleasant Street, Portsmouth, N. H., on Saturday, December 20, 1890. She was the second daughter of the late Jacob Wendell and Mehetabel Rindge Rogers of that place, and was the last representative of her family resident there. At the time of her death she was within a few days of her seventieth year, having been born upon December 24, 1820, at the old homestead, in the very room where she passed away. Upon the death of her father, which occurred August 27, 1865, she inherited the homestead, and continued to reside there unin-terruptedly until her death. In her, the sentiment of family loyalty was strongly illustrated. She inherited the historical and antiquarian tastes of her father, and it was her special care that the old home should retain unimpaired the familiar atmosphere of the past, in the old-fashioned furnishings of the last century.

Miss Wendell was a descendant in the seventh generation (see Register, July, 1882), from Evert Jansen¹ Wendel, the first American ancestor of the name, who emigrated from Embden, in East Friesland, to the Dutch Province of New Netherland (the present New York) in 1642. She obtained her middle name of Quincy from her great-grand-mother on her father's side, Elizabeth, the second daughter of Judge Edmund and Dorothy (Flynt) Quincy of Braintree, Mass., who married John⁴ Wendell, of Boston, Nov. 10, 1724. On the maternal side she came of stanch Puritan Lineage, being the great-great-granddaughter of the Rev. Nathaniel Rogers, minister of the First (North Congregational) Church of Portsmouth, from 1699 until 1723.

MEMOIR OF HENRY AUSTIN WHITNEY, A.M.

By JOSEPH CUTLER WHITNEY, Esq., of Milton, Mass.

HENRY AUSTIN WHITNEY, the only son of Joseph and Elizabeth (Pratt) Whitney, was born in the house then numbered 26 Purchase Street, in Boston, Oct. 6, 1826. On his father's side he was descended from John Whitney of Isleworth, County of Middlesex, England, the progenitor of the Whitney family of northern New England, who in 1635 left his native country with his wife Elinor and five sons and made Watertown in Massachusetts his He lived and prospered there till his death in 1673, was a landholder and farmer, selectman from 1638 for a period of seventeen years, constable in 1641, and town clerk in 1655. Thomas in the second generation, who came from England with his father as a child, continued to live in Watertown and to hold lands there. His son Thomas successively held lands and lived in Watertown, Stow, and that part of Lancaster that afterwards became Bolton. His son Benjamin, born 1687, held lands in Marlborough. He was an energetic and enterprising man, and was active during the Indian disturbances that bore so hard on the scattered frontier settlements of New England in the early part of the eighteenth century. He died in 1737, at a time when he was making arrangements to establish himself in business, in Boston. His widow Abigail (Bridge) Whitney took up the work where he had left it, however, carried out the plans that he had formed and engaged successfully in mercantile affairs in Boston. Their son Samuel, born at Marlborough in 1734, followed his mother's example, and from 1755 was in business in Boston with a branch in Salem. When in the year 1767 the depression that preceded the revolution was felt, he moved to Concord, bought a farm, and established a store. He took an active part in the events that led to final separation from the mother country, was a member of the town Committee of Correspondence and of several other important Committees, served as a Muster Master when the VOL. XLV. 17 town raised minute men, represented Concord in the first provincial Congress, so called, of 1774-5, and was engaged in the Concord fight: When Boston was evacuated by the British he sold his farm, returned to town, resumed business again till 1793, and then removed to the part of Massachusetts that is now Castine, Maine. His commercial ventures there proved successful, and he died there His son Joseph was born at Concord 1771. When his parents moved to Castine he went to Newburyport, where his uncles Cutler were merchants, and found employment there. The same year he married Sally, daughter of Elijah and Susanna Collins of that town. In 1796 his only child Joseph was born, and in 1799 He then moved to Boston, where he soon established his wife died. a business that though profitable while he lived to manage it, was so injured by the embargo acts, that when he died in 1812, at the age of forty-one, his estate when settled showed nothing over outstanding obligations, and his son Joseph, Henry Austin Whitney's father, was left an orphan when sixteen years old-"without a friend in the world to whom he had a right to look for assistance and nothing to depend upon for a maintenance but his own exertions," as he expressed himself in a letter written at the time. His inheritance, however, was a keen sense of honor, a sound judgment, and an energetic temperament. Before he reached his majority he had been admitted as a partner to a business that was sufficiently lucrative to enable him each year to lay aside something for the future. By his careful management and the most strict integrity he gradually developed a business of large proportions. His sagacity enabled his firm to pass through the financial crises of 1837 and 1857, without their credit being questioned. Those were periods when many commercial houses that had been considered among the strongest were obliged to suspend payment. He was a thoughtful man, of cultivated tastes, a constant and careful reader, and was anxious that his children, of whom he had but two who lived beyond infancy, should have every educational advantage. In 1822 he married Elizabeth, the second daughter of John and Mary (Tewksbury) Pratt. She was of a happy, vivacious temperament, was a model house-keeper of the old school, and was proud and fond of her husband, as he in turn was of her. He died at Boston, Sept. 11, 1869.

Henry Whitney's* boyhood was passed in Boston and its neighborhood, and his early education was received at private schools in Boston in winter, and in country ministers' families and boarding schools in summer. His parents moved from Purchase Street to 59 High Street in 1831, and in 1838 from there to the house now numbered 146 Tremont Street. His sister Caroline (now Mrs. Hezron Ayres Johnson of New York) was three years older than he, and consequently not so much of a companion as his boy cousins,

He was christened Henry Augustus Whitney, but his name was changed to Henry Austin Whitney by decree of Probate Court, February, 1867.

George Langdon Pratt and Sidney Bartlett, who were near his age and were his constant play-fellows. In 1840, with his cousins and other Boston boys of his own age, he was at Asa Wing's well known boarding school of that day, at Sandwich. His school life there as elsewhere passed happily, and in the autumn of that year he began to fit for Harvard College at Chauncy-Hall School under Messrs. Thayer and Cushing. He gave this glimpse of his school life there when writing in his class-book at the time of leaving college :- "I began to fit for college, joining the class of Cunningham, Ellis, Lawrence and Stearns of 'ours' [college class], and to begin fitting was about all that I think any of us ever did. Lawrence's besetting sin was his bad habit of looking at notes during recitations; Cunningham was frequently taken to task for warbling Ethiopian melodies; Stearns having hung the teachers in effigy from the ceiling by means of spit-balls, was threatened with expulsion; and we all, as I remember, had a propensity for attending auctions during school hours. With the exception of a few exciting incidents of this nature all went smoothly until the time of our entering the University in 1842, which good fortune, rather than proper attainments, enabled us to do."

In college he was a general favorite with his classmates, as his temperament and characteristics were such as to win for him not only the good will of all with whom he came in contact, but more than this, the esteem and friendship of many. In after life he numbered his college friends among his closest friends. He was Krokodeilos of the Hasty Pudding Club, a member of the Porcellian Club, and of the Phi Beta Kappa, President of the Pierian Sodality, and Chief Marshal of his class on Commencement Day. He was also one of several who in 1844 formed the first college boat club, and one of those who took part in the last annual parade of the Navy Club. He was at one time suspended for holding office in a society, some members of which created a disturbance in which he did not participate; and, while he had his share in many college pranks, they were in the main harmless fun and the result of exuberant spirits and a quick wit. One that he always laughed over and that is indicative of others, was when a classmate was suspended, as his friends thought unjustly. At the time appointed for the unfortunate to leave Cambridge, a barouche drawn by four horses and accompanied by four outriders in tall hats and white trousers drove into the College yard. The hero of the day was presented with a pair of white kid gloves, which he accepted with great dignity and then seated himself in the barouche. The scene was most ludicrous, and of course the participants missed no opportunity to make it more so. Finally, cheered by the students and jeered by the townspeople, the barouche and its escort dashed off for Boston. Owing to the inportance of the occasion they neglected to pay toll at the bridge, and finally brought up at the Tremont House. Henry Whitney

" quorum pars magna fuit."

A memorandum made by his father in his sophomore year shows what impressed an older person as important features in his career at the time:—"During the winter vacation Henry has been required to study Latin and recite twice a week to Mr. Cushing to make up deficiencies. By his own request he has been excused from the study of mathematics. His great fault is wasting his time attending to too many things, the want of a fixed purpose, of fixed attention, of some regular system. Last vacation he took lessons on the flute and is doing so again this vacation."

In his summer vacation in 1844 his ideas were broadened by his first extended journey. This was made in company with his classmate T. Bigelow Lawrence and an older gentleman who acted as mentor. They visited the principal Western Cities where they had letters to and met many people. They also visited the Mammoth Cave, Gen. Jackson at the Hermitage, the Mormon Temple at Nauvoo, the Falls of St. Anthony, and returned home by way of the great lakes and Niagara.

He graduated from Harvard College in the famous class of 1846, that has on its rolls the names of many distinguished men, and while his college course was not productive of high rank in scholarship, it was doubtless the chief influence that acted to call into existence a strong literary taste. Throughout life, literature was to him all that Cicero claimed for it when he said, "Hæc studia adolescentiam alunt, senectutem oblectant, secundas res ornant, adversis solatium ac perfugium præbent, delectant domi, non impediunt foris, pernoctant nobiscum, peregrinantur, rusticantur: "-For, trained to become familiar with books in his youth, they were a source of pleasure to him as the years rolled by. His familiarity with authors added much to his personal attractions in prosperity, and when dark days came to his home gave a refuge and solace that otherwise he would At home literature was a pleasure to him, while in business transactions it in no wise hampered him. Many a night he passed reading and writing, and when travelling he often turned aside from the beaten track to visit some literary man, or some spot that was usually unfrequented by travellers, but was connected in his mind with some noteworthy incident familiar to him from his reading. In the country, too, as elsewhere, his books were never far from him.

On leaving college, influenced perhaps by hereditary tendency, doubtless by his father's success, he chose a mercantile career rather than a professional one. He got his first insight of a mercantile life as clerk in a dry goods house, where he was for two years after leaving college. He next became a clerk with his father's firm, the house of Joseph Whitney & Co., which manufactured men's boots and brogans in several New England towns, and sold them in the south and southwest. In 1849 he was admitted a partner in the firm. After his father retired from business, at the close of the year 1866, he continued with the remaining partners under the firm name of James L. Gorham & Co. till 1872, when the firm was dissolved. Up to the time of the rebellion the business was very successful, but that caused them to make heavy losses. They lost not only through the total repudiation of debts by almost all of their customers in the slave states, who in common with the opinion generally prevalent in the south, looked upon secession as something that justified the repudiation of all northern debts; but they also lost by the market being taken from them where most of their sales had previously been From this blow they soon recovered, however; they found new markets, and were again successful. But competition gradually became close, business methods changed and new ones came into vogue among their competitors that to them seemed neither wise nor prudent. As a result the copartnership was dissolved and at an extremely fortunate time; for the great fire of 1872 and the financial crisis of 1873 both followed within two years.

In 1852 Mr. Whitney was married to Fanny Lawrence (christened Mary Frances), the youngest daughter of William Lawrence, a well known and respected Boston merchant who had died four years previously, and his wife Susan Ruggles (Bordman) Lawrence. Fanny Lawrence, as she was always called, and which name she assumed when married, was born in Bulfinch Street, Boston, Aug. 19, 1828. By the removal of her family to 150 Tremont Street, the young people became neighbors and an intimacy ripening into affection gradually grew between them. They were married by the Rev. Samuel K. Lothrop, D.D., March 3, 1852. Their marriage was in all respects a happy one. She was an affectionate wife, a devoted mother to the six children that were born to them, and was his constant companion at home and on most of his journeys whether of business or pleasure. For fifteen years their happiness was unclouded, but in the autumn of 1866, Oct. 23, they lost their eldest son, Henry Lawrence, by a fatal gunning accident. He was a bright, promising boy of thirteen, and his death threw a dark shadow for a time over the household.

To speak more in detail of the literary tastes already referred to: Mr. Whitney was always an extensive reader. He read on all subjects, rapidly, thoroughly, and remembered what he read. At one time the study of Milton's writings absorbed his attention, and he made a fine collection of various editions of Milton, and works bearing on this subject. The authorship of the Junius Letters was a question he often puzzled over and never wearied in discussing. His interest in this question was first aroused by its being given as the subject for a theme, when he was in college. Massachusetts and New England history and biography were subjects in which he

On the 6th of Febru re was elected a member of the New-England al Society, and on March 11, 1858, was elected Histo. a reside muer of the Massachusetts Historical Society. In the latter so ne served as one of the Standing Committee in 1859-60, as one the Committee of Publications of three volumes of "Proceedings," and as one of the Committee on Memorials of the In 1863 he was admitted a member of the Prince The following is a list of his publications: Society.

He was also one of the committee that prepared the volume "In Commemoration of the one hundred and twenty-fifth Anniversary of St. Andrew's Lodge, Boston, 1887."

His library was an excellent one. He became the owner of some five thousand well selected volumes and, except his Miltons, he aimed in collecting to secure books for the sake of their subject matter rather than because they were rare editions. To such historical works as were meritorious, but not of a sufficiently popular character to be pecuniarily successful, he was always a liberal subscriber.

His home in Boston was at 54 Boylston Street, from the time of his marriage till 1886. In 1854 he first made Brush Hill in Milton his summer home, and always went there afterwards, except a few summers before 1864. In that year he took the house that he had previously lived in there, on a long lease, and in 1870 he became a legal resident of the town. In 1865 and subsequently he became the owner of about one hundred and fifty acres of land on and near Brush Hill, and in 1882 first occupied a large and handsome house that he had built for himself on this place. There he passed two winters previously to occupying, a few months before his death, his new city house at 261 Marlborough Street, that he had taken much pleasure in building.

He was fond of his country life and the freedom it gave, and enjoyed walking and driving. He was a lover of nature and in arboriculture took much pleasure. He liked to wander among his trees, to watch their growth, to give directions about planting new or trimming old ones, and would himself lop any dead branches or offensive sprouts that he could reach. His especial care was for two chestnut trees that he, his wife, and children planted from seed a few days before the death of his eldest son. Before his own death they had grown to be tall and vigorous young trees.

In the welfare of the town of Milton and in matters pertaining to it he took a lively interest. In the excellent town history written by Rev. Dr. Teele, in accordance with a vote of the town in 1884, which i sight, L book is the These we was not for his t as trustee. In 1874 he was chosen President of the Suffolk National Bank and served till Feb. 15, 1876, when, though he remained a director till he died, he resigned as President, to accept the Presidency of the Boston & Providence Railroad to which he had been elected. His previous connection with the Baltimore Steamship Company had made him familiar with the business of transportation, but what was fully as important, he had a clear head for finance. The previous year during an eight months absence in Europe of Gov. Clifford, who was then President of the railroad, he had acted for him; so that, when chosen, he was well qualified to assume the duties of the He remained President of the company till his death. While in general his management of its affairs was marked by conservatism, the stockholders' interests were cared for and guarded with an eye to the future equally with the present; the policy toward the travelling public was liberal and satisfactory; and except for the unfortunate accident at the South Street bridge, the company was prosperous and unusually free from accidents. When he became President of the road the stock was selling at 145, and at the time of his death was selling on a basis of 292.* Meanwhile the stockholders had received dividends of from six to ten dollars per share in each to, he was connected with various other business, literary, benevolent, and social corporations and associations. At various times he served as Trustee of the Massachusetts General Hospital, Secretary of the Boston Dispensary, Director of the Detroit, Lansing and Northern Railroad, Director of the North American Insurance Co., and in 1862, when Dr. Hill was inaugurated as President of Harvard College, he was Chief Marshal. At the time of his death he was Vice President of the Humane Society of Massachusetts, member of the Massachusetts Charitable Fire Association, Past Master of St. Andrew's Lodge of Freemasons (his grandfather Joseph Whitney became a member of this lodge in 1794), Director of the Boylston Insurance Co., Director of the Boston and Roxbury Mill Corporation, Trustee of the Harvard College Loan Fund, Secretary of his college class, an office that he had filled since 1852 in a manner most acceptable to his classmates, and was a member of several social clubs.

In politics Mr. Whitney was a whig, and afterwards a republican, though in 1860 he cast his vote for the Bell and Everett electors, in the belief that there was a way out of the political troubles of that time other than war. His sympathies for the negro race were strong, and he said his blood boiled when he saw the fugitive slave Burns marched down State Street to be returned to slavery: but he had no sympathy with the abolitionists of the period preceding the war, and regarded them in much the same light as he did secessionists. His views as an emancipationist were practical, however, as this illustration shows. He chanced to have in his employ in 1859 a mulatto who had gained his freedom, but who had left an only son in Norfolk, Virginia, where he was held a slave. Mr. Whitney made an arrangement with the father by which he was to buy the boy, and ten dollars a month was to be deducted from the father's wages till the cost was repaid. He made the purchase, paid four hundred dollars and received his bill of sale for "one mulatto boy," and a regular bill of lading for him, when he was shipped to Boston by steamer, as though he had been a barrel of oysters. The father kept his part of the bargain and worked well and faithfully till more than half of the cost was repaid, when the balance was given to him.

With the outbreak of the rebellion Mr. Whitney became a firm supporter of the government and his inclinations were to take an active part in the struggle, but he yielded to his wife's entreaties and staid by his family.

He never held political office, but often exerted himself in political movements in favor of measures that he thought right, and never neglected his duty at the ballot box. Perhaps the only exception was his neglecting to vote for presidential electors in 1884.

In religion he was a Unitarian and Christian in the broadest sense. Discarding dogmas, he loved his fellow-men and walked uprightly among them, doing to others as he would be done by. In fact he was a gentleman in the fullest sense of the word. and young man he went with his parents to the Federal St. Church. After his marriage he became a member of the "Church and Society in Brattle Square," and when that congregation dispersed he became a pew holder in the Unitarian Church at Milton. He showed his independence of character in religious matters at the time he was graduating from college as he did in all matters where he thought it right, by positively refusing Dr. Gannett when he asked him in the presence of his father to become a teacher in the Sunday school. When asked his reason for refusing he frankly admitted that he did not believe in Sunday schools, as he thought that children had enough school in the rest of the week and that they should not be obliged to hurry away from home on Sunday morning. His father afterwards asked him as a favor to do as Dr. Gannett asked, and in deference to his father's wishes he served for a time as a teacher in the Federal Street Church Sunday School.

While he was a public-spirited citizen and a liberal giver, he disliked any public notice of himself and never spoke in public meetings, except where circumstances in connection with business matters made it necessary for him to do so. As a conversationalist he invariably appeared to advantage, and as his manners were naturally affable and courteous and he had a fine sense of humor, his society was in constant demand among the many in his native city who appreciated these qualities. Hospitable and cordial in his greeting, his friends always met with a warm welcome at his home, whether they came by previous invitation or dropped in upon him by chance, and many are the recollections that remain of pleasant hours passed in his company. His friends and social acquaintances were numerous, and with young people he was always a favorite. At the time of his death Mr. George B. Chase, in addressing the Massachusetts Historical Society, said :-

"The kind attention he showed to children was but one indication of a rare sweetness of disposition. To young men he was always attractive for the ready sympathy and generous recognition he showed when they came to him for assistance or friendly advice. • • • Yet, after all, it was his simple, generous nature, his manly and honorable life—adorned with so many graces of manner and of deed, of pleasant wit, of kind thought and friendly counsel—that will cause the great number who called him friend, long to mourn his loss, and always to keep his memory green in their hearts."

Mr. Whitney was about the average height, erect in his carriage, quick in his movements, and walked with an active step. Whether driving or walking he would constantly stop to exchange a friendly word with passing acquaintances.

As has already been said his family relations were extremely happy. His father lived to a mature age to die highly respected after he had accomplished a good life's work, and his mother survived him. He lived to see both a son and a daughter happily married and to have two grandchildren near him. But the year 1883 had brought a terrible blow to him in the loss of his wife. Mrs. Whitney died at their city home January 28, 1883, and though she left with her husband and children those happy memories of kind words and loving care that death fortunately cannot destroy, the companion of over thirty years was gone and the home was changed.

Connected with the life of Mr. Whitney there were few if any episodes of general public interest. Like his ancestors he bore his part as one of the many in the community in which his lot was cast, reputably and industriously; and both as a private citizen and while filling the semi-public offices to which he was called he worked for the common good. A man above the average in intelligence and refinement, who exerts his influence to secure conscientious and honest management and stamps with his character extended business affairs, as he did, leaves an impression for good not alone on the many with whom he comes directly in contact, but also on the community to which the example of fairness and honesty is given.

Respected by his business associates as a man of liberal ideas, sound judgment, and upright business methods; esteemed by his friends as a good friend in adversity as well as in prosperity; loved by his wife and children as a husband and father whose thoughts were constantly of his home and how he might make it bright and cheerful; and blessed by many whom he had at one time or another helped over hard places, he passed a useful life. While in common with all mortals he had faults, the good so largely predominated as to leave little to be criticized.

February 19, 1889, while present at a hearing of a legislative committee to favor the continued publication of the Province Laws, and at a time when he was apparently in vigorous health, he was suddenly seized with violent pain and called a carriage to drive him home. By the time he got there he was suffering intensely and physicians were immediately summoned, but medical skill proved of no avail. A hemorrhage of the pancreas, from which there was no hope of recovery, had occurred; and on the twenty-first of February, after he had arranged a few affairs that he had on his mind and said good-bye to his children, without regrets for the past or fears for the future and at peace with all mankind, he ceased to breathe. Two days later, after funeral services at King's Chapel, his body was buried at Mt. Auburn Cemetery beside those of his wife and eldest son.

His five children who survived him were:

Ellerton Pratt, b. Aug. 21, 1858.

Elizabeth, b. Mar. 23, 1860; m. James Jackson Minot, M.D. One son Constance, b. May 11, 1865; has since m. Franz Edouard Zerrahn. Hugh, b. Sept. 7, 1870.

ublished by The Massachusetts Council of Deliberation Accepted Scottish Rite of Masonry in their Proceed-Among the eulogistic remarks that this contains,

"The solid qualities of his judgment in business affairs, and the admirable executive ability that characterized him, did not more surely command the respect of the business community than did the courtesy and frankness of his manners and the generosity of his heart towards appeals of misfortune or merit." * * *

"The good mason has ceased to be with us. The good father has gone on his eternal journey. His children, his friends, his associates, and the Masonic Fraternity mourn for one whose virtues, like pure gold, endured the tests of the crucible of life."

Also resolutions adopted by the directors of the Boston & Providence Railroad, that express tersely much the same idea of his character as this memoir is intended to convey:

"Voted, that the directors desire to express their sense of the loss they have suffered, in common with the rest of the community, in the sudden death of Henry Austin Whitney."

"Elected a director of the road in 1871, and serving as its president since 1875, he has rendered long, faithful and valuable service which deserves to be remembered. Liberal in his conception of the duty which a railroad owes to the public, vigilant of the interests of the stockholders, of kind and generous impulses, of unswerving integrity in the management of the trust confided to him, his performance of the duties of his office merited and achieved success."

"His cultivated intelligence, his ready wit, his genial and social disposition, and the courtesy which marked his intercourse with all, won him many friends, to whom his loss will bring enduring sorrow."

Another human life has swept by in the stream of eternity, but the ripples it made in the current in passing have left their marks on the shore;

> "And learning lives, and vertu still doth shine, When follie dies, and ignoraunce doth pine."

"TITLE AND HISTORY OF THE HENRY VASSALL ESTATE,"* CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

By the late Samuel Batchelder, Esq., of Cambridge, Mass.

The records of Cambridge commence in the year 1632.

"January 7, 1632.-It is ordered that no person whatsoever shall set up any house in the bounds of the town without leave from the major part.

"December 2.—Ordered that no person shall fell any tree within the path which goeth from Watertown to Charlestown.
"March 2, 1633.—Granted John Benjamin all the ground between John Masters, his ground, and Anthony Couldbyes, provided that the Windmill hill shall be reserved for the town's use, and a cart way two rods wide unto the same.

"January 5, 1634 .- It is ordered that whosoever hath any lot granted by the town, and shall not improve the same then it is to return to the Town, or if he shall improve the same, he shall first offer it to the town; if they refuse to give him what charge he hath been at, then to have liberty to sell it to whom he can.

"February 6, 1636.—Granted to Mr. Green half an acre for a house lot next to Mr. Cabot upon condition that if he go it shall return to the Town, only paying the worth of his buildings and fencing and breaking up. More granted unto "William Adams half an acre. "Robert Parker half an acre. "William Wilcox half an acre.

For possessions and boundaries of these half acre lots, see extract from Proprietors' records."

The foregoing extracts from the Records of Cambridge fix the location of the streets. The "path that leads from Watertown to Charlestown" includes Brattle Street and Mason Street, as far as the Common, and the cart way to Windmill hill is now Ash Street. But the boundaries of Windmill hill, according to the records in the Town Book of 1633, reserved for the use of the Town, with the cart way two rods wide to the same, were not staked out until 1684, when a committee was appointed for the purpose, who reported as follows:

"The East side thereof is bounded by Richard Eccles six rods and seven feetthe Southerly side bounded on Charles River ten rods—the Westerly side on said Eccles's marsh seven rods and a half—and the Northerly side on said Eccles' ten rods and four feet."

By the above it would appear that Richard Eccles had become the owner of the several grants to John Benjamin including his marsh, and this is confirmed by the deed of John Marritt to Jonathan Remington in 1665, in which a part of the western boundary refers to Richard Eccles as the owner, and it appears also by the same deed that Eccles was also the owner of the half acre lot formerly granted to William Wilcox adjoining that of Nathaniel Green at the corner of Ash Street.

In the volume called the Proprietors' Records is the following order of Court.

"April 1, 1634.—It was ordered the constable and four of the chief inhabitants of every town to be chosen by all the freeman there at town meeting, with the advice of some one or more of the next assistants, shall make a survey of the

he foregoing order of Court, the claims to real estate in According t Cambridge were recorded in this volume denominated Proprietors' Records, which, until the commencement or the p stry of Deeds for the County of Middlesex about the year 1650, the evidence of Title to Real Estate.

In the early pages of this volume are recorded the following claims:-

"Oct. 10th, 1635 .- John M buildings, backsides and plant Windmill hill South East-J town North-John Prince North Base. acres—John Masters South—Highway to Wat mill hill East."

"John Prince did not reside here, but removed to Hull, and under the order passed January 5, 1634, providing that the lots of those who should not make improvements shoult revert to the Town, the Town proceeded, "February 6, 1636, to make the following grants (Cambridge Records). Granted to Mr. Green half an acre for a house lot next to Mr. Cabot, upon condition that if he go it shall return again to the Town,—also granted unto Wm. Adams half an acre—Robert Parker half an acre—Wm. Wilcox half an acre."

The possessions and boundaries in these half acre lots are afterwards confirmed by a committee, under date of the 12th of the first month 1637, as follows:

We whose names are underwritten, being chosen surveyors for the Town of Cambridge, do for this year enter the houses and lands of the inhabitants thereof as follows:

Barnabas Lamson. Joseph Isaacs. John Moore.

"Wm. Adams, planter, one house and lot containing half an acre, abutting on the highway that leads to Watertown, North—on the land of John Masters both to the South and West-and to the land of Robert Parker East."

"To the widow of Bartholemew Green in west end, one house with half an acre of land, the highway to Watertown North—John Masters South—John Benjamin's highway East—William Wilcox West.

"To Robert Parker one house with garden and backsides, on the Lane to Watertown in the West end-Wm. Wilcox East-John Masters South-Thomas Adams West-highway North."

The possession of the half acre of Wilcox is recognized in the boundaries of the two preceding lots, as between them.

"In 1639 Roger Bancroft bought of Nathaniel Sparhawk one dwelling house with about half an acre of ground to it that the house stands on, with all the rights and privileges thereto belonging. Cary Latham South and West-the highway North-Robert Parker East."

The wife of Cary Latham was a daughter of John Masters, by which means he came into possession of the premises first granted to John Masters.

The preceding lot conveyed to Bancroft, according to the situation and boundaries, must be the same as that assigned to Adams (Thomas or William). I find no conveyance to Sparhawk, but Mr. Paige says there was a family comprising Thomas Adams, who sold a house near Fresh Pond to Nathaniel Sparhawk in 1638, and William Adams, who owned a house south of Brattle Street, and this family went with Hooker to Connecticut.

Mr. Paige says John Masters died December 22, 1639, and his widow died December 26, 1639.

The claim of Cary Latham is entered in Proprietors' Records, Sept. 6th, 1642.

"In West end—One dwelling house with out-houses and seven acres of land—more or less—John Bridge North West—Highway to Windmill Hill South East—John Benjamin South West—Elizabeth Green, Wm. Wilcox, Robert Parker, Roger Bancroft and highway to Watertown North East."

There is in Proprietors' Records the claim of "John Bridge bought of Cary Latham half an acre—more or less of upland, the marsh South—Thomas Marriot West—the highway to Watertown North—Cary Latham's land East." John Bridge before this had a lot on the Watertown road, as the Town 1637, August 14th, granted John Bridge "liberty to set the porch of his house six feet into the highway," and the conveyance of Latham extended his territory to the marsh.

Cary Latham removed to New London about 1646, and under date of sixth month, "1646, conveys to Thomas Crosby one dwelling house and seven acres of land—more or less—John Bridge Northwest—highway to Windmill hill South east—his own land South west—Elizabeth Green, Wm. Wilcox, Robert Parker, Roger Bancroft and highway to Watertown North east."

According to the descriptions and boundaries in the preceding deed there must have been at that date six dwelling houses fronting on Brattle Street, on this estate—one on each of the half acre lots granted to Green, Wilcox, Parker and Adams, and one on the five or six rods of the front, on Brattle Street, of the seven acres granted to Masters, which included the row of Hawthorn trees at the west of the present house, and the house of John Bridge west of the row of trees. If these four half acre lots were laid out four rods on the street, and extending back 20 rods, of which there are some other examples in original laying out of lots in Cambridge, the fourth lot would cover a part of the ground occupied by the East wing of the present house, which was not built until after those first houses built before 1640, had gone to decay, except that at the corner of Ash Street, which must have been a house of some consequence, as it was maintained in a habitable condition until it was sold by Ebenezer Wyeth to John Vassall in 1741, and on digging six or eight inches below the surface, at the present time, we discover the remains of a pavement of small pebbles of different colors.

"February 26, 1645, Robert Bancroft bought of Thomas Crosby four acres and thirty poles—more or less—John Bridge North-west and South west—Edmond Frost South-east—His own land (Roger Bancroft's) Robert Parker and highway to Watertown North east."

Mr. Paige says Thomas Crosby resided west of Ash Street, which estate he sold partly to Edmund Frost in 1649, and to Richard Eccles in 1651, at both which dates he resided in Rowley.

"In 1649, Robert Parker to Roger Bancroft one dwelling house with a barn and about half an acre of land adjoining—more or less—being bounded on the

and History of the Henry Vassall Estate. [July, said I Samu oft's house and yard on the north west and on the south westthe South east-highway to Watertown North east.

By th five and sequenc Marrat devised ing hous valued at ng conveyances Bancroft would be the owner of between of the premises, and we find no other record of any con-649 to 1665, except the probate of the will of Thomas h "the house and farm where my son John now lives" is hich appears in the Inventory of the estate as, "The dwellthouses that was Roger Bancrofts and eight acres of land"

Sept. 21st, 1665. John Marratt conveys to athan Remington "one dwelling house, outhouses and barns, and five acres and adjoining thereto, bounded with a highway to Charles River South east—Iath'l Green, Richard Eccles and highway North—John Marratt above said, West—Richard Eccles and Matthew Bridge South west.

In the foregoing deed John Marratt conveys only five acres of the farm of eight acres inherited from his father, bounding in on the west in part on his own land.

September 22d, 1682. Jonathan Remington for the consideration of £120 conveys "to Andrew Belcher my messuage or tenement with the orchard and land adjoining and belonging containing five acres, be the same more or less situate and being in Cambridge aforesaid, butted and bounded Northerly upon the land of Nath'l Green in part, the land of Richard Eccles in part, and partly by a highway—South east upon a highway leading to Charles River—South west upon land of Richard Eccles in part and the land of John Marratt in part-and Westerly upon the land of Reuben Luxford, or however otherwise the same is bounded or reported to be bounded."

By the will of Andrew Belcher, who died in 1717, Jonathan Belcher inherited this estate, and December 1st, 1719, in consideration of the sum of £220 conveyed to John Frizzell "all that certain tract or parcel of land, situate, lying and being in Cambridge, in the County of Middlesex, and province aforesaid, containing by estimation six acres, more or less, being bounded northerly by the county road—North-westerly by land belonging to the heirs of Reuben Luxford, deceased, and Amos Marratt, Southerly by John Phillips' marsh-South westerly by a highway leading down to the Windmill—and Northerly and Easterly by the house lot of the said John Phillips, or however otherwise bounded or represented to be bounded, together with the dwelling house, barn, out-houses, edifices, fences, profits, privileges, rights, commodities and appurtenances to the said tract or parcel of land belonging."

In the conveyance from John Marratt to Jonathan Remington the northern boundary is partly on land of Nathaniel Green and Richard Eccles. In the deed of Belcher to Frizzell the house plot of John Phillips comes into the northerly and easterly boundary, instead of Richard Eccles. Eccles died, according to Mr. Paige, previous to March, 1696, when his estate was sold by his daughters, probably to Phillips. This was, no doubt, the half acre originally granted to Wm. Wilcox, and now denominated the house plot of Phillips, and which was purchased together with what is here called Phillips's Marsh, at the sale of Eccles's estate

July 26, 1736. Mercy Frizzell, widow of John Frizzell, Jr., conveys to John Vassall in consideration of £1000 "A certain messuage or tenement situate, lying and being in Cambridge in the County of Middlesex and Province aforesaid, containing by estimation seven acres of land—be it more or less—with dwelling house, barn and outhouses thereon standing and being, bounded north-Easterly partly with Samuel Bull and partly with the road leading to Watertown—South westerly with Joseph B. Crackbone—North westerly with the heirs of Luxford Patten deceased and South easterly partly with Samuel Bull and partly with a highway to the brick wharf."

As the above deed conveys one acre more than the deed to John Frizzell, and omits the boundary on the house plot of John Phillips, it may be inferred that this house plot had become part of the estate conveyed.

December 30, 1741. John Vassall conveys to his brother Henry Vassall "now residing in Boston, New England, late of the Island of Jamaica, planter, in consideration of £9050 New England currency, a certain messuage or tenement lying and being in Cambridge aforesaid containing by estimation seven acres of land, be the same more or less, with dwelling house, barn and out houses thereon standing and being bounded North east partly with land now or late of Sam'l Bull and partly on the road leading to Watertown, South east with Joseph Crackbone—North west with the heirs of Luxford Patten deceased—and South east partly with Sam'l Bull and partly with a highway to the brick wharf, or however otherwise bounded, or reputed to be bounded, also all the furniture of household of and belonging to the said dwelling-house (one bed and furniture excepted, which is to be at my own option), also one chariot, one four wheel chaise, two bay stone horses, and two black geldings."

Also thirty acres of mowing and pasture land on the opposite side of Charles River.

The territory conveyed by the preceding deed did not extend to the corner of Ash Street, where the title of the half acre originally granted to Bartholomew Green in 1636, after the death of Green and the sale of his estate in 1707 by his heirs, had been continued through	Amos Marratt	in	1723

and	Joseph Crackbone	in	1728
and	Samuel Bull	in	1784
and	Ebenezer Wyeth	in	1738
until	it was sold Novem	ber 27,	1741

by John Wyeth to John Vassall in consideration of £260, "bounded Northerly by the road leading to Watertown—North westerly by said Vassall's land,—and South easterly by a way leading to Charles River." And March 31, 1747, John Vassall to Henry Vassall in consideration of £700 old tenor conveys the same property to Henry Vassall. This completes the title to the estate to the Eastern boundary on Ash Street.

In 1741, at the time of the first deed from John Vassall to his brother, and in the preceding deeds, the boundary of the estate on the West was, at different periods, John Bridge, Matthew Bridge, Reuben Luxford and Luxford Patten, and this boundary is still indicated by the row of Hawthorn, Elm and Linden trees which probably stood near the western limits.

July 13, 1737, Rebecca Patten, widow, gives a quit claim deed to John Vassall, for the "consideration of £100 of all the right, title and estate which I, the said Rebecca, have or ought to have of, in or unto a certain messuage and tract of land situated in Cambridge, containing by estimation one acre and an half, more or less, bounded North on the highway leading from Cambridge to Watertown—East on the aforesaid John Vassall's land—South on Amos Marratt's marsh and West on said Marratt's upland."

December 5, 1746, John Vassall to Henry Vassall "about an acre—bounded Northerly on a road leading to Watertown—North westerly and South westerly on land of said John Vassall and Easterly on land of said Henry Vassall."

The above deed and that from John Vassall to Henry Vassall dated March 31, 1747, of the half acre purchased of Wyeth, completes the East and West boundaries of the estate. Before this the title to the whole territory was not united in one owner.

It seems therefore clear that the brick wall on Brattle and Ash Streets must have been built by Henry Vassall after that date.

I have found no document or tradition to fix the time when the oldest part of the present house was built, but it was probably about the year 1700. The present proprietor in repairing the house in 1842 found the plastering in such a condition that he had most of the house newly plasterud, and on taking off the old plastering found that on the front of the house was done when the lime was made by the burning of oyster shells, and the mortar was full of pieces of shells. The front of the house and the west wing and kitchen, one story in height, were probably built while the estate was owned by Andrew Belcher, which was from 1682 to his death in 1717. The estate was inherited by his son Jonathan Belcher, who sold it to John Frizzell in 1719, at which time it must have been a suitable residence for a Boston merchant of some note, who gave a bell to the new North Church, and whose widow left a legacy of £200 to the poor of Boston.

While the estate was owned by this family, from 1719 to 1736, the house was probably enlarged, and had been so much improved, that the estate purchased for £220 was then sold to John Vassall, who found it a suitable residence for his family, a year or two after his marriage with the daughter of Lieut. Governor Spencer Phipps. After the death of his wife, in 1739, he sold it to his brother Henry in 1741, who was then about to marry Penelope, daughter of Isaac Royall of Medford. He continued to occupy the estate until the time of his death, in 1769, during which time he built the east wing of the house, and no doubt made other additions and improvements, as the different parts of the house show that it was built at four different times.

Henry Vassall was reputed to have large estates in the West Indies, and lived in princely style, but while he was making these improvements, in 1748, February 14th he mortgaged the estate and also 30 acres of land on the south side of Charles River, to James Pitts for £779. 12. 6, and in 1765, October 2d, he sold the 30 acres to Ebenezer Bradish, James Pitts giving a release of the same.

December 16, 1764, he gave a mortgage to Charles Russell of Lincoln, for security for a bond for £856. 14. 8, which appears to have been given for the marriage portion of his daughter, who was married to Charles Russell. He also gave Sept. 7th, 1767, a mortgage to Michael Trollet for £225.

These mortgages remained unpaid at the time of his death in 1769. His widow commenced the payment of them, and received a discharge on that of Trollet, Nov. 10th, 1770, on payment of £266. 13. 4. for debt and interest, but it is probable that on account of the troubles preceding the Revolutionary war she was not able to accomplish it. She continued, however, to occupy the estate until the commencement of hostilities, when she and her family left the country. They returned, however, after the Revolution, and died here, the mother at the age of seventy-six and the daughter at fifty-nine.

While the Revolutionary army was at Cambridge, no doubt this house was the headquarters of the Surgeon-General and perhaps a hospital. Doctor Benjamin Church, after he was detected in correspondence with the enemy, was arrested here and confined to his quarters until his trial, and left a record of his occupation of the house by his name cut with a pen knife on one of the doors of his chamber, which is still legible though since covered with several coats of paint.

James Pitts no doubt took possession of the estate under his mortgage, as his heirs—viz.: John Pitts, Samuel Pitts and Lindall Pitts, merchants of Boston, and Jonathan Warren, Esq., and Elizabeth Warren, wife of said Jonathan, in her own right, of Portsmouth, N. H., June 12, 1782, in consideration of £850, convey to Nathaniel Tracy of Newburyport, the Henry Vassall estate, and by the descriptions and boundaries in the deed it appears that Tracy was then the owner of the Craigie estate.

On the failure of Tracy he was in debt to Lane and Frazier of London, and conveyed to Thomas Russell for their benefit, Oct. 30th, 1786, his property (see Register of Deeds, Vol. 94, p. 385), and Thomas Russell conveyed to Andrew Craigie, January 1st, 1792 (see Book 110, p. 406), "a piece of land in Cambridge containing nine acres, bounded North easterly on a highway leading to Charles River—Northerly on a road leading to Watertown, and Westerly and Southerly on other land hereby conveyed, being the late homestead of Henry Vassall, Esquire, together with the dwelling house, barn and out houses thereon standing."

Craigie continued to own the estate until his death. During this time, by some agreement between Bossinger Foster and Craigie whose sister Mary was the wife of Foster, and Craigie having no children, the children of Foster would be his legal heirs. Mr. Foster and his family moved from Boston and resided in this house some years until the death of Foster, which probably took place before that of Craigie, who died, intestate, about 1820. After the assignment of dower to his widow, an agreement was executed Oct. 4th, 1821, between Samuel Haven, of Dedham, and Elizabeth his wife in her right, and Andrew Foster of Roxbury, physician, and John Foster, of Cambridge, gentleman, and Thomas Foster of the same Cambridge, physician, being the heirs at law of Andrew Craigie, late of Cambridge, deceased, intestate, for the partition of the real estate of said intestate in the County of Middlesex, except such parts thereof as have been assigned to his widow as dower.

In the execution of this agreement the property was divided into four parts, and that part denominated share No. 1, fell by lot to Elizabeth Haven, described as follows, Book 240, p. 333.

Share No. 1 consists of the Henry Vassall estate so called, as the same is now separated from the dower of the said Craigie's widow, bounded Westerly thereon by a line* running from the westerly end of the brick wall on the old Watertown road, South 37 degrees West to the new Watertown road, Northerly on the old road to Watertown—Easterly on a lane leading from said road to Charles River, and Southerly on the new road to Watertown.

While the estate was in possession of Judge Haven he made important improvements in the house, raising it a foot and a half and underpinning the same with granite, and also made other repairs.

The present proprietor purchased the estate of Messrs Greenleaf and Hilliard representing the several parties in interest, in December, 1841, just one hundred years after it was conveyed to Henry Vassall, in December, 1741.

LETTER RELATING TO THE BOSTON PORT BILL.

Communicated by FREDERICK TUCKERMAN, S.B., M.D., of Amherst, Mass.

THE subjoined letter may interest some of the readers of the REGISTER. The signer, William Cooper, was town clerk of Boston from 1761 to 1809, and during that period filled many other responsible positions with honor. A more extended notice of him may be found in this magazine, vol. xliv. p. 56.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the Town of Boston duly qualified & legally warned in publick Town Meeting Assembled at Faneuil Hall on Fryday the 13th Day of May Anno Domini 1774.

Voted, that it is the opinion of this Town that if the other Colonies come into a Joint resolution to stop all Importations from Great Britain & exportations to Great Britain and every part of the West Indies, till the Act for blocking up this Harbour be repealed, the same will prove the Salvation of North America & her Liberties: on the other hand if they continue their Exports & Imports, there is high reason to fear, that fraud, power & the most odious oppression will rise tryumphant over right, Justice, social happiness & freedom. And moreover that this Vote be forthwith transmitted by the Moderator, to all our Sister Colonies in the name and behalf of this Town.

Att. WILLIAM COOPER Town Clerk.

Gentlemen

We have just received the Copy of an Act of the British Parliament passed the present session whereby the Town of Boston is treated in a manner the most Ignominius & Unjust. The Parliament have taken upon them from the representation of our Govenor & other persons inimical to & deeply prejudiced against the Inhabitants, to try, condem, an by an Act to punish them unheard which would have been in violation of natural Justice, even if they had an acknowledged Jurisdiction. They have order'd our Port to be intirely shut up, leaving us barely so much of the means of subsistance as to keep us from Perishing with Cold & Hunger, and it is said that a Fleet of British Ships of War is to shut up our Harbour, untill we shall make restitution to the East India Company for the loss of their Tea which was destroyed therein the Winter past, obedience paid to the Laws and Authority of Great Britain and the revenue is duly This Act fills the Inhabitants with Indignation. The more collected. thinking part of those who have heretofore been in favour of the Measures of the British Government, look upon it as not to have been expected even from a barbarous State.

This attack the made immediately upon us is doubtless designed for every other Colony who will not surrender their sacred Rights & Libertys into the Hands of an infamous Ministry. Now therefore is the Time, when all should be united in opposition to this Violation of the Liberties of all. This Grand Object is to divide the Colonies. We are well informed that another Bill is to be brought into Parliament to distinguish this from the other Colonies, by repealing some of the Acts which have been complained of and ease the American Trade: but he assured you will be called upon to surrender your Rights, if ever they should succeed in their attempt to suppress the Spirit of Liberty here.

The single Question then is, whether you consider Boston as now suffering in the common Cause & sensibly feal & resent the injury and Affront offer'd to her. If you do (and we cannot believe otherwise) may we not from your Approbation of our former conduct, in defence of American Liberty, rely on your suspending your Trade with Great Britain at least, which it is acknowledged will be a great but necessary sacrifice to the cause of Liberty & will effectually defeat the designs of this Act of revenge. If this should be done you will please to consider it will be thought a voluntary suffering, greatly short of what we are calld to indure under the immediate Hand of Tyranny.

We Desire your Answer by the Bearer: and after assuring you, that not in the least intimidated by this Inhumane Treatment we are still determined to the utmost of our Abilites to maintain the Rights of America, we

WILLS OF THE AMERICAN ANCESTORS OF GENERAL GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Communicated by Joseph M. Toner, M.D., of Washington, D. C.

THE following may be relied upon as authentic transcripts of the wills of the American ancestors of George Washington. They possess interest to the genealogist and historical student, and are presented in the following order: First, the emigrant John Washington-the great-grandfather of the General. Second, Lawrence Washington, also an emigrant, and brother of John. Third, Lawrence Washington, son of John and nephew of Lawrence the emigrant. Fourth, Deed of release from Roger and Mildred (Washington) Gregory to Augustine Washington. This Mildred Gregory was daughter of Lawrence Washington and sister of Augustine Washington, and the aunt and god-mother of George Washington. Mildred inherited from her father Hunting Creek plantation now "Mount Vernon," which she and her husband by this deed conveyed to her brother Augustine. Fifth, Augustine Washington, son of Lawrence and grandson of John. Sixth, Lawrence Washington, son of Augustine Washington, half-brother of George and great-grandson of John the emigrant and patentee of the Hunting Creek plantation.

VOL. XLV. 19

The will of John Washington has been copied from the original when it was in a better condition than it is at present, and every word I believe is correctly interpreted. The other wills are from certified copies of probated wills on record. The deed of Roger and Mildred Gregory is copied from the original document. They are submitted as sources of history without further explanation or comment.

The original of the above will of John Washington, the emigrant ancestor of President Washington, was preserved among the General's papers at Mount Vernon. After the sale of the estate in 1858 to the Ladies' Mount Vernon Association of the Union, the papers and other relics were removed by the owner. Some of them were exhibitd at the United States National Museum at Washington, for a few weeks, last winter, but were removed in February last and Thursday, April 21st, 22d and 23d, 1891, the collection was sold at auction in Philadelphia by Thomas Birch's Sons. The relics brought very high prices. This will was sold to Mr. Collins for $700. The original of the release of Roger and Mildred Gregory here printed was in the same collection. The relics sold were owned by Messrs. Lawrence Washington, Bushrod C. Washington, Thomas

B. Washington and J. R. C. Lewis.

Much search has been made for about a dozen years for this original will of the Virginia emigrant, John Washington. In 1878 Mr. James Coleman, the well known genealogical bookseller in London, advertised for sale a deed of certain real estate in London, from John Washington of London, citizen and draper, and Margaret his wife one of the daughters of Henry Harwood, gent., to Robert Abbott, citizen and scrivener. The deed was dated June 5, 1657. A deed of a John Washington, dated 1657, probably this one, came about 1878 into the possession of the late Col. Joseph L. Chester, who conjectured that this John Washington might be the Virginia emigrant, selling his property before John Washington might be the Virginia emigrant, seiling his property before leaving England, and as he knew his ancestry, he wished to procure an autograph of the emigrant, or a tracing of one, to compare with the signature to the deed. He wrote to Mr. Robert A. Brock of Richmond, Virginia, to the editor of the Register, and to others in this country, asking them to assist him in procuring one. Mr. Brock had search made in the Westmoreland County Court House for the will, but neither the original nor the record was to be found there. Bishop Meade in his Old Churches, Ministers and Families Virginia published in 1857 (vol. 2) and 1877 (vol. 2) and 1877 (vol. 3) and 1877 (vol. 3) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 (vol. 4) and 1877 in Virginia, published in 1857 (vol. 2, page 167), had printed an abstract of the will which was obtained from the papers at that Court House. This abstract will which was obtained from the papers at that Court House. This abstract must have been made from the record, as we now know that the original will was then in the possession of the family. But even the record book could not then be found in the office; and it was not discovered till last December, when Mr. J. Warren Hutt, the clerk, found it. He at once sent a copy to Mr. Moncure D. Conway and another to Mr. Isaac J. Greenwood. (See Register, vol. 45, pp. 164-5.) Mr. Conway communicated his copy to the New York Nation, in which paper it was printed December 18, 1890. Mr. Greenwood sent his copy to the editor of the Register. The record was much mutilated, portions of it being missing. Before Mr. Greenwood's copy of the record could be printed, the editor was informed of Dr. Toner's copy from the original, in which the missing portions are all found; and he has now the pleasure of laying it before his readers with other interesting Washington documents. The ing it before his readers with other interesting Washington documents. The date on the original will looks like 21th, and the recorder read the figures 21; but Gen. Washington's minute is "11th Sept 1675." The record gives the date of probate "10th Jana: 1677."

This is the first time a perfect copy of the will has appeared in print. A facsimile of the original was taken by the National Museum in Washington, and another is given in Messrs. Thomas Birch's Sons' sale catalogue, from which we have had photo-engravings made of a few lines of the closing portion with all the signatures; of the minute of the probate of the will; and of the endorsement by President Washington. The fac-similes are given in the engraving facing

DEPOSITION OF THOMAS POUND, THE PIRATE, 1689.

Communicated by John S. H. Fogo, M.D., of South Boston, Mass.

THE following is a copy of the Deposition of Thomas Pound, who, with Thomas Hawkins and others, was executed for piracy. The Deposition gives a detailed account of the voyage and captures made by Hawkins's boat from the time she "tooke water at the South End of the town neer the Signe of the Bull," until she was captured by the sloop Mary commanded by Capt. Samuel Pease. The Deposition of a portion of the company of Capt. Pease's sloop is printed in the Register, Vol. II., page 393. But I am not aware that this Deposition of Pound's, to which is also appended the brief examination of William Dun, Daniel Landor, Samuel Watts and William Warren, has been printed. These "Examinants" were convicted and executed, with Johnson, Buck, Sickadan and Griffin, who are mentioned in the Deposition. An interesting account of this piratical expedition is given in considerable detail by Drake in his History of Boston, page 490.

From Virginia wee came back into the Sound, and at Tarpolin Cove met with a Barque belonging to Salem riding in said Cove William Lord master, and went on board her and bought an Anchor of him for which paid a Caske of Sugar about ffour hundred weight and sold to said Lord yo Negro wee brought from Virginia at the price of twelve pounds for which he drew a bill upon Blaney at Elizabeth Island. Then wee came over the Sholes in company of Lord's Barque, as far as Cape Cod, and the Boat going on shoare there Hawkins left us. Afterwards upon a Saturday night about three weekes since wee Espyed a Sloop and weighed and gave chace to her and brought her to anchor under the Cape, who said they came from Pensilvania, enquired of them whither or no they had any Porke on board, they saying that they had none wee dismist them, and wee went back again over the Sholes, and at Homes his Hole met with a Sloop riding there one John Picket master from new London (as he said) out of which Sloop wee tooke thirty nine barrells of Porke and Beife, Seven firkins of Butter, Thirteen cheeses, three barrels of Indian Corn and Eight bushells of Pease. May it Please your Honour,

This morning about Ten a Clock Capth Franklin brought in this Maloncholly Account Vizt. That the Indians on the first of May last waylayd Capta Winslow on both sides Saint Georges River as he was going to the garrison with Seventeen men in two Whal boates, whome the Indians have killed or taken all but three that made their escape and got to the They say there was a great number of the Indians, who fir'd upon our people first from the Western side the river; as soon as they had fir'd they put off in their Canoes and fell on our People very furiously, so that our boates were oblig'd to part, they overpowering them with a superior number. Cap^m Winslow endeavoured to land on the West side, and so long as he was seen by our People fought boldly and bravely, and it is Judg'd kill'd several of the Indians. Sarj' Harvey landed on the East side hopeing to get clear of them, but as soon as they landed there was another Considerable party mett him and Shot him down. After they had chang'd some shots on both sides our People were then oblig'd to draw off as well as they could, one of them did not get into the garrison till three days afterward, he saw an Indian that day, our people trackt some, about a week after not more than a hundred yards from the garrison. It is Judg'd there is a party lurk about the river and garrison still. Where they fir'd on our people first, they Judge there could not be less then Thirty Canoos besides three ambuscades more, one on the West and two on the East sides the River. Wee have not men to look for the Dead bodies of our freinds so that our Enemies have a double triumph over us. Capth Harmons Compy being at the Westward and the army is so decreast as I have already given your Hon an Acc of in part and shall be able to give it in full when I come to Boston.

Honourable

Having your Orders to returne to the Fort at Richmond thought it my Duty to Lay the State of that Garrison before Your Honour. By Several Deaths & Dismissions my Company is reduced to Twenty men, And the fort being large & far from Reliefe I would Humbley Suggest to your Honour, Is in dainger of being lost with Out a reinforcement, & your Honours Designe of Sending Some able Souldiers to Scout with the Mohawks altogether impractickable. The number of men posted at Casco Fort in yo last warr and the present Company at northfield are presidents, & seem to plead for a recruit to be sent to Richmond, which is farther in the Enemyes Countrey then Either of those. All which I Humbley Offer to your wise Consideration & with Dutifull Respect re-Your Honours most Humble Obedient Servt. maine

JOHN SMITH OF MILFORD, NEW HAVEN COLONY, 1640; AND HIS DESCENDANTS TO THE FIFTH GENERATION.

Compiled by Robert Atwater⁶ (Bassett, Clark⁸) Smith, of New Haven, Conn.

JOHN SMITH [16--1684], a settler of Milford, Conn., in 1640, is presumed to have been one of several from Hertfordshire who could not leave England in 1637, when the Rev. Peter Prudden and others from that section of England sailed in the company of the Rev. John Davenport, Gov. Theophilus Eaton, Deputy Gov. Stephen Goodyear and other persons from London who came to this country in the ships Hector and Martin [?] in 1637. It is probable he came direct from England to New Haven in one of the three ships which sailed in 1639 to New Haven, viz: the St. Johns, Capt. Russell; the Fair Weather, which reached New Haven before July 28, 1639; and the third ship (name unknown) which arrived soon after, probably bringing the company which settled in Southold, Long Island.—[See Atwater's History of N. H. Colony, pages 162-3.] From the amount of property (£513. 3. 9.) left by him at his death in 1684 (the inventory was taken December, 1684), it is probable that he belonged to a family of some wealth in England. It has been suggested that he may have been one of the Smiths of Haddon Hall, some of whom came to this country. He married -, 16-), who died in 1690. The will of Mrs. Grace Hawley (born — Grace Smith is recorded in Vol. 2, page 90, of the New Haven Probate It is dated Nov. 26, 1689. She gives her property of £61.11.7. to her four children. There is no inventory to be found. Čhildren:

On page 80 is given the division of the property among the children; only John is mentioned; probably the wife and the daughter, Ruth Briscoe, were dead at that time. Ruth's portion of £56 is given to the daughter, Ruth Briscoe; Mercy's portion is given to her husband, Samuel Gunn, who was appointed executor; no mention is made of Ephraim, who did not die until December, 1712. The estate amounted to £226 3. 7. The History of Derby states that Ephraim Smith (1644-1712) died without leaving any children; this is incorrect. Children:

[In the June Term of Essex Co. Court (Salem), 1671, in a trial of the case of John Ruck, Administrator, versus Joseph Armitage, the following paper was put in:

The above case was referred to the arbitration of Capt. Roger Spenser and Christopher Lawson.

I find that Michael and Jarrard Spencer were both at Lynn, for a while, and that Timothy Tomlin owned land next to the latter. Henry F. Waters.]

JOHN STYLE of Stebonheath als Stepney, Middlesex 26 October 1685, with a codicil referring to a former will bearing date 25 March 1680; proved 30 July 1686 and again 31 August 1686. To Elizabeth Nurse thirty pounds and to Frances Walshall seventy pounds, to be abated to them upon their paying the sum of six hundred pounds, remainder of mortgage chargeable on Glassenbury house in Smithfield. To Mr. Matthew Meade, sometime minister of Stepney, twenty pounds, to Dr. Ainslow of Spittlesfields ten pounds, to Seth Powell of Barnard's Inn, London, gent., ten pounds. To my sister in law Mrs. Elizabeth Short twenty shillings to buy her a ring. To her son Peter Short five pounds. To Mrs. Lisle forty shillings to buy her a ring. To Mrs. Mildmay, daughter to Mrs. Brewster four pounds. To Mrs. Taylor, wife of Mr. Taylor of Barking, ten pounds. To Mr. Graves, sometime minister of Stepney, five pounds. To —— Henderson, my god daughter, five pounds. To William Burrough of Staple Inn, London, gent, whom I do make whole and sole executor, forty pounds; and he shall, from time to time, when required, give a true account of the management to the above named Seth Powell, whom I make overseer. To my servant Elizabeth Vere all the household goods.

Lastly I give to my nephew George Burrough of New England, clerk, all my books and all other my estate whatsoever or wheresoever not before devised, which shall, from time to time and in such manner as he and the said Mr. Powell shall desire, be consigned or remitted to him by my said executor, or else the said legacy of forty pounds to him given shall be void.

In the codicil he confirms the devise made in the earlier will to Richard Hoare, citizen and goldsmith, of the capital messuage in West Smithfield known as the Glassenbury house, together with four messuages in Cock Lane, St. Sepulchre's, and gives to Mr. Austin Brewster forty shillings to buy him a ring.

[George Burrough, named as a nephew in the above will of John Style, was "the most prominent victim of the witchcraft fanaticism of 1692." Accounts of him will be found in Sibley's Harvard Graduates, vol. 2, pp. 323–34; and Upham's Salem Witchcraft, vol. 1, pp. 255–68, vol. 2, 140–63, 296–304, 480, 482, 514; besides in various other books. Sibley says that he wrote his name Burrough "in Sewall's receipt book for a bill of exchange drawn on his 'cousin-german Wm Burrough of London.'" This William Burrough is probably the person whom Mr. Style appoints his executor. The Rev. George Burrough wrote his surname, Burroughs in the latter part of his life, as is shown in the facsimile of his autograph in Upham's Witchcraft, vol. 1, p. 280. In the Roxbury church record it is spelled Burrows. He was admitted to full communion in the church at Roxbury, April 12, 1674, and had a daughter Rebecca baptized there the same day, and a son George baptized Nov. 25, 1675. It is probable that he was a son of "Mra Rebecca Burrows who," according to the Roxbury church records, "came fro Virginia yt she might enjoy God in his Ordin. in N. E." and who, Nov. 29, 1674, was "recommended & dismissed, she going for England." (Register, vol. 33, p. 239.)

(Register, vol. 33, p. 239.)
George Burrough was graduated at Harvard College in 1670, and was a preacher at Casco, now Portland, Maine, as early as 1674. Here he resided when the place was destroyed by the Indians, Aug. 11, 1676. He preached at Salem Village, now Danvers, from November, 1680, to March, 1683. As early as June, 1685, he returned to Casco, which settlement was again destroyed by the French and Indians, May 20, 1690. He then went to Wells, where he was preaching when the witchcraft excitement broke out. He was apprehended at Wells, May 4, 1692, and carried to Salem, where he was tried for witchcraft and condemned.

He was executed on Gallows Hill, August 19, 1692.—EDITOR.]

EDWARD SAMMES of London, grocer, proved 26 February 1635. To wife Bennett one third of my whole estate according to the laudable custom of the city of London. One other third to my children unprovided, vizt Martha, Elizabeth, Edward, John and William. To daughter Margaret, already preferred in marriage, forty shillings to buy her a ring, and to her husband Edward Parker forty shillings to buy him a ring. Copyhold lands in Barking, Essex, and lands in Mark's Teye, Feering and Aldum which I bought of my cousin Doctor Sammes to my wife for life; afterwards the lands in Barking to son Edward, remainder to son William. To Edward the houses and lands at Maldon, Essex, given me by Mrs. Anastace Wentworth. To son John the lands bought of Dr. Sammes, with remainder to William and then to Edward. To son Edward the reversion of a copyhold lying in F m near Dysse in Norfolk. To my loving cousins Dr. Sammes an wife forty shillings apiece, to buy them rings; to my brother in law athaniel Wright and his wife, each forty shillings &c.; to Mr —— Browne preacher of St. Ellen's four pounds and to my cousin Stone preacher in New England five pounds. To Mr. Thomas Stock and his wife forty shillings.

[Edward Sammes, the testator, was a son of Henry Sammes of Totham in Essex, and his pedigree is found in the Visitation of London of 1633 (Harleian Society's Publications, vol. 17, p. 224). He married Bennet, daughter of John Wright of Rumford in Essex. His eldest son Edward was 12 years old in 1633. There are pedigrees of Sammes, evidently the same family, in the Visitation of Essex, 1634, Harleian Soc. Pub., vol. 13, pp. 482-3. The cousin Stone named was, I presume, Rev. Samuel Stone of Hartford, Ct.—EDITOR.]

ANNE TOWERS of Maydstone, Kent, widow, 29 October 1653, proved 21 March 1654 (English style). To the poor of the parish of Maidstone five pounds, to be distributed at the discretion of My brother Mr Thomas Taylor of Maidstone. [Mr. John Sams, mentioned in the will of Anne Towers, came to New-England in 1640, according to Savage, and settled in Roxbury. He held land in that town which, in 1642, after his removal, was taken by execution to satisfy a debt of £50. 18s. due Gov. Thomas Dudley (Suffolk Deeds, Lib. I. fol. 37–8, 81). Calamy says that he had his education in New-England. He was appointed Vicar of Kelvedon in Essex, Sept. 9, 1647, by the Committee for Plundered Ministers. He was still at Kelvedon in 1650, as appears by the Parliamentary return of that year. He succeeded Dr. John Owen as Vicar of Coggeshall in the same county as early as 1653. On the 11th July, 1654, Deborah, daughter of Jo. and Anne Sames, "vicar," was baptized there. He was ejected from Coggeshall under the Bartholomew act. Afterwards he set up a separate meeting in that place, of which he died pastor. He was buried at Coggeshall, Dec. 16, 1672. His funeral sermon was preached by Thomas Lowry from Isaiah lxiii. 1, 2. [Margaret, wife of William Spencer the testator, was probably a daughter of Peter Osgood, either of Upper or of Nether Wallop, Hants, whose will, dated January 26, 1585-6, was proved Feb. 21 (see Register, vol. 20, page 23). Peter left a daughter Margaret, and also sons Robert, Richard, Peter and John and a daughter Elizabeth. Spencer makes bequests to persons of these names as his brothers and sister. [This will, taken in connection with what I printed in the REGISTER in October, 1884, and January, 1885, seems to give the Wing Pedigree as follows:

Matthew1 Wing, of Banbury, died 1614, had sons:

Fulk,2 had son Matthew. Thomas,2 had son John. John,2 had son John. James,2 had son William.

Rev. John² Wing, "pastor of the English Puritan Church at Middleborough in Zeeland," married Deborah, daughter of Rev. Stephen Bacheler, and died at London in 1630. He had: Deborah, b. 1611.

John,3 b. 1613 or thereabouts, of Yarmouth.

Stephen,3 b. 1621, of Sandwich.

Daniel,3 of Sandwich.

Matthew,3 had a son John, who died young.

The will of Rev. John, here given, enables us to expunge entirely Savage's reference to a first John W. of Sandwich. He did not come, but his widow Deborah (Bachiler) did, with her children. As she was born in 1592, it is certain that she was not the "old goody Wing" buried at Yarmouth in 1692, as we must not create a centennarian.—W. H. Whitmore.]

[This reference to Rev. Stephen Bachiler is very interesting, as it proves the correctness of the reports as to his great age. This wife Helen, aged 48 years in 1631, is of course the one who came here with him, and who is termed by Winthrop in 1641 "a lusty, comely woman." As Bachiler's daughter, Deborah Wing, was a mother in 1611, she was born in 1590 to 1595. Mrs. Helen Bacheler, born in 1583, could not be her mother, and was therefore a second wife. In the article printed in the REGISTER for October, 1873, on the Daltons and Batchellers, I copied a letter from Stephen B. son of Rev. S. in 1685, speaking of his uncle Francis Mercer's will, his cousin Thomas M. (who was son of Peter M.) and cousin Pryaulx. Perhaps Mr. Waters will hereafter find these Mercers.—W. H. WHITMORE.

WASHINGTON :-

The following article by Mr. James Greenstreet on "The Ancestry of General Washington" appeared in "The Genealogist" for January, 1891:

It is due, I think, to the memory of Colonel Chester that it should be known he long ago travelled over much the same ground as that which Mr. H. F. Waters has made public in his recent pamphlet; and which he speaks of (p. 8),* unwittingly, as though it had been hitherto an untrodden track. As far back as 1864, Colonel Chester was aware of the connection with Luton; and on p. 74 of his Washington notebook, in the College of Arms, the Admon. of 30 May, 1677, [re-] "discovered" ty Mr. Waters, in 1884 or 1885, will be found duly

Following the same chain of facts as Mr. Waters has since done, Colonel Chester likewise went to the Tring Registers, but unfortunately only by proxy; and, still more unfortunately, he rested contented with the information sent to him by that proxy. Had Colonel Chester gone to Tring and examined the books himself, in all probability Mr. Waters would have been entirely forestalled twenty years back. On page 35 of his notebook, the Colonel has copied a letter he received from Tring, from which it will be seen that he never knew the Registers there actually chronicled the baptism of a Lawrence, son of the Rev. Lawrence Washington.

"From same [Rev. C. J. Robinson, curate of Great Berkhampstead, Herts],

Since the publication of Mr. Waters's pamphlet, I have been able to identify the Chancery suit referred to by Colonel Chester in 1866—see Mr. Whitmore's additions to the pamphlet, at p. 50.§

* Register, vol. 43, p. 382.—Editor of Register.

† Surely Mr. Greenstreet does not mean that Mr. Waters ought to have called his finding this admon. a "re-discovery" when neither he nor the public had any knowledge of a previous discovery. Mr. Waters had no opportunity, as far as he knew, of seeing Col. Chester's collections and learning what he had found.—Editor of Register.

‡ We think that Mr. Greenstreet is hardly warranted in saying that, "Had Colonel Chester gone to Tring and examined the books himself, in all probability Mr. Waters would have been entirely forestalled twenty years back." Mr. Greenstreet seems to ignore one of the most important discoveries made by Mr. Waters, namely, that memorandum written on the day of the probate of Andrew Knowling's will, showing the presence in Court of Lawrence Washington, M.A., acting as surrogate and therefore a clergyman. If that paper or some other equally conclusive evidence had not been discovered, the pedigree of George Washington would have been left still shooting in the air. We appreciate as highly as anyone the rare skill of Col. Chester in genealogical research and the success with which his labors were so often crowned. His editorial work on the Harleian Society's volumes, particularly that on the Registers on Westminster Abbey, which shows a wealth of antiquarian learning; his Life of John Rogers; his contributions to the Registers and other periodicals; and his vast genealogical collections in manuscript, now in the College of Arms, are a lasting monument to his memory. The Washington collections are very extensive. To Col. Chester is due the credit of having solved problems that had baffled the Arms, are a lasting monument to his memory. Mr. Moncure D. Conway contributed to the New York Nation for March 19, 1891, an elaborate article, entitled, "The Earliest Washingtons in Virginia," in which he shows that a branch of the Washington family was settled in Virginia as early as 1636, a patent for land having been taken out by Arthur Washington in that year. He may have been the ancestor of the Surrey County Washingtons noticed in the REGISTER for July, 1890 (vol. 44, pages 307-8), among whom Arthur was a favorite name. this family and the Westmoreland County Washingtons. Much interesting matter about the various families of Washington is found in the article.

The illustrated article by Mr. Conway on "The English Ancestry of Washington," announced by us in our last number (ante, p. 65) as to be published in Harper's Magazine, appeared in the number for May last. Since the publication of Mr. Waters's discoveries in the Register for October, 1889, Mr. Conway has visited England and gathered material bearing on the subject of his article. He was also allowed by George E. Cokayne, M.A., F.S.A., the friend and executor of Col. Joseph L. Chester, LL.D., D.C.L., the use of the Washington collectanea of that distinguished antiquary contained in a thick folio volume. Mr. Conway is now a believer in the theory of Mr. Waters. In the Harper article are given the main points of the evidence in relation to the Ancestry of Washington. One new fact of great importance is that Lawrence Washington, rector of Purleigh, had a wife living in 1649, as shown by the order of the "Committee on Plundered Ministers," August 15 in that year, that "Mr. John Rogers, minister of the sequestered rectory of Purleigh in Dingey Hundreds do pay the fifth part of the tithes and profits of said Rectory unto Mrs. Washington, according to a formal order of y° Com. of Plundered ministers." On September 20th the Committee "Ordered that Mr. John Rogers and Mrs. Washington be heard on Wednesday in the sessions." On the last page of the book this decision of the Committee is recorded: "flifth part of Purleigh ordered to the plundered Rector's wife." Mr. Conway was also discoverer of the fact found in the original will, that Col. John Washington the emigrant had a sister Martha, as already announced in the Register. Both of these new facts strengthen the position taken by Mr. Waters.

Mr. Conway's contribution to Harper's Magazine is very interesting, particularly to those who have a curiosity to know all they can about the homes of the emigrant ancestor of President Washington, and of his kindred. Very graphic descriptions of the localities are given. The illustrations like all those in Harper are of a high order of merit. They consist of views of the churches of Tring and Luton, and the baptistry of the latter; brasses in St. James Church, Sulgrave; Gen. Washington's seals; and fac-similes of the autograph of Col. John Washington, and of entries in the Tring parish registers. As Harper's Magazine has a large circulation in England, we hope this article will meet the eyes of antiquaries in the localities with which Lawrence Washington and his wife Amphillis were connected, and that they will try to discover the records of Mr. Washington's marriage and death; the record of the baptism of his son John; the name of the living which the rector of Purleigh held after that living was sequestered, and other evidence bearing on the Washington pedigree.—Entrore.

I hope that Mr. Conway's article will inspire the clergymen near Tring and Luton to examine their records for mention of Lawrence Washington's marriage. The circumstantial evidence of the marriage of Rev. Lawrence Washington to Amphillis Rhodes is very, very strong, but not conclusive. The proof is still to be found. The fact is that a Lawrence Washington, M.A., was in January, 1649–50, acting in the court at which a guardian was appointed for one of the children of Amphillis Washington. Until some evidence is produced we must hold that this Lawrence Washington, M.A., is identical with the rector of Purleigh. We cannot, however, yet say that Lawrence Washington, husband of Amphillis, was a clergyman, though the baptisms at Tring call him "Mr." It is not impossible that some cousin and namesake of the Rev. Lawrence of Purleigh, was the husband, and persuaded him to be present at the court and act as surrogate. This is highly improbable; but coincidence and circumstantial evidence are not clear proofs. Therefore until new evidence is obtained, the Washington pedigree is not to be taken as wholly proved.—W. H. Whitmore.

The wills of Col. John Washington and other members of the Washington family which Dr. Toner was to furnish for this number of the REGISTER (see April number, page 164), have been received and are printed in this number, pages 199-215.—EDITOR.

I hope our people will be very wary of Surprises; we have likewise appointed General Ward first Major General; these matters above I have license to mention to you tho' as our system is not compleated, it is expected that none of these intelligences be put in the news paper. MORE ABOUT THE WHEELWRIGHT DEED.

THE following letter has been received from the Hon. CHARLES H. Bell, LL.D., of Exeter, N. H.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE REGISTER:

Some years ago I read before the New England Historic Genealogical Society a paper (since printed in the "John Wheelwright" volume of the Prince Society) in which I pleaded for a suspension of judgment in respect to the authenticity of the Wheelwright Deed of 1629, which had been impugned by the Hon. James Savage, Dr. Bouton and others. I maintained that the evidence then known did not conclusively prove the deed to be a fabrication, but that there was a possibility that the instrument was the veritable act of John Wheelwright.

Wheelwright was on May 17, 1629, the date of the disputed deed, and for years before and after, the vicar of Bilsby in Lincolnshire, England. If he was there, at his post, at that date, or so near it as to leave him no time for a visit to America and a purchase of lands from the Indian Sagamores before the day on which the deed purported to be executed, then the deed could not have been his handiwork. Otherwise it was possible that it might have been.

On this point I adduced the statement of the late Col. Joseph L. Chester, who had made an examination of the papers relating to the parish of Bilsby in the Registry of the Bishop of Lincoln. It was the duty of the vicar to sign the yearly transcript of the parish registers on each successive 25th day of March. Col. Chester reported (Register, xxii. 350) that the transcript for March, 1629, was missing, and that there were no data to show that Wheelwright was at Bilsby on that day, or within nearly a year of it, before or after. If that statement had been correct, as from the well known thoroughness and accuracy of Col. Chester there seemed no reason to doubt, the records of Bilsby afforded no evidence that Wheelwright did not come to New England in the spring of 1629.

It now appears that Col. Chester's report was erroneous. Dr. Henry B. Wheelwright, of Newburyport, has recently made a thorough examination of the documents pertaining to Bilsby, in the Bishop's Registry of Lincoln, and has ascertained that the transcript of 1629 is in existence, and bears the signature of John Wheelwright. There is every reason therefore to believe that he was at Bilsby on the 25th of March in that year; and it is almost incredible that he could have visited this country, and accomplished a purchase from the Indians before the succeeding 17th of May.

The evidence in regard to the genuineness of the deed is thus essentially changed from what it was when my paper was written; and there now remains scarcely room for question that the disputed instrument was an ingenious fabrication.

It is only just to the memory of Col. Chester to add that the error in his statement is not believed to be chargeable to him. No doubt he reported correctly on the papers shown him, and had the assurance that they were all that related to the parish of Bilsby. But it is supposed that by a mistake of the custodian, the transcript which bears so materially upon the credibility of the Wheelwright purchase of 1629 was never brought to his notice.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

NOTES.

Borough English.—As a fruitful object of investigation for those interested in genealogical research, I beg to suggest that of Borough English as indicated by early New-England wills. The English homes of enough New England immigrants are known, so that the connection between manors in which this copyhold custom obtained and the families which have indicated a preference for the youngest son in their wills could be traced with comparative In one family, known only to have come from a county in which Borough English was common, I have noticed this preference in four generations.

The custom, which seems to have little connection with boroughs, is a manorial custom of descent. Its history is obscure and has been unsatisfactorily exploited. A plausible theory is that it is a survival from the pre-Celtic inhabitants of England. A discussion of the institution is contained in one of the chapters of Elton's Origins of English History.

If my theory is correct that those immigrants who manifested a preference in their wills for the youngest son were from manors in which this custom obtained, some of us, I fancy, will have to yield up the thought of a coat of arms, for the inference, I believe, would be that our ancestors were villeins adscripti glebæ. Sioux City, Iowa. CHARLES K. WILLIAMS.

QUERIES.

GENEALOGICAL QUERIES .- The undersigned will be thankful for information in regard to any of the following persons:

Whose son was Capt., later Lieut.-Col. Stephen Clark of Epping, N. H., an officer in the Revolution, and when and where was he born? Who was Mary Peirce, who married Jan. 24, 1723-4, Henry Clark of Newbury, Mass., as his second wife? Whose daughter was Rebecca Watson, married March 26, 1747, Stephen Clark of Newbury, Mass.? What was the maiden name of Mary, wife of Moses Merrill of Salisbury, Mass.? They were married about 1708. Whose daughter was Susanna Perry or Perrin, who married in 1753 Ebenezer Clark of Newbury? Who were the parents of Elizabeth Perkins "of the Isle of Shoals," who married, 1715, Thomas Clark of Newbury? Whose daughter was Judith Lunt of Newbury, Mass., married 1769, Dr. Parker Clark of Machias, now in Me.? Who were the parents of Catherine Bean, born April 7, 1725, married July 10, 1766, Henry Clark of Candia, N. H., and died Aug. 19, 1769? Who were the parents of Abigail Francis, born Oct. 6, 1738, married, as third wife, May 10, 1770, Henry Clark of Candia, N. H.? Who was Hannah, wife of Enoch Clark of Greenland, N. H.? She was born Jan. 20, 1711, and died April 9, 1746. Clark of Greenland, N. H.? She was born Jan. 20, 1711, and died April 9, 1746. Who was his second wife, Mary, born April 28, 1710? Who were the parents of Mary March, born March 25, 1732, married Aug. 23, 1759, Enoch Clark of Greenland, N. H., and died Feb. 18, 1816? Joseph Woodwell of Bridgewater married, Boston, May 26, 1720, Sarah, then of Hingham, widow of Josiah Clarke of Boston, and daughter of John Chamberlin? Where did Woodwell live? It is desired to ascertain what became of John and Josiah Clarke, children of Mrs. Woodwell by her first husband. The records of Plymouth County, deeds and wills, have been examined.

The writer has been trying to answer these questions for the past ten years, and any assistance will be appreciated. GEORGE K. CLARKE.

FRENCH.-1. What became of Richard French, who was in Cambridge a short time, where he had a son Samuel b. July 13, 1653? He was one of the grantees of Billerica in 1652, but there is no record that he ever removed there. He lived, when in Cambridge, on the estate formerly of Nicholas Danforth, which he sold to Edmund Angier, Oct. 8, 1654, after which time I have found no trace of him. He was perhaps brother of William and John of Cambridge.

2. Was Francis French, who came over in the Defence in 1635 with William of Cambridge and Billerica, the "son, brother, or nephew" of William? His age is given in the custom house records as 10 years. He has been considered by some as the son of William, but I know of no proof, and no mention of him is made in the will of William French.

3. Samuel French, the pioneer of Dunstable, 1682, is stated by Savage to be the son of Lieut. William of Cambridge and Billerica, and has been so considered by others. But his first son Samuel, b. Dec. 3, 1645, d. July 15, 1646, and there is no record of the birth of any second Samuel. Moreover, William in his will makes no mention of any son Samuel, although this Samuel was at the time living and unmarried. Can any one furnish any proof as to the re-J. M. FRENCH. lationship?

Milford, Mass.

REV. SAMUEL SKELTON, FIRST MINISTER AT SALEM.—What is the authority for the commonly accepted belief that he was from Lincolnshire? Was he a clergyman of the Church of England before coming to New England, and if so is the name of his parish known? Any information in regard to him will be appreciated. E. C. FELTON.

Steelton, Pa.

SOCIETY FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE GOSPEL IN NEW ENGLAND.—Who were the "Commissioners residing in New England" for the "Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in New England, and Parts adjacent in America," between 1720 and 1750? Neal, in his History of New England, gives the names of the Commissioners in Gov. Shute's time, and among them are Jonathan Belcher, and Col. Adam Winthrop. He also gives details of this work as carried on by John Eliot, but of their later operations there appears to be but little record. A "Sketch of the New-England Company," printed in England, in 1884, states that the appointment and superintendence of the missionaries were in the hands of the Commissioners in New England, who were appointed by the Corporation in England. Apparently there was a Treasurer, also, in Boston. Are any of the records or papers of this Society now in existence?

These articles do not, however, contain an answer to the above queries. There are two other societies with similar names which are still in existence. The first is "The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts," chartered in 1701 by William III. The other is "The Society for Propagating the Gospel among the Indians and others in North America, chartered by the State of Massachusetts in 1787 (See Register, vol. 39, pp. 182-3). REPLIES.

LADY AXTELL.—I have always been puzzled to understand why William Pratt in his Journal, Register, xxviii., 468, gave the title Lady Axtel to Rebecca, widow of Daniel Axtell, whose will I communicated to the Register, xliv., 51. I think I have just found the explanation. In the last Calendar of State Papers, Colonial Series, America and West Indies 1669-1674, is a list of the Landgraves, Cassiques and Deputies in Carolina. Daniel Axtell was one of the Landgraves, and the title Lady was very naturally given to his widow in consequence of the position held by her husband during his life. W. S. APPLETON.

HISTORICAL INTELLIGENCE.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD E. SALISBURY of New Haven, Conn., are printing, "privately," and have nearly completed, a book of "Family Histories and Genealogies." The book will be of great and ever-increasing interest to present and future generations of the families specified, and their allies, and also valuable to genealogists, antiquaries, and specified, and their allies, and also valuable to genealogists, antiquaries, and historians, in general. The work comprises monographs on the families of McCurdy, Mitchell, Lord, Lynde, Digby, Newdigate, Willoughby, Griswold, Wolcott, Pitkin, Ogden, Johnson, Diodati, Lee, and Marvin; with notes, more or less full, on the families of Buchanan, Parmelee, Boardman, Lay, Hoo, Locke, Cole, DeWolf, Drake, Bond, Swayne, Dunbar, and Clarke. THE FERNIH IN AMERICA DURING THE WAR OF INDEPENDENCE, 1777-1783.—
In 1872 the late Mr. Thomas Balch, of Philadelphia, published at Paris a work in the French language on the above subject. The author, a member of the bar of Philadelphia, was well known as a thorough student of history. He was one of the few Americans able to write equally well in French and English. His work deserves to be preserved in an English dress for the benefit of students of our revolution and its history. We are happy to inform our readers that Mr. Thomas Willing Balch of Philadelphia, a son of the author, has translated the work and it will soon be published by Messrs. Porter & Coates of that city.

General dates in Preparation.—Persons of the several names are advised to furnish the compilers of these genealogies with records of their own families and other information which they think may be useful. We would suggest that all facts of interest illustrating family history or character be communicated, especially service under the U. S. government, the holding of other offices, graduation from college or professional schools, occupation, with places and dates of births, marriages, residence and death. When there are more than one christian name they should all be given in full if possible. No initials should be used when the full names are known.

Bulfinch.—Hon. Edward F. Johnson of Woburn, Mass., has in preparation his genealogy of this family, relating to which he has considerable genealogical data. He invites correspondence. The family is descended from John Bulfinch of Boston, who married, first, Elizabeth Bumstead, Nov. 3, 1726, and secondly, Mary Peabody, May 10, 1739. He died about 1774.

Chapman.—Rev. Jacob Chapman of Exeter, N. H., is collecting records for a genealogy of Edward Chapman of Ipswich, Mass., and his descendants.

Lane.—The first volume of the Lane genealogies, by Rev. J. Chapman and Rev. J. H. Fitts, is now in press at Exeter, N. H. It includes the families of William Lane of Boston (1650) and of Capt. John of York Co., Me., and Capt. John of Fishersfield (now Newbury) N. H. It is an 8vo. volume, 9 inches by 6. The price of Vol. I. is Three Dollars a copy. If it exceeds 300 pages, the price will be in the same proportion. Orders for the book should be sent to Rev. J. Chapman, Exeter, N. H.

Volume II., including the families of William of Dorchester and of the brothers Job and James of Malden, to contain full names of all descendants, named Lane, and the children and grandchildren of daughters married into other families, is in the hands of Rev. J. H. Fitts of South Newmarket, to whom all communications should be sent.

Sturtivant.—Mr. Walter H. Sturtivant, P. O. Box 52, Richmond, Maine, is collecting records of the Sturtivant family.

Prepared by Hamilton Andrews Hill, A.M., Historiographer of the Society.

THE Historiographer would inform the Society, that the sketches prepared for the REGISTER are necessarily brief in consequence of the limited space which can be appropriated. All the facts, however, which can be gathered are retained in the Archives of the Society, and will aid in more extended memoirs for which the "Towne Memorial Fund," the gift of the late William B. Towne, is provided. The Rev. Henry Marryn Dexter, D.D., was born in Plympton, Mass., August 13, 1821. He was the youngest child of the Rev. Elijah and Mary (Morton) Dexter; his father (Brown Univ. 1806), was Congregational minister at Plympton for more than forty-two years; his mother was the only daughter of the Hon. Nathaniel Morton of Freetown, Mass., and the sister of the Hon. Marcus Morton of Taunton, Governor of Massachusetts 1840 and 1843. On the maternal side, his great-great-great-great grandfather was Ephraim Morton, who was the youngest of the five children of George Morton, merchant of York, England. George married in Leyden, Holland, July 23, 1612, Julia Ann Carpenter, sister to the first wife of Dr. Samuel Fuller and to the wife of Governor Bradford; his second child and eldest son was Nathaniel, the author of New England's Memorial; Ephraim was born on the passage to America, in the Ann, in 1623.

The subject of this sketch graduated from Yale College in 1840 and from Andover Theological Seminary in 1844. He was ordained pastor of the Franklin Street Church, Manchester, N. H., November 9, 1844. In 1849, he was settled as pastor of Pine Street Church, now Berkeley Street Church, Boston, as the successor of the Rev. Austin Phelps. He resigned this charge in 1867, in order that he might devote himself more exclusively to the editorship of the "Congregationalist," with which he had been associated since 1851. From 1859 to 1866 Dr. Dexter was one of the editors of the "Congregational Quarterly." From 1869 to 1871 he was acting pastor of the Pilgrim Church, Dorchester.

In accepting membership in the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, July 4, 1862, Dr. Dexter wrote: "Various circumstances have within a few years specially turned my thoughts in the direction of the researches which it loves and promotes." From this time he began to be recognized as an authority upon everything relating to the fathers and early history of New England, and especially in reference to the ecclesiastical polity which was brought to these shores by the Pilgrims. He became the chief historian as well as the ardent defender of Congregationalism; and the results of his patient investigations on both sides of the Atlantic, and of his learned studies, will enure to the benefit of the churches of his order for generations to come.

Dr. Dexter was elected into the American Antiquarian Society and the Massachusetts Historical Society in 1869. He received the degree of D.D. from Yale College (he had previously received it from Iowa College), in 1880, and of LL.D. from the same institution in 1890. It is said to be the only instance in which Yale has given D.D. and LL.D. to the same man. He was found dead in his bed, at his home in New Bedford, on the morning of November 13, 1890; and, two days later, funeral services were held over his remains in the Berkeley Temple, Boston, in the presence of a large and representative congregation. He left a widow, and one son, the Rev. Morton Dexter, Yale Coll. 1867. Mrs. Dexter (Emeline, second daughter of Simeon and Mary (Caldwell) Palmer, of Boston) did not long survive her husband. She was born November 1, 1823, was married November 19, 1844, and died, in Boston, February 24, 1891.

CHARLES ADDISON RICHARDSON, son of Elisha and Harriet (Blake) Richardson, was born in Franklin, Mass., October 9, 1829, and may have been baptized by the distinguished theologian, Dr. Emmons, who closed his active ministry of fifty-four years in that town at about that time. His early years were spent on a farm, where he worked hard, picking up by the way such learning as he could obtain in the local schools and academies. He ardently desired a collegiate education and a ministerial career, but he lacked the requisite means, and his health was not good. By dint of economy and persistency, however, he studied for some time at the state normal schools in Westfield and Bridgewater, and then taught for several years in Dedham and other towns, earning high praise in that vocation. Coming to Boston in 1854, he spent a year or two in the employ of John P. Jewett & Co., who had just been made famous by the publication of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"; and on the 1st of January, 1856, he acquired an interest in the "Congregationalist," and took the position of managing editor. From that time until his death, thirty-five years later, his personal history was identified with that paper. "Its growth in circulation, its enlargement and its improvement in every direction, the grafting on of new departments, its steady progress towards the ideals of excellence,—these things," we are told, "are due in great measure" to the far-sightedness and inventive genius of Mr. Richardson. His journalistic ability was of a high order. "The qualities which he strove to cultivate in others, and which he exemplified in his own style, were accuracy, clearness and condensation. His eye was quick to detect mistakes, and he was facile in applying remedies."

In 1866, Mr. Richardson published a volume called "Household Readings," in which he reproduced a judicious selection from the columns of his paper. In 1867 the "Recorder," a religious paper established by Dr. Jedidiah Morse in 1816, was consolidated with the "Congregationalist."

Mr. Richardson joined the church in Franklin in his sixteenth year; later, he was a member of the church in Dedham, of which the Rev. Dr. Burgess was the minister; and on his removal to Boston, he joined the First Church, Chelsea, of which he was a prominent and useful member until the time of his death. He was superintendent of the Sunday school, and a deacon; and he held several positions of responsibility in the denomination to which he belonged. He received the honorary degree of M.A. from Dartmouth College in 1885. He was admitted to the Historic Genealogical Society April 2, 1884.
Mr. Richardson died after a very short illness, January 18, 1891, at the Hotel

Believne, Boston, where he was spending the winter with his family. His funeral took place from the First Church, Chelsea, and was largely attended.

Mr. Richardson married at Westfield, May 3, 1852, Mary Jane Phipps, daughter of John Silas and Mary Jane (Knapp) Phipps; she survives, with two children, four others having died previously.

Capt. John Mason, the Founder of New Hampshire; including his Tract on Newfoundland, 1620, the American Charters in which he was a grantee, with Letters and other Historical Documents; and a Memoir by the late Charles W. Tuttle, Ph.D. Edited, with Historical Illustrations, by John Ward Dean, A.M. Boston: Published by the Prince Society. 1887. Fcp. 4to. pp. 492.

Sir Ferdinando Gorges and his Province of Maine, including his Tracts entitled A Brief Relation, 1622, and A Brief Narration, 1658, American Charters granted to him, and other papers; with Historical Illustrations and a Memoir by JAMES P. BAXTER, A.M. Boston: Published by the Prince Society. 1890. 3 vols. Fcp. 4to. Vol. I., pp. 268; Vol. II., pp. 270; Vol. III., pp. 353.

These, the latest publications of the Prince Society, contain substantially all that is known of the founders of New Hampshire and Maine respectively; and embrace much of the early history of those provinces, as it is confirmed by the most recently discovered evidence.

The first named work consists of a Memoir of Capt. Mason, prepared by the late Charles W. Tuttle, Ph.D., with his characteristic care and accuracy; an account of Mason's Plantations on the Pascataqua, compiled by John Ward Dean, A.M., from Mr. Tuttle's memoranda and other sources; a copy of Mason's Brief Discourse on New-found-land, as originally issued in 1620; transcripts of Mason's several grants, from that of Mariana in 1622 to the royal charter of Charles I. in 1635; and various letters and documents relating to his connection with America.

The early history of no part of our country has received so much additional light from documents discovered within a generation, as that relating to New Hampshire. Early writers on the subject were misled by the difficulties arising from imperfect and fallacious materials, as for example, the conflicting and overlapping grants of territory, the want of information respecting the site of the province of Laconia, and the inexplicable statements contained in certain documents purporting to be of early date but probably fabricated three fourths of a century after their pretended execution. Many of these sources of error have since been rectified by the results of the researches of John S. Jenness and others; though it must be confessed that there is still room for further elucidation.

The most recent historical treasure-trove bearing upon Mason's rights as proprietor, is set forth at length in the work, in the form of a certified copy of a royal grant to him in 1635 of the province of New Hampshire, together with the power of government of the same. The instrument was unearthed while the book was going through the press. It evidently indicates the authority intended to be vested in the patentee, even if it failed by reason of his unexpected death to pass through some of the forms necessary for its validity.

Mr. Dean has in this volume corrected the errors of former writers, and supplied the facts and explanations which they lacked; so that he who would learn the early history of New Hampshire, so far as it is connected with the Masonian patents, amended to conform to the latest authorities, will find it in this volume, and in no other place. His editorial work is marked by thorough investigation and exact statement, and the present issue of the Prince Society will be held as equally correct and worthy of reliance with any that has preceded it.

"Sir Ferdinando Gorges," edited by James P. Baxter, A.M., who has within a few years attained a deservedly high position as a historical writer, is a memorial of the patentee of Maine very similar to that compiled by Messrs.

Tuttle and Dean of John Mason. It differs from it, however, in the fact that the history of the grants to Gorges has not been traced to a later period than the date of his death. It is understood that in a work yet to appear, Mr. Baxter may pursue the subject further.

Volume I. contains a Memoir of Gorges, by the editor; and a copy of Gorges' Brief Relation of the Discovery and Plantation of New England, originally published in 1622; Volume II., a reprint of Gorges' Brief Narration (or Description of New England, as the head lines give it), originally issued in 1658, the charter of Maine, the Will of Gorges and genealogical notes respecting his family, documents pertaining to the history of Maine and letters; and Volume III. is composed almost wholly of correspondence between Gorges and his contemporaries.

It will be perceived that Mr. Baxter was rich in materials. He sought assiduously for all that was to be found bearing upon his subject, in this country and in England; and nothing that persevering inquiry, backed by ample pecuniary means could procure, is wanting. Indeed it may almost be said that there was an embarras de richesse, for many of the letters contain no facts of consequence, and serve to swell the bulk of the volumes. Of course, however, it would be too much to expect that correspondence obtained at such trouble and cost should be omitted from a work of this character.

Mr. Baxter has vindicated the memory of Ferdinando Gorges, the grandson of the patentee, from the suspicion of foisting upon the public the Wonder Working Providence of Edward Johnson as the production of Sir Ferdinando, in the collection of tracts issued in 1659 under the title of America painted to the Life. It was without question a trick of the publisher, who had on hand a number of copies of Johnson's work, which he hoped to sell by using this unworthy artifice. The younger Gorges exposed the attempted deception by an advertisement in the only newspaper of the time, of which the sole surviving copy is now in the British Museum.

It is certainly a boon to historical students to bring within the limits of three handsome volumes an account of all the known acts and productions of one who was so greatly instrumental in the early colonization of this country as was Sir Ferdinando Gorges. On the part of the editor this has been a labor of love. From his well known character for enterprise, liberality and accuracy, we may feel justified in believing that while nothing important pertaining to his subject has been overlooked, so also no pains have been spared to insure the avoidance and exclusion of error.

The Discovery of America by the Northmen, 985-1015. A Discourse delivered before the New Hampshire Historical Society, April 24, 1888. By the Rev. EDMUND F. SLAFTER, D.D., a Corresponding Member of the Society, Honorary Member of the Royal Historical Society of Great Britain, etc. etc. Concord, N. H.: Privately Printed. 1891. 8vo. pp. 24.

The near approach of the fourth centenary of the discovery of America by Columbus, in 1492, creates a fresh interest in the Pre-Columbian discoveries, and we are glad to welcome in print this discourse on the adventures of the Northmen by a scholar so well qualified as the Rev. Dr. Slafter is to treat the subject in an exhaustive and impartial manner. Fourteen years ago he edited for the Prince Society a volume entitled "Voyages of the Northmen to America," which book was noticed by us in July, 1877. In that work Dr. Slafter gives his readers all the facts concerning the discoveries by the Northmen in the tenth and eleventh centuries, preserved in the Icelandic Sagas, and in their own words; with a critical examination of the evidence. The conclusion he then arrived at was that though there is presumptive evidence that the Northmen visited these shores, no authentic traces of their residence here can be found. He has not since found reason to change his opinion.

In the work before us the author gives a lucid statement of the historical facts on the subject which the Icelandic Sagas have transmitted to our days. He then gives an account of the manner in which the several narratives have been preserved, at first, and for more than a century, as oral traditions, and afterwards as written documents, adding a critical estimate of their reliability and value. Notice is taken of the old mill at Newport, the Dighton writing rock, and the skeleton in armor, claimed as relics of the Northmen, but which are shown to have no right to such a claim. The author arrives at this conclusion: "Tested by the Canons that the most judicious scholars have adopted in the investigation of all early history, we cannot doubt that the Northmen made four or five voyages to the coast of America in the last part of the tenth and the first part of the eleventh centuries; that they returned to Greenland with cargoes of grapes and timber, the latter a very valuable commodity in the markets of both Greenland and Iceland; that their abode on our shores was temporary; that they were mostly occupied in explorations, and made no preparations for establishing any permanent colony; except their temporary dwellings they erected no structures whatever, either of wood or of stone. We have intimations that other voyages were made to this continent, but no detailed account of them has survived to the present time. These few facts constitute the substance of what we know of the Scandinavian discoveries. Of the details we know little; they are involved in indefiniteness, uncertainty, and doubt. The place of their first landing, the location of their dwellings, the parts of the country which they explored, are so indefinitely described that they are utterly beyond the power of identification."

The volume on the Mott family which heads our list is an elegant specimen of this kind of book. It is handsomely printed on fine paper, with nearly one hundred elegant illustrations, consisting of portraits, views, maps, fac-similes, etc. Several family documents are preserved in fac-simile, among them the marriage certificate of Adam Mott, Jr. and Phoebe Willet, 1731, signed by them and twenty-seven of their friends as witnesses. Adam Mott, whose ancestors and descendants in various lines are here given, was born on Long Island, Oct. 11, 1762. The book, which preserves much interesting genealogical matter, is well compiled and has a good index.

The next book, the Champion Genealogy, is a neat and compact octavo, printed on thin but durable paper with ample margins. The research has been very thorough, and we believe that every male line has been carried down to the present generation. Beginning with the fourth generation it has been Mr. Trowbridge's endeavor to carry female lines four generations. The genealogy is well arranged and the biographic details are full. The indexes have some improvements by the compiler. Prefixed is a tabular view of the heads of families for the first five generations, which will be of great assistance in tracing families. There is a valuable appendix. The illustrations, consisting of portraits, views, etc., are numerous and fine.

The Exelby Genealogy is by Henry D. Eshelby, F.S.A., of Birkenhead, Cheshire, England, an able antiquary and the honorary treasurer of the Historic Society of Lancashire and Cheshire. The pedigree of this family is traced back to the conquest. Much interesting genealogical and historical matter is preserved in this handsome volume, which is illustrated by engravings and tabular pedigrees. It is well indexed.

The next volume contains a memoir of Michael Hillegas, treasurer of the United States, 1775–89, who held other offices of trust. He was born at Philadelphia, April 22, 1729, and died there Sept. 29, 1804. He was a son of Michael and Margaret Hillegas, natives of Germany. His great-granddaughter, Mrs. Whitney, of Pottsville, Pa., has in this book furnished a fitting biography of him, with a full genealogy of his descendants. It has a valuable appendix and a good index. It is handsomely printed and is embellished with a fine portrait of Mr. Hillegas.

The Thompson Genealogy contains all the genealogical matter contained in the book of Ignatius Thompson, published in 1841, which is one of the rarest of the rare genealogies which bring great prices. It also contains a great deal of matter collected from various sources by Mr. Thompson of Lansing, who has rearranged the whole on the REGISTER PLAN. The compiler deserves credit for the manner in which he has performed his labor. The book is well printed, illustrated by portraits and has full indexes.

The Plumb volume is devoted to the descendants of John Plumb, an early settler of Wethersfield, Ct. It is well compiled and well printed.

The Eberhart volume, besides a good genealogical account of the Eberharts of Germany and the United States, has an "autobiographical sketch of the author, including many reminiscences of ministerial and army life." It is an interesting and valuable book.

The next volume is devoted to the descendants of Samuel Ames of Canterbury, N. H., whose father, Daniel Ames, settled, in 1714, in that part of Exeter now Newmarket. The book is well compiled, with an index, and makes a handsome volume.

The Robinson Genealogy is by Mr. Edward D. Harris of New York city, whose genealogical work is known to be thorough and reliable. William Robinson, born 1707, was a great-grandson of William Robinson, an early settler of Dorchester, and his wife Anne Trott was descended from Elder Thomas Trott of Dorchester (See Register, vol. 43, page 79). The ancestors and descendants of this couple are well set forth in this compilation. A table shows their ancestors.

The Guild pamphlet is devoted to the ancestors, and not to the descendants, of the persons named on the title-page, who were the grandparents of the compiler. The plan is to begin with the earliest ancestor in each name and give a record downward in a single line. Four tabular charts at the end show at a glance the various lines of descent.

The next pamphlet is the fifth number of Mr. Dudley's pralseworthy History of the Dudley Family. As an extra number has previously been issued, six numbers or over 600 pages have really been published. This part, like the previous issues noticed by us, is devoted to the genealogy, biography and history of the various families of Dudley. Mr. Dudley has been engaged for over forty years in collecting materials for this book. We trust that those interested will send in subscriptions to him, that he may be encouraged to continue the pub-descendants of Thomas of Charlestown.

Mr. Loring's pamphlet contains a genealogical account of his ancestors and

The next pamphlet contains a generalogical matter of interest.

The next pamphlet by Mr. Williams of Bethlehem, Penn., gives four generations of the descendants of Robert Williams, who came in 1637 from Norwich, England, and settled in Roxbury. The compiler of this work has obtained new evidence about the family in Norwich since he contributed the article to the REGISTER, vol. 44, pp. 211-12. This will appear in a full genealogy of the family upon which Mr. Williams has been engaged for many years. The pamphlet is reprinted from the Magazine of New-England History.

The Sawyer pamphlet is a new edition, enlarged and corrected, of the article contributed by Mr. Appleton to the Register for April, 1874.

The Ball pamphlet gives the descendants of Edward Ball, who settled on Block Island as early as 1678. The compiler, Mr. Nicholas Ball of Block Island, R. I., is a descendant in the sixth generation. He has performed his task in a creditable manner.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Henrietta Sterrett Baldwin, wife of Byron A. Baldwin, died at her residence, No. 218 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, March 7, 1890, after three days illness. She was born at Erie, Penn., February 3, 1840, and was the youngest daughter of the late Hon. Joseph M. Sterrett and Catherine (Ribleh) Sterrett. She leaves to mourn her departure, her husband, one son, Walter Sterrett Baldwin, and one daughter, Kate Stewart Baldwin. She was a devoted wife and mother, and her memory will long be cherished for her many good qualities by all her friends and acquaintances. Her re-mains are laid to rest in the beautiful cemetery at Erie, Penn.

Mr. Joseph Linton Waters of Salem, Mass., died after a protracted illness at his house, 80 Washington Square, in that city, on Tuesday morning, April 14, 1891, aged 64 years, 6 months and 10 days. He died in the same house in which he was born, and the thought that this was to be the case was comforting to him in his last days. He was the eldest son of the late Hon. Joseph G. Waters, who presided over the Salem Police Court from 1842 to 1874. For several years, the son acted in the capacity of clerk. Mr. Waters was a brother of our contributor, Henry F. Waters, A.M., now in London; also of Edward S. Waters, Treasurer of the Holyoke Water Power Co., and of Charles R. Waters, for many years in a confidential position with the house of Felton & Son, Boston, and who now occupies the old homestead in Salem. Their mother died in November last, and an obituary of her will be found in this volume of the REGISTER, p. 174.

From 1849 to 1854 Mr. Waters was either clerk or deputy collector in the Custom House at Salem, being associated there with Nathaniel Hawthorne, of whom he was an intimate friend. He is referred to in a pleasant manner by the great romancer in the preface to "The Scarlet Letter." From 1855 to 1872, Mr. Waters was Register in the Land Department of the Illinois Central Railroad, with headquarters in Chicago. He was the soul of honor, and held many important trusts, not only with that great corporation, but of several estates. He was one to whom was entrusted the guardianship of the orphan children of the brother of Charles Dickens. He was buried on Wednesday the 15th, the Rev. George H. Hosmer officiating.

HISTORICAL AND GENEALOGICAL REGISTER.

HON. FREDERICK BILLINGS, A.M., LL.D.

By Rev. HENRY ALLEN HAZEN, D.D., of Auburndale, Mass.

Mr. Billings was a member of our Society only two years, being elected in October, 1888; it may be doubted whether he ever attended our meetings, and personally, he was known to few of our members. But, if intelligent and hearty interest in the work of the Society, manifested in substantial form, amid the labors of a busy life, constitute a claim to remembrance in the Register, such record is his due.

Frederick Billings was the son of Oel and Sophia (Wetherbe) Billings, and was born in Royalton, Vt., Sept. 27, 1823. The family is traced through fifteen generations, to John Billing of Rowell, who took his name from the place of his abode, about four miles from the borough of Northampton, England.* His eldest son was Sir Thomas Billing, and the line descends thus: Nicholas², John⁴, William⁵, Roger⁵, Richard⁷, William⁵, William⁹, William¹⁰, Joseph¹¹ Billings, Samuel¹², John¹², Oel¹⁴. William⁹ was the emigrant ancestor. He was married in Dorchester, February 12, 1657-8, and removed to Stonington, Conn., where he became one of the largest proprietors. Samuel12 was killed in the defence of Fort Griswold, when the British, led by Benedict Arnold, in 1781, John 13, after a term of service in the Revoburned New London. lution, sold his Connecticut lands, and settled in Royalton, Vt., where he became a leading citizen of that young town. His wife was Olive, daughter of James Noble, of New London; eleven children were born to them, of whom the eighth was Oel, born April 18, 1778. Oel Billings became a merchant in Royalton; but in 1835, when Frederick was 12 years old, he removed to Woodstock, where he died November 19, 1871; his wife having died May 1, 1870. Mr. Billings was the fourth of nine children, six sons and three daughters, of whom five are living.

^{*} The pedigree was traced by the late Mr. Horatio G. Somerby. See History of Woodstock, Vt., p. 589.

The Woodstock of Mr. Billings's early days was a very notable town, most worthy of the love and loyalty which were so deeply engraved on his heart. Few towns in Vermont, or the world, are more beautiful for situation. Nestled in the picturesque valley of the Ottaqueche, with Mt. Tom and other high hills surrounding, its views of hill and dale, meadow and forest, can never be forgotten by its fortunate inhabitants, roam they ever so far. Drawn by these and other attractions, the men and women who had made their homes in Woodstock, and gave it character, were a most notable galaxy. Among them were such men as Charles Marsh, and his illustrious son George P., so long a member of Congress and our first minister to Italy; Jacob Collamer, U. S. Senator and post master general; Andrew Tracy; O. P. Chandler; Norman Williams; Peter T. Washburn; Dr. Thomas E. Powers; Titus Hutchinson; Drs. Gallup and Palmer, whose lectures made the Medical School famous in its day; Rev. Walter Chapin; Nathan Cushing and the Danas. One who knew little of the town recalls easily these names. In such surroundings Mr. Billings received his youthful impressions and inspirations. He ranked well, and was popular among his school-mates, having an easy facility of acquisition and expression. In 1839 he entered Kimball Union Academy, and, in 1840, went to Burlington, Vt., where he was graduated from the University of Vermont in 1844. He then read law with Hon. Oliver P. Chandler, and, in 1846, was appointed by Gov. Horace Eaton secretary of civil and military affairs, a place he held for two years.

An older sister, Laura, had married Capt. Bezer Simmons of New Bedford, who had made several whaling voyages to the Pacific; and, early in 1849, Mr. Billings yielded to the persuasions of Capt. Simmons and his wife, and accompanied them to San Francisco; his sister, however, contracted a fever on the Isthmus, and died soon after they reached their destination. Here the young lawyer found the golden moment of opportunity open to him. The new El Dorado was just revealing her treasures to the world, and the tide was turning swiftly to her shores.

Mr. Billings opened the first law office in San Francisco, and his scholarly abilities were of that high order which commands success. The firm of Halleck, Peachy, Billings & Park took first rank. Trenor W. Park became after widely known as a successful business and railroad financier, and Gen. Halleck brought to the firm his West Point training and great ability, which, when the war came, made him General in Chief of the army.

"The law firm was dissolved in 1861, on Mr. Billings's going to England in company with Gen. Fremont upon business connected with the General's great Mariposa estate. Mr. Billings was an influential and earnest actor in the exciting events of the formative period in the history of California, and active in the various movements for the establishment of law, order and the institutions of education, religion and civil government, through which the new State became a stable Christian commonwealth.

He was especially active in defeating the conspirators who endeavored to detach California from the Union at the outbreak of the civil war, and in company with Starr King, he made a tour of the State, in behalf of the National cause, everywhere electrifying the audiences which assembled to hear them by his patriotic appeals. Although he was an unusually impressive speaker and peculiarly fitted for a public career, Mr. Billings never cared to enter political life. He accepted the responsible position of Attorney General of California, but held no other political office, although often pressed to take nominations for such offices during his residence in San Francisco. After the re-election of President Lincoln, and while he was reconstructing his cabinet for his second term, the California delegation in Congress urged upon him the propriety of giving California a representative in the new cabinet, and unanimously recommended Mr. Billings for the place. Only two days before Mr. Lincoln was assassinated he gave assurances to a member of the delegation that their request would be complied with. After Mr. Lincoln's death, the Legislature of California, then in session, unanimously passed a resolution requesting President Johnson to appoint Mr. Billings to his cabinet as a representative of the Pacific coast. These facts attest the high estimation in which Mr. Billings was held by the people of California at the time when he left that State to settle down in his old home in Vermont.'

Mr. Billings was married March 31, 1862, to Julia, daughter of Dr. Eleazer Parmly of New York city, where she was born December 8, 1835. Their children are: (1) Parmly, born in San Francisco, February 6, 1863, graduated from Amherst College 1884, and died May 7, 1888; (2) Laura; (3) Frederick; (4) Mary Montague; (5) Elizabeth; (6) Ehrick, born October 17, 1872, died Oct. 17, 1889; (7) Richard.

Soon after his marriage, Mr. Billings "closed up his business in San Francisco, and, after a period spent in foreign travel, he returned in 1864 to Woodstock to make his home there. In 1869 he purchased the Marsh estate, comprising the homestead of the late Charles Marsh, the father of George P. Marsh, which occupied the most beautiful and conspicuous site in that beautiful village. Mr. Billings twice almost wholly reconstructed the mansion, and in the words of the historian of the town of Woodstock, 'he went on making additions and improvements, till at length in the extent of territory, in the variety and orderly arrangement of the various parts of this wide domain and in the convenience and elegance of the buildings erected thereon, his home on the hill came to resemble one of the baronial estates of the old world, and is not surpassed in these respects, and in beauty of situation, by any similar establishment in New England.'" But his position in the business world had become too commanding to permit the quiet enjoyment of his Woodstock home.

His life in California had enlisted his interest in trans-continental railways, and especially in the Northern Pacific; and when the failure of Jay Cooke threw that great enterprise into financial straits, he was led to devote his skill and resources to its rescue. This he did, and the successful completion of this vast railway was more largely due to his persevering wisdom than to any other man. Such occupation made it necessary for him to live much in New York, where he had a pleasant winter home on Madison Avenue.

Mr. Billings belonged to the class of men who are constantly reaching after new and larger worlds to conquer. He had a natural affinity with great enterprises, and, during his last years, he had become one of the promoters of the great ship canal through Lake Nicaraugua. He recognized the importance of such a highway from ocean to ocean, bringing the Atlantic and Pacific slopes of America into closer connection. His interest in it, like that which he had felt in the Northern Pacific, was that of a statesman, and when it is completed his name must be remembered in its history. He was also a director or trustee in the American Exchange National Bank, the Farmer's Loan & Trust Co., the Delaware & Hudson Canal Co., the Manhattan Life Insurance Co., the Manhattan Savings Institution, the Presbyterian Hospital, the Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled (all of New York city); the Connecticut River Railroad Co., the Vermont Valley & Sullivan County Railroads, the Connecticut & Passumpsic and the Rutland Railroad companies. He was president of the Woodstock Railway Co. and of the Woodstock National Bank.

Mr. Billings avoided the peril to which too many great business men become victims; he was not the slave of his business. To the amenities of literature and of life his heart was always open; and every good work seeking honestly to better men's character or condition found in him a true friend. He never lost the vital freshness of a true Christian character, and shared in Jonathan Edwards's keen interest in all that related to the progress of God's kingdom in the world. Of the illustrations of these statements a few only can be His alma mater held his continued interest in most practical They culminated after the death of his townsman, George P. Marsh, at Rome, in the acquisition of his valuable library, rich in philological treasures beyond any other in this country, of which he made a gift to the University. Then this library must be suitably housed, and Mr. Billings proceeded, in his own munificent way, to erect a library building, designed by the great architect Richardson, which, with a later addition, is one of the finest in the land. The College, the State and the Country must always be indebted to him for this great benefaction. To Amherst College he gave, as a memorial of his son Parmly who died soon after his graduation, a fund of $50,000, and a similar sum to Mr. Moody's school for boys at Northfield, Mass., in memory of his son Ehric.

He was a corporate member of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, elected in 1876, and took deep and practical interest in its world-wide labors, as well as in home missions. The town on the Northern Pacific which bears his name received the gift of a church, as the symbol of his interest in its highest welfare. And the church in Woodstock, as well as the "brick" Presbyterian church in New York, found him a wise and constant friend. He never was weary of putting his love for them into practical forms. The parsonage and the chapel of the Congregational Church in Woodstock are both appropriate expressions of this love; and the last public work of his life was a reconstruction of the "Old White Meeting House," which may fitly stand as his monument. This reconstruction preserves, with devout care, the historic identity—the old frame and shape, adding only such improvement and ornament as harmonize, and the completed work is a beautiful architectural home for generations of worshippers. Another thoughtful and public-spirited work for his townsmen was the tranformation of Mt. Tom into a beautiful forest park, with more than five miles of well built roadway, where the people may seek health and pleasure amid the most charming surroundings.

Another monumental work which he secured for Woodstock was the fine "History" of the town, published in 1888. The author was his life long friend, Henry Swan Dana. The volume is an octavo, of 641 pages, printed at the Riverside Press, and is one of the finest town histories yet published of any Vermont town the finest town histories yet published of any Vermont town.

After some months of lingering disease, borne with manly fortitude and Christian resignation, Mr. Billings died at his home in Woodstock, September 30, 1890. From the address at his funeral, by President Matthew H. Buckham of the University of Vermont, some extracts must be given. With allusion to his text (2 Samuel iii. 31), "Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?" the speaker proceeds:

"Eulogy will have fitting place on some other occasion. And rarely has eulogy a worthier theme than that occasion will furnish. Many voices will mingle in it. Commerce, enterprise, art, learning, charity, patriotism, religion, all will claim the right to be heard, and to add their several notes to the full harmony of the strain. But ours to-day is a humbler and yet a tenderer and more sacred office. We his friends, you his neighbors and townsmen, the men and women who have grown up with him, who knew him in days of youth and hardship, and whom with growing affection he has loved in his days of prosperity and ripened manhood, we have gathered here in this church which he built in loving memory of the fathers and mothers, his and yours, whose piety was dear to him and to you,-we have gathered here, not to speak and to hear such stately words of well deserved praise as of others none could speak so well as he, but to talk to one another in homely, heartfelt phrase of the friend we have lost; to solace our grief by recounting the virtues which endeared him to us; to give utterance to those feelings of admiration, of gratitude, of love, which both nature and religion encourage in us; and then as Christians, with Christian submission, and faith, and hope, to lay his body by the bodies of his parents, and his children, and his townsmen of many generations, in that beautiful spot where many of you will also in due time be gathered to him and to his fathers and yours. Thus I know, and you know, he would have bid me speak. And though, as one said of old, it is hard to set limits to our feeling for such a man, I shall hope not to offend that gentle and modest spirit whose presence is all about us to-day."

"I note this princely character first in his endowments. In his intellectual, his emotional, his moral, his executive qualities, he was a gifted man, and his gifts were of the large and royal kind. He was not only largely gifted, but most happily gifted, with those diverse and related gifts which at once enhance and supplement each other, and together make a man whom other men can at once admire and love. Entering college some years after he had graduated, I found the fame of him still fresh in college tradition, the fame of his scholarship, his oratory, his popularity, his intellectual and social leadership. Of the great men of those times,—and no American college then had greater,—Wheeler and Marsh, and Torrey and Benedict,-youthful as he was, he was almost as much the companion as the pupil, and especially enjoyed the confidential friendship of that chief of teachers, James Marsh. Everybody who knew him in those early days foresaw his brilliant career. What direction it would take up one knew. It would not have surprised anyone to have it prophesied of him that he would be a leading advocate, or an eminent statesman, a preacher of commanding influence, a literary celebrity-or what he actually became, a magnate in the world of business-but that somewhere, in whatever field he might occupy himself, he would be a king of men, everyone foreknew.

You will all agree with me that Mr. Billings had great emotional gifts. He was richly endowed in the region of the affections. He had the capacity for deep and strong love for kindred, for friends, for good men and women, for home, and country, and God. His susceptibilities were quick and tender. He was easily stirred to enthusiasm by the sight or the thought of anything noble or lovely; and correspondingly intense was his power of indignation against anything unworthy or wrong. Herein lay the secret of his marvellous oratory. Probably no man that our state has ever produced, and few men of our time, had such power to rouse and move and sway the hearts of an audience as Mr. Billings had.

Mr. Billings was great and princely also in his activities and enterprises. Most men soon come to the limit of their abilities. Up to a certain point they grow with their occupation and succeed in it. But sooner or later there comes a time when the event, the complication of business, the case in court, the monetary crisis, is too large for the man and ruins him. it is that the great man shows himself. He grows with events and always outgrows them. By dint of struggling with a great enterprise he becomes great in capacity and power. Numerous and towering obstacles which daunt other men rouse and hearten him. Continental enterprises can be carried through only by men who have, so to speak, continental abilities. Such abilities without room for question Mr. Billings possessed. Of the great projects in the business world with which he was connected, and in which his part was always that of the daring and masterful executive head and will, it is not in place now to speak. But it is very significant that having signalized his business career by carrying to substantial completion a great transcontinental railway, he should in his last years have become deeply interested in the latest project for an interoceanic canal, and have sighed because he was not still in his 40th or 50th year, that he might have pushed that also to a successful result. What such a man might have accomplished in some of the innumerable possibilities which still await the man of power to conceive and execute, if he could have had 20 years more of physical vigor, the vigor which other men of the same age will have to spend upon trivialities, it almost takes away one's breath to imagine.

Again, Mr. Billings was princely, yes, royal in his munificence. This also has been said of him a thousand times, and is for that reason the more impressive when we say it here to-day. And though many and many others may say, and do say, this of him, none have a better reason for saying it than you and I-than I, who say it daily with gratitude to God whose special grace it is that makes one the liberal and cheerful giver whom the Lord loveth and whom all men love. A noble gift, a gift more benign and beautiful in every feature and aspect of it than that which Mr. Billings has made to his alma mater, no most affectionate and devoted son ever made or could make. And you, in order to be reminded of his munificence, you have only to look around you. This church and the adjoining chapel, his spontaneous and unsolicited gift to this church,-his offering rather to filial piety and the worship of God and the saving gospel of Jesus Christ,this tells you better than any words can tell, in language through which he being dead yet speaketh and will long speak to you, what a joy he had in giving and spending that others may be helped and lifted up and saved. But his was not only the munificence that poured out its bounty in splendid largesses here and there, his also was the hand that scattered benefits every day like the gentle rain upon the place beneath. Not the fewest in number, nor the least sincere of those who mourn to-day, will be those whose prayer for daily bread has been answered through Mr. Billings's thoughtful and watchful kindness.

He was great also in his humility. I am disposed to say that to those who knew him well he never seemed so great as in his humility. We all know that humility never seems so charming as in a man of power, when, in scripture phrase, such a man is clothed with humility, when he seeks to hide self behind its unobtrusive drapery. There is a modesty which is a true humility which in its lofty appreciation of transcendant merit, sets a low estimate on itself and all its belonging. This deep humility was that of Mr. Billings. His standard was the highest. His appreciation of excellence was so keen and so discriminating, in literature, in art, in learning, in statesmanship, above all in character, that he could not do otherwise than set before him the mark of a high calling and judge himself thereby. But Mr. Billings's idealism, while it made him severe with himself, did not and could not make him severe with others. In estimating others he was the most generous of men. It was beautiful to witness him in the same breath disparaging himself and commending others. I appeal to his neighbors and townsmen, to those who have regularly or from time to time stood in this pulpit, to any who have worked with him or for him-was ever praise heartier than his? Was appreciation ever so genuine, so gratifying as was his? But this man, from whom a word of praise outweighed all that other men could say, would sit in his library with bowed head and moist eyes and tell himself what a failure he was, how poor were the successes for which men admired and envied him, how much more admirable and enviable was the lot of some poor country minister whose work and whose life helped men toward heaven, and how different a man he would try to be, and how different a life he would lead, if he could only begin all over again.

And now it only remains to say that Mr. Billings was a prince in his faith. It is characteristic of a large-minded and large-hearted man to have a large full faith in truth, in goodness, in good men and most of all in God. A timid, distrustful, suspicious spirit, which challenges every appeal to its confidence, and guards every concession with minute and elaborate and subtle reservations,-such a temper belongs to feeble souls and small natures. A true man is faithful to his own trusts, and that makes it easy for him to believe that other men are faithful and that God is supremely faithful. For what is religious faith but believing that God is faithful and committing one's soul to him in well doing as unto a faithful Creator? I am not sure that Mr. Billings's faith in God was uninterrupted and serene. Indeed, I believe that God's discipline does not attain its highest beneficence without bringing one's faith sometimes to that point of tension at which doubt begins. But I am sure that out of every such trial his faith became stronger and purer and simpler. He must have often remembered his own question to Ehrich as to what he thought about during his lonely and sleepless hours, and the heroic reply of the little philosopher that he thought 'about the problems of life,' and the cheerful faith which prompted him to write on the margin of a magazine which had been left with him, 'the future is all right,' and have prayed that he might have the child's faith. And we believe that he did have it; that this long period of bodily disability and mental clearness helped him to attain to a higher degree of it; that suffering, instead of obscuring, served to brighten and refine it; and that, in his last days, as never before, he humbled himself and became as a little child, and entered into the Kingdom of Heaven with a child's unquestioning, unreserved, contented faith. And so this energetic, untiring spirit, which esteemed "nothing done if ought remained to do," which was inclined to blame itself first if there was a failure anywhere, settled calmly down into that confiding acquiescence which knows in whom it believes, and that he is able to keep that which is committed to him, and rests itself and all dear to it, lovingly in the arms of God."

We may conclude this notice with extracts from a private letter, written by his New York pastor, Henry J. Van Dyke, D.D.

"Few people realized how large and many-sided a man he was. Providence directed his life into a certain practical channel, into which he threw himself with such intense energy and marked ability, that his name became identified with the rescue of the Northern Pacific Railroad from ruin, and its successful completion. But even in this enterprise he was much more than a railroad man. thought of it as a great cause, essential to the development of the nation, and full of good for future generations. And, while he worked for it, his sympathies did not grow narrow, but broader and deeper, going out towards all things good. In art he had a natural taste which led him to choose pure and sweet and wholesome pictures. I shall always remember the pleasure with which he showed me Boughton's 'Return of the Mayflower' when it was first hung in his sitting-room. It seemed to him to express that which was finest in the Puritan spirit, softened and glorified by the touch of love.

"In his gifts to hospitals and colleges, and above all to the church, he was princely; not because he gave largely, though he did that; not because he gave carelessly, for that he never did; but because he gave as one who had the good cause at heart; because he made it his own cause; because he sought the honor and welfare of the kingdom, as a prince should do.

"His will was powerful. His feelings were quick and strong. In such a man there was necessarily a capacity for great indignation. But he could forgive as generously as he could fight bravely. I have seen him do the two beautiful things,—ask pardon for an offence which was not his own, and grant pardon for a wrong which had been committed against him without excuse. His love was stronger than his anger. There was a fountain of manly tenderness in the granite of his nature. He once told me that his idea of unhappiness was 'not to love.'

"It was beautiful, as the end of his life drew near, to see how full and clear the waters of affection flowed from his heart. The spring did not fail, but grew brighter and more abundant. And his Christian faith was that of a little child.

"He often regretted that Providence had not made the way clear for him to enter the ministry, as he wished to do in his youth. But I am sure that God knew best where He wanted His strong servant to labor, and crowned his works at last with the 'Well done, good and faithful servant.'"

About half an hour before Sun setting We saw five Vessels coming up the river, and looking at them but a little while the Man in the Watch Box call'd to us, saying the Indians were on the back side of the Garrison with a Flag of Truce. We no sooner heard that, but we made ready our Flag in order to have some talk with them, and when they saw our Flag up, there appeared several of them with an English Captive, named John Barton, a Fisherman, belonging to the Isle of Shoals, and being come within hearing, an Indian spake with our Command as follows.

INDIAN. You no see there something, pointing to the Vessels coming up.

COMM^{dr}. Yes, and what then, asking what they wanted.

INDIAN. It was the Garrison, and if we shou'd Surrender the Garrison they wou'd give us very good Quarters and send us to Boston in one of their Scooners.

COMM^{dr}. We want not your Quarters for we came on purpose to fight, adding that all the Indians in the Eastward cou'd not take us.

What is your Capt" name.

He was a ruling elder in the church thirty years; died Dec. 24, 1671, in the 78th year of his age.

Capt. The Indian told us he wanted we shou'd let that Vessel come up above the Garrison, to which our Commander answer'd, he wou'd not, telling them they were us'd to play the Rogue under a Flag of Truce. They made the Captive speak to us encouraging us that we shou'd find very good Quarters, as he had, if we shou'd surrender ye Garrison, & telling us that if we did not he was to dye yt night. We told him we cou'd not help it. The Indian ask'd when they might come again with their Flag of Truce, whether they might not to-morrow. Our Command, he cou'd not tell, he thought once in a Week was enough. Whereupon they drew off and made a fire that night a Quarter of a Mile from the Garrison. About ten of the Clock in the Night we fir'd one Gun at them at which they spread themselves about the Garrison and made an hideous Yelling, after which they lay still, the remaining part of the night.

The next morning, being Wednesday, they came to the same place with their Flag of Truce, where they did the night before, and when we put up our Flag the same Indn began to speak as follows.

ye Eastern Country can do.

INDIAN. What do You stay here for, You can do nothing but lose men, and it is not worth your while only for the sake of keeping that house, telling us that we had lost a great many men already, and shou'd lose more, for they wou'd lye at our backside & keep their Vessels in the river, so that we shou'd not get away, neither shou'd any help come to us.

COMMdr. Here is a good Harbour You may stay here and Welcome.

INDIAN. How long You Stay here. COMMdr. It may be two Years or more.

INDIAN. It is not your Land.

Satisfied.

COMMdr. It is King George's Land, and the Govern has given me a Commission to defend it, and if there were ten thousand of You I wou'd fight You, for I came for nothing else.

INDIAN. What's the reason that King George's Land men no go to King George to get any of his Land.

COMMar. Your Fathers sold this Land to the great men in Boston, it may be for a little money, and now you want more, for Indians are never INDIAN. You lye, my father never received one Penny. COMM^{dr}. You lye, I speak the truth, the Land is not yours, and You shall never have it.

INDIAN. O You much Stout, Why You no come out into the Woods. COMM^{dr}. It is not my business, I was sent here to keep ye Fort & that I will do in spite of You & all that You can do.

They told us their chief Capt" Name was Joel. After Abundance of threatnings they left us and went down the river to their Vessels and in a short time they put into a Cove with one of their Vessels out of our Sight to lade with Wood and Combustible Stuff and having fitted that they came up with Another that was prepared before and set it on fire designing to burn the Block House & immediately that which they had been fitting in the day came round the Point with her Sails full but by reason of a great Gun that was fir'd at her Sheer'd off and the tyde carried her a little way up. The first came very near, yet we had y good fortune to escape. This happen'd a little before night.

While the Vessels were burning they kept firing on all sides but we held them in Play and by heaving on Water We prevented the fire's doing any damage.

About one of the Clock in the morning seeing their design frustrated

they left us and went away very silently.

Thursday the 234 about ten of the Clock in the forenoon We saw nineteen Cannoes come from the Vessels that went to Wessowwesgig Carrying Place, besides others that were left with the Vessels. They did not come nigh us all this day till towards night, and then about ten of them came to the Point on the other side of the river, and brought the Captive with them in order to sell him to us. Having had some talk about the Price they thro' much persuasion let the Captive come to us, and having given him some Victuals We sent him back again with a Jackett & pair of breeches to shew them. They lik'd them very well and sent the Captive to us again. The Command sent over a red Coat which they took a great fancy to so that when the Captive went with it to them he with our perswasions got his Master to come over on this side to agree with our Command' about the Price, but tho' our Command' went out and us'd many intreaties he could not prevail with the Indian to come within sight of ye Garrison. At last the Captive being advis'd by our Command proffer'd to give his Master to the value of five and twenty Pounds, which the Indian took up with thinking the things mention'd amounted to five & fourty Pounds which was their lowest Price. We put the things agreed on in the Boat and sent one of our men with the Captive half way over the river according to agreement, that they might receive their Pay, but they wou'd not Venture but wou'd have our men go aboard the Scooner that lay about a mile and an half down the river. We having gone as far as they agreed to wou'd go no farther, and night coming on when we saw they wou'd not come off we call'd to our men to come ashoar with the Boat, which they did, telling the Indians to come next morning for their Pay. While the men waited for them to come off in order to receive what was in the boat the Indian that came on this side went over with the Coat when is all they have recd for they never came to us after, but went away, early the next morning. We had Acct by the Captive that there was one Indian mortally wounded in the fight. Vera Copia pr Wm Coyne for Lieut Wm Canady.

August y° 27th I went down the river with a boats crew, in Company with Lieut Banks who went with three boats, and by that time we had got two miles from the Garrison on board Capt Saund'[ers], who was then going away, the Indians fir'd upon the Garrison. [The paper, of the original, in the next line is so worn and broken, by folding, as to make the letters illegible] with as many men as we cou'd conveniently take out by y° Garrison, but cou'd not find any thing of them.

We have discovered the Indians several times since, but they have not done us any damage, by reason of our keeping in the Garrison for the most part.

A REMARKABLE MILITARY LIFE.

Communicated by WILLIAM WILLDER WHEILDON, Esq., of Concord, Mass.

MAJOR THOMPSON MAXWELL was born in Bedford, Mass., and may almost be said to have passed his life on the field of battle, "born and brought up as a soldier." Like the memorable George Washington, he entered military service when he was a boy. Washington was born in 1732, and Maxwell in 1742, and both entered the service of the country when about fourteen or fifteen years of age; both were in the French and Indian wars and the war of the American Revolution. Maxwell enlisted in a company of Rangers in 1757, and served in the various campaigns until 1763; was in the Revolutionary war from 1775 to 1779; was in the Shays Rebellion

lso served in the second war with England, in 1812, and remaind the army until 1819, latterly as barrack master at vas also in civil life, a member of the Massachusetts ich framed the State Constitution in 1780, and was a represent in the Legislature from the town of Buckland, afterwards result in Ohio. He visited Massachusetts in 1821, and was still living in 1833, near Detroit, 90 years of age. The following narrative was dictated to, and written by Mr. Benjamin Gleason in 1820–21.

MAJOR THOMPSON MAXWELL.

His father's name was Hugh Maxwell, born in or near Belfast, Ireland, 1699, and died in Massachusetts, March 19, 1759, by a fall from his horse, aged 60 years. His mother was born in 1693, and died in 1769, six years older, and lived ten years longer than his father.

There were five sons and two daughters, viz. William, Margaret, Sarah, Hugh, James (born at Mystic), Benjamin (born at Woburn), and Thompson (born at Bedford, Mass.). Thompson M., the youngest son, born (the 50th year of his mother) Sept 11, O. S., or 22, N. S., 1742, and lived at home with his parents till the spring of 1757.

In May or June, 1757, Capt. Nehemiah Lovell, of Dunstable, raised a company of Rangers, for the protection of the frontiers against the French and Indians. They were called the Provisional Rangers, whole number 700, under Gen. Amherst, at Lake Champlain. Active and patriotic, Thompson Maxwell enlisted, and (using his own words) our march was to Pennycook (now Concord, N. H.), Pigwacket Pond (now Lovells), in Fryeburg, Me. Scoured the woods to Connecticut River, near to White River, Vt. We there reconnoitered to No. 4 (now Charlestown, N. H.), which three days before was burned, subsisting on wild game, until we reached No. 4, for nine days. Thence to Hinsdale, Brattleboro', etc., including one day's march above No. 4 to Black River, from White River to Connecticut River, and at No. 4 again. Twenty or twenty-five of us finally return via Walpole, Keene and Swanzy, to Winchester, Fitchburg, Groton, etc., home.

1758. In April, enlist in Capt. Lovell's company for eight months. Rendezvous at Fort Edward. Thence to Deerfield; up Deerfield River to Rice's Fort, in Charlestown; over the mountains to Adams and Williamstown, to Fort Hawks. Major Hawks and his whole party prisoners. provisions; up the Hoosac River to within ten miles of Bennington; cross to Troy, to Half Moon Fort (now Waterford), on Mohawk River. Fort Edward again, Gen. Abercrombie in command (strict and severe), with 4000 British, 3000 Provincials and 700 Rangers, besides Frazer's Scotch Regiments, with their kilts, plaids, etc. We reconnoitre from Fort Edward to Fort George, and E. of lake George to the Bluffs, 15 miles, when the Indians attack the first day in a body; second day scatteringly and the third day are dispersed. We then arrive at Fort Ann. While Major Rogers's party are shooting at a mark, after breakfast, Major Putnam with his battalion moves for Fort Edward. At two miles advance we are ambushed, and fight hard for six hours, from 10 till 4 o'clock. The brave Major P. made prisoner and suffering greatly after his capture. Fifty-eight killed, 84 wounded in the conflict. The firing is heard at Fort Edward. In the evening recruits came with carts to bear off the dead, and the wounded borne on the back or biers to the fort. We remained ten days at Fort Edward, and the army then moves to Fort George. In August, we cross Lake George to Sabbath Day Point. Sunday had an action; the boats returned to Fort George; the army advance to Ticonderoga. Lord Howe and Gen. Abercrombie order a reconnoitre along the Indian trails. A sergeant, a corporal, and three or four men of our scouting party, arranged six or eight rods apart, directed by occasional whistling, move cautiously through the woods; but the Indians watchfully waylay, and unseen, fire upon us, killing the corporal and file-leader, and we are compelled to retreat. Hurrying over a hill, I am met abruptly by two Indians, who give chase for a mile, when at a breathing pause, with deliberate aim, I kill one and leave the other logg'd; then meeting the sergeant, he swims the outlet with me holding on by his shoulders, and then arrive safe at the fort. September, the attack: Tyconderoga stormed; loss 1500. October at Fort Edward; December home.

1759. Enlist eight months with Capt. Samuel Brewer of Waltham. May, to Fort Edward. June, on a scout. In an action at Roger's Rock (40 feet high, W. of Lake George), we lose thirty men. Retreat to Fort George, and have a hard fight at landing. To Tyconderoga, and thence to Crown Point. Find both evacuated. Engage in building boats, etc. December, to St. Francis, Rogers commanding. Lose all our blankets, etc. Massacre and burning. Surprisals frequent by the enemy. Seventy of us under Gen. Stark to No. 4. Realize great suffering; thirty-seven die, the rest surviving various hardships. Get safe at home at last.

1760. Enlist with Capt. Barnes of Chelmsford. May, with Capt. Brewer at Crown Point. Rangers scouting. Often engaged in skirmishing, etc. September, the army take boats and pass to Isle au Noir. Here a seige of eleven days and fighting. To Chamblie an action; to St. Johns. 20th of October, to Montreal. Gen. Murray from Quebec, Gen. Amherst (1758 at Louisburg) from the Lakes, and Gen. Howland from the south, are now with us. Colors flying, drums beating, drills and camp display in martial splendor. Montreal surrenders. October, Canada ceded to the English. 1000 men remain; one regiment of 800 men winter 20 miles above Montreal. We go to Detroit; the ice runs late, and we contend with many hardships and have soldiers fare.

1761. September, arrive at Detroit. The last of October, 250 of us go to Mackinaw, and make winter quarters, to protect the N. W. company's goods. So engaged, the season in garrison duties until the spring.

1762. In May, crossed Lake Superior to the N. West; Grand Portage. In August, to Mackinaw. In September, to Detroit, variously engaged, hither and thither during the year.

1763. In the spring go to Chicago and return, reconnoitering by land, etc. In the summer, Pontiac and 3000 Indians make a dreadful massacre at Mackinaw, by a stratagem of playing ball,—thrown in and out the garrison,-until they get free and familiar access to the fort; allaying all suspicion and pretending only amusement and good faith; then raising the war-whoop, they make a general rush! 200 British and their families all slaughtered! An awful calamity, and unknown abroad until after the arrival and retreat of Pontiac and his Indian warriors; in August, at Detroit. At this time there was in the Detroit garrison about 800 British and 170 Rangers. Councils were held. A delay of ten days making preparations; an Indian woman favored in the traffic of elk skins and moccasins, betrayed Pontiac's secret designs of another massacre; 36 warriors were admitted to the garrison, under a strong guard, for a talk, and their treachery expos d, by throwing aside their blankets, each one concealing a loaded shot gun. They were urged to peace, and required to depart forthwith; but Pontiac revengeful, the whooping and fighting continued for two or three days, so fiercely that the pickets were often on fire. Meanwhile a sloop of war, carrying 16 guns, Capt. Palding, with stores (Adam Brown interpreter), arrives. Slowly moving up river in a calm, the Indians take fright at the vessel's cannon and leave Detroit. In a moment of bravado, Maj. Gladden and Capt. Deil, with 550 volunteer troops pursued, following their boats up to Bloody Bridge, fearless of their warlike appearance, the brandishing of their tomahawks, carbines, etc., but the Indians landing, fight a desperate battle with us, give us no quarter, and our adventurers are repulsed with great slaughter and loss. Of 400 British and 150 Rangers, 170 British and 70 Rangers only return to garrison. November, the Treaty of Peace received. In '59, Maj. Gen. Wolfe and Lieut. Gen. Amberst had command of the British and American forces. The attack and conquest of Quebec, in September, Gen. Wolfe slain. In '60, the whole province of Canada surrendered to Gen. Amherst, and was confirmed to Great Britain by the treaty of 1763, British and American forces occupying Tyconderoga, Montreal and Quebec, etc.

In November, 1763, obtained my dismission and went home. Married Sybel Wyman, being then 22 years old, and she 27 years old. We lived together 38½ years. In May, '64, lived at Milford, then at Amherst, N. H., farming, teaming, etc., until 1775. Moved to Buckland, Mass., in 1779. My children were: Hugh, James (in Ohio), Joshua (in New York), Thompson (in New York), and Betsey. In 1802, my first wife died. In 1807, married the widow of Capt. Little of New Jersey, and she died in 1813, leaving one son in Ohio. Residence in Ohio, Butler County, town of Madison, called the "Brush Estate." [These notes were taken 12 years since, and Major M. has since married again, to a widow of Michigan Territory, and been occupied in farming, etc., at his present home somewhere in the neighborhood of Detroit; if now (1833) living, he is at the advanced age of nearly 91 years.] His narrative continues:

In 1773, December 16, was in Boston, when the tea was thrown overboard. Seventy-three spirited citizen volunteers, in the costume of Indians, in defiance of Royal authority, accomplished the daring exploit. John Hancock was then a merchant. My team was loaded at his store near Faneuil Hall, for Amherst, N. H., and put up to meet in consultation at his house at 2 o'clock P.M. The business was soon planned and executed. The patriots triumphed. 1774-5, at Amherst, the country alarmed. Volunteers enrolled, minute-men raised, etc. Arms collected, soldiers kept on drill, alarms frequent, all much engaged.

1775, April 18. Happened at Boston, with my team, and that evening to Bedford, at Capt. Wilson's (my brother-in-law), and concluded to stay. The team sent home to Amherst, N. H. The Provincial Congress at Concord [adjourned 15th]. Messrs. Hancock and Sam Adams at Lexington. Lieut. Col. Smith and Maj. Pitcairn, with 900 British regulars met the alarmed colonists at Lexington, 19th, and then to Concord, destroying stores, arms, etc. At the bridge opposed by Capts. Davis, Buttrick, Wilson, etc. with about 500 men. The British retreat and are met by Ld Percy's recruit of 4 or 500 British, with two field pieces at Lexington, the Americans following them to Charlestown. This day Capt. Wilson killed. The report of Americans killed 50, and wounded 70. Of the British 65 killed, 180 wounded, 25 prisoners, probably much larger number. Our company from Amherst, N. H., under Capt. Crosby (my rank Lieut.), arrive, and soon 2000 troops are assembled at Cambridge. Gen. Ward commanding.

June 16. Col. Reed's regiment stationed at Charlestown Neck. Putnam, Heath, Prescott, etc., on Bunker Hill. In the evening walk on the hill with Capt. Reed. My brother, Col. Hugh Maxwell, engineer, and about 1000 men at work. I drive stakes. June 17, engaged in action, and retreat to Winter Hill, Gen. Sullivan of New Hampshire, commanding.

July 3d. Gen. Washington arrived at Cambridge. The last of August went with a select number of volunteers to Hog Island and brought off cattle, sheep, horses, etc. Soon after a Br. sloop of war got aground in Mystic River, having 12 guns and a guard of 16 men. A small party of us made an attack; 10 of them escaped in the boat, and we took 6 prisoners, and burned the vessel. Gen. Putnam now commanding [at Winter Hill] with about 5000 men.

1776. March 17. Boston is evacuated by the British. 20th, we march to Boston. 22d, to Mendon. 24th, to Providence, and so on to New Haven, and in vessels to New York. The last of May, we arrive and have a battle at Trois Riviere, Guy Carleton commanding the British. In June, to Montreal, under Col. Reed (Gens. Sullivan, Arnold, etc.), to La Chine. To Jesus Isle to capture Church's party. To Montreal (in three hours), pass by Arnold and cross ferry; on to St. Johns. Capt. Oliver joins Gen. Sullivan; the number of troops about 5000-2000 active. To Isle au Noire (the small pox prevailing). I chance in the near transportation and am ordered on to Crown Point and thence to Tyconderoga, until November. Gen. Sullivan's brigade now commanded by Gen. Gates, and Col. Reed's regiment, ordered to the south to join Gen. Washington, west of Delaware River. In November, we move to Albany; thence to Esopus (60 m.) to Delaware River, and in Pennsylvania, via Bethlehem.

August 16, go to Bennington, Vt., Col. Baum commanding the British vol. xLv. 25* regulars; the action and their defeat. Gen. Stark took upward of 500 Hessians; more than 200 killed. I am now with 36 men acting as Lieutenant to Gates. Sept. 19, the British attempted to turn our left wing, in order to pass to Albany. Reinforcements and a general engagement—one piece of artillery three times taken and retaken. October 7, the action this day, the British were conquered. Oct. 17, surrender of Burgoyne.

[At this time Mr. Maxwell was in possession of a good farm, many cattle, etc., and in 1807, in the autumn, married a second wife at Detroit, who died in February, 1813. He continued his farming and military service, and, in 1811, was in the battle of Tippecanoe, Gen. Harrison commanding the United States troops.]

I then go on to Upper Sandusky, join Gen. Harrison destined to the Rapids of the Maumee. Fort Meigs, etc., rebuilt; and until the following March, I am uncertain of being exchanged.

1813. February 25, I return home to Dr. Little's, at Madison, in low health. Threatening letters are received, and to avoid danger I journey about Ohio to Cincinnati. In March, I visit friends, make settlements and am advised to leave the army. I was unjustly accused by Capt. Robinson, as a dangerous enemy and a tory, etc., in Hull's surrender. June, to Cleveland with Col. Jessup, and to Buffalo. July, join Miller at Fort George. In August, Gen. Wilkinson takes command. Nov. 29, in close jail.

1815. Realize many hardships in my 73d year. Capt. Deman friendly to me and the prisoners. March 19, exchanged. Thence in carryalls, etc., carried within 25 miles of Plattsburg and join Gen. Brown. In May, to Sackett's Harbor; on furlough to New York, Ballstown, etc. In July, barrack master for Detroit; with Gen. Miller to Buffalo, and in August again arrive at Detroit, building the cantonment, which is finished in December, and thus variously engaged.

1816, '17, '18, '19, during these years with the troops. In the winter of 1819, the office of barrack master is abolished. Then, as engineer, work upon the roads from Detroit to the river Raisin, 36 miles, and thence 30 miles more to the Rapids—say in all about 70 miles.

During the two last summers' residence at Detroit, receive Captain's pay, $240 pension, with the rank of Major. The natural infirmity of years excepted, at the age of 77, have general good health, a firm step, active habits, temperate and unbroken faculties, ardent patriotism, industrious disposition, an honest mind and a grateful heart; still in the enjoyment of social interests, estimable friendships and the constant duties of devotion. A long and useful life.

1820, November. Leave Detroit and visit friends in New York and to Boston. 1821, January and February, visiting at Boston and vicinity, through Massachusetts. During the year to New York, to Ohio and again to Detroit, etc.

1833, January. Maj. Maxwell is believed to be still living in his pleasant family connections near Detroit, past 90 years of age, honored by his compatriots, esteemed by his associates, beloved by his relatives and greatly respected by all his fellow citizens; happy in his reflections on a very active and useful life, having a competence for all the wants of his declining years, and very happy in the pleasures of society, the reward of government and the glory of his country.

It will be seen that Maj. Maxwell was present at some consultation had by the tea party in Boston, in 1773; was engaged in the Concord fight on the 19th of April, 1775, and was present with his brother at the work and battle of Bunker Hill. A portrait of Maj. Maxwell, by the artist Greenwood, was among others in the New England Museum in Boston, some years ago, and is probably still preserved. A sketch of the life of his brother Hugh, and of his military experiences, was published some time ago in pamphlet form.

The above narrative is transcribed from an old time-worn manuscript, re-copied by Mr. Gleason, in January, 1833, of which he says: "These notes were copied hastily many years since for personal satisfaction (he being a relative by marriage), but furnishing a memorial of engagements, vicissitudes and events, so extraordinary, connected with one human life, and some among the most important in our national history, it is thought expedient to gratify anxious patriotic friends with a transcript for publication." But, it is believed, they have never been published. He suggests that there may possibly be some mistakes of names or dates, which the reader is asked to excuse, if any are found.

Communicated by Isaac J. GREENWOOD, A.M., of New York city.

Dr. John Clark, the third, eminent not only as a Representative, Speaker and Councillor, but equally so as a Physician, and for the firm stand which he took in favor of inoculation, died in Boston, Dec. 5, 1728, age 62, leaving all his property, after a few special devices, to his five children: John, Mary Allin, Martha Elliott, Sarah (after wife of Prof. Isaac Greenwood), and Elizabeth (after wife of Col. Robert Hale), with the proviso, that his daughter Elliott's portion should be held in trust during the natural life of her husband, John Elliott. The daughter, Martha Clark, b. June 26, bapt. June 30, 1706, at the Old North Church, was married by her uncle, the Rev. Dr. C. Mather, April 13, 1725, to Mr. John Elliott of Boston. The inventory of her effects, as widow Martha Elliott, taken in 1744, was sworn to April 5, 1745, and her son, Clark Elliott, sold in June, 1762, the property on Back St. (Salem St.), which had come to his mother through the will of her father.

The writer was, for many years, unable to identify the John Elliott in question, until a descendant, the Rev. John E. Elliott, of Newington, Conn., informed him that in the summer of 1882, searching through a mass of old papers in the garret of a house, formerly occupied by his uncle Clark Elliott, he had found three documents of considerable interest, relative to his ancestor, viz.:

1. A Letter of Marque, given by Col. Richard Phillips, governor of Nova Scotia, to John Elliot, in 1722, commissioning him to command a naval force for the protection of the fisheries of Canso, and the extermination of pirates.

2. A petition from said Elliot, about June, 1728, to King George II., asking for a certain office, and referring to his services for the King, viz.: a great naval battle and signal victory in 1722; a serious wound, etc.

3. A commission from the King, appointing John Elliot, who appears to have been originally from Topsham, co. Devon, in England, to the office of collector of customs at Newbury (now Newburyport), New England.

Referring to Hutchinson's History of Massachusetts, Vol. II., 266-7, we find that, in the latter part of July, 1722, the Eastern Indians, instigated by the French,

"Surprised Canso, and other harbors near to it, and took sixteen or seventeen sail of fishing vessels, all belonging to Massachusetts. Governor Phillips happened to be at Canso, and caused two sloops to be manned, partly with volunteer sailors from merchants' vessels which were loading with fish, and sent them, under the command of Capt. John Eliot, of Boston, and John Robinson, of Cape Ann, in quest of the enemy. Eliot, as he was ranging the coast, espied seven vessels in a harbor called Winnepaug, and concealed all his men, except four or five, until he came near to one of the vessels, which had about forty Indians aboard, who were in expectation of another prize falling into their hands. As soon as he was within hearing, they hoisted their pendants and called out, Strike, English dogs, and come aboard, for you are all prisoners. Eliot answered that he would make all the haste he could. Finding he made no attempt to escape, they began to fear a tartar, and cut their cable with intent to run ashore; but he was too quick for them, and immediately clapped them aboard. For about half an hour they made a brave resistance, but, at length, some of them jumping into the hold, Eliot threw his hand grenadoes after them, which made such havoc, that all which remained alive took to the water, where they were a fair mark for the English shot. From this, or a like action, probably took rise a common expression among English soldiers and sometimes English hunters, who, when they have killed an Indian, make their boast of having killed a black duck. Five only reached the shore.

Eliot received three bad wounds, and several of the men were wounded and one killed. Seven vessels, with several hundred quintals of fish, and fifteen of the captives were recovered from the enemy. They had sent many of the prisoners away, and nine they had killed in cold blood. The Nova Scotia Indians had the character of being more savage and cruel than the other nations."

A similar account of the affair, drawn from New-England letters, dated Aug. 20th, appeared in Boyer's Political State of Great Britain, for Nov. Alluding to "the great depredations committed by the Indians, who had surprised and taken several Vessels in the Harbors, and no less than 12 off Aspoggin, 40 leagues to the westward" (meaning the remarkable cliff of Aspotgoen, on the promontory that separates Mahone from Margaret's Bay), this account informs us, that Capt. Elliot "arrived at Canso the last day of July, with his Colours flying, an Indian Blanket in form of a bloody Flag, at the Top-Mast Head, with the Head of their Chiefest King and Councillor on his Ensign Staff, and another on his Jack Staff, and two Scalps of those who commanded under them. The reason of their bringing away no more Scalps was because the Indians threw their men overboard as soon as killed."

Elliott's consort, Capt. Robinson, who had become separated in a fog, was likewise successful in killing some of the enemy and in retaking two vessels; five of them however, lying in the harbor of Merliguash (or Lunenburg), he was, owing to the superior number of the Indians, unable to recover.

Clark, only son of Capt. John Elliott, b. Dec. 26, bapt. Dec. 31, 1732, at Old North Church, was an apprentice of Thomas Greenough, in Bosas of his will in 1748. He settled in New London, Conn., ton, and as a mather ian and instrument maker, and in 1767 commenced a series of "Conn t Almanacs" under his own name. Chagrined at some mistake in astronomical calculations, he subsequently carried on the Almanac unner the name, it is said, of Edmund Freebetter. His death took place Aug. 11, 1793, and in his will be mentions land in Spencer, Mass. By his wife, Desire Billings, who died March 10, 1799, he had one son Euclid, b. 1769, who m. May 11, 1794, Abigail, dau. of William and Hannah (Pullman) Starr, of Middleton, Conn., and died from yellow fever, Sept 30, 1798, at New London; his widow, Abigail, died Oct. 10, 1816, having had two sons:

EUCLID⁴ ELLIOTT, b. Oct. 9, 1798; m. April 21, 1822, Lucy Smith Coit, of New London, who was living in 1882; he died March 27, 1846. His

[Communicated.]

The original of the following letter is in the possession of Mr. Joseph Little, Jr., of Newbury, Mass., now living on the old George Little homestead. George Little, to whom the letter is addressed, came from Unicorn Street, London, to Newbury, Mass., in 1640. He made numerous purchases of land both in Newbury and other places. Several years after his arrival in Newbury, he married Alice Poor, who sailed for New England in the Bevis in 1638. He had five children. Joseph was nearly six years old, and John nearly four, when this letter was written.

There is a tradition in the family of lands in Barbadoes deeded to ancestors, and that two young men living in the neighborhood and the deeds disappeared together, and the supposition was that they represented themselves as being of the name of Little and took possession accordingly. About twenty-five families of Geo. Little's descendants, of the same name, are residents of Newbury, a number of them living on land owned by him. The family living on the homestead have members of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth generations. For a fuller account of George Little and sixty-five hundred of his posterity, see "The Descendents of George Little," by George Thomas Little, A.M., published at Auburn, Me., 1882.

Admon granted 21 Dec. 1638-to Joane Hoare the relict

Charles Hoare, of the City of Gloucester, England, died in 1638. His will, now for the first time printed, is dated Sept. 25, 1638. Administration was granted at Doctors Commons to Joane Hoare the relict, Dec. 21, 1638.

Charles Hoare was sheriff of the City of Gloucester in 1634. Gloucester is a county of itself, by grant of Edward Third. In the first year of the reign of Richard Third the civil government of Gloucester was altered, and by charter of the same King it was ordained that, instead of Bailiffs, a Mayor with two Sheriffs and other officers should be annually elected by the twelve Aldermen and "twelve other of the most legal and discreet Burgesses." (Fosbrooke's "Gloucester," p. 414.) Charles Hoare was alderman of the City from 1632 to 1638, and perhaps earlier. In the Calendar of State Papers for 1636-7 is a petition signed by him that sundry expenses incurred in collecting ship-money may be allowed out of the funds in the hands of the sheriffs, and the remainder paid over "to the now Mayor and Sheriffs."

"Good Mr. Workman, our faithful watchman," mentioned in the sheriffs."

"Good Mr. Workman, our faithful watchman," mentioned in the will, is John Workman, a native of Gloucestershire, whose persecution by Archbishop Laud was, according to Laud himself, insisted upon more than any other charge at the trial of that prelate. Workman, for certain expressions against the use of images or pictures in churches, and certain expressions against "mixed dancing," was brought before the high commission at Lambeth, suspended from the office and function of the ministry, excommunicated, required to make restitution, condemned in costs of suit, and cast into prison. Mr. Workman afterward taught a school to provide for his numerous family. Laud heard of this, and prohibited him from teaching children. Workman then began to practise physic, but soon after died in great poverty. The Corporation of Gloucester in 1633 granted him an annuity of £20. For this the Mayor, the Town Clerk, and several of the Aldermen were brought before the Council, and prosecuted in the High Commission Court. Mr. Hoare was doubtless one of the offending Aldermen. (Brook's "Puritans," 2: 434.)

Charles Hoare was the son of Charles Hoare who died in Gloucester in 1636. Charles Hoare was the son of Charles Hoare who died in Gloucester in 1636. His son Thomas was baptized in the Church of St. Mary de Crypt, 15 June, 1612. The old vault bearing the name "Hoare" is still to be seen under that church. Little more is known with certainty of his pedigree. On the gravestone of his daughter Margaret, and her husband, Rev. Henry Flynt, in the burying-ground at Quincy, it is said that they were both descended from ancient and good families in England. In the Harleian MS. in the British Museum, No. 1543 to 54, is the visitation of the County of Gloucester, by Robert Cooke Clarencieux King at Arms, enlarged with the visitation of the same county in 1623. It contains on one page the arms of Hore of Gloucestershire, but there is no pedigree. The arms are an eagle displayed with two heads within a bordure engrailed. They seem to be the same with those borne by many families of the name in several shires of England and Ireland, with those carved on the gravestone of Daniel Hoar, who died in Concord in 1773, aged 93, who was the great grandson of Charles Hoare of Gloucester, and with those borne on the "tumbler" bequeathed by Usher, the husband of President Hoar's widow, to Bridget, the President's daughter. These arms are also found on a marble tablet in the church at Frampton upon Severn, about seven miles from Gloucester, quartered with the arms of Clifford and Windscombe, and also were formerly on a window of stained glass in Fretherne Lodge, a mansion built by James Clifford, with a design to entertain Queen Elizabeth at Fretherne, about nine miles southwest from Gloucester. The name is found frequently in Gloucestershire during a period extending back nearly to the Conquest. The heiress of Hoar of Gloucestershire married Henry de Clifford of Frampton, temp. Hen. 4. John Le Hore witnesses an ancient deed now in existence of a tenement in Wotton, Gloucestershire, 19 Ed. 2d.

The will of Richard Hoare, of the parish of St. John the Baptist in the City of Gloucester, gentleman, dated Aug. 4, 1618, bequeathes eighteen different houses in the city or county. He was sheriff in 1614. This Richard also by indenture established a trust, still in exisience, by which 53 s. annually are paid to the poor.

All the children named in the will of Charles Hoare came to this country with their mother, Joanna, in 1639 or '40, except Thomas. He was probably the eldest. It is very likely that he was the son of another wife, and had been established in business, or was to inherit lands as the eldest son. He is not included in the "five children now with me" mentioned in the father's will, nor is he alluded to in the will of his brother Leonard. The name of Thomas Hoar appears among the early settlers in old Norfolk, Massachusetts, and also in Gloucestershire. But the identity of either of these persons with the son of Charles is not established.

Joanna, the widow, died in Braintree, Sunday. Dec. 20, 1661. She is buried in the old Quincy burial-ground with her son Leonard and his wife and daughter, near the graves of her daughters Mrs. Flynt and Mrs. Quincy. She is the ancestress of many persons who have been eminent in the history of the country.

tress of many persons who have been eminent in the history of the country.

Daniel returned to England, where he engaged extensively in trade with the colonies. Oct. 2, 1650, he was licensed by the Council of State "to export to New England 300 birding fowling pieces and muskets upon good security that they will not be used to the prejudice of the Commonwealth." He was in Boston in 1653, where he executes a power of attorney to John Hull and John Hoare, and describes himself as of Boston, New England. His son John, then a child, was in New England in 1676, under the care of his uncle Leonard and his aunt.

John settled in Scituate and afterward in Concord. He rescued Mrs. Rowlandson from captivity in 1676, protested vigorously against the evil treatment of the Indians in his day, and had very uncomfortable relations with the authorities. Margery appears from her father's will to have been the widow of a person named Matthewe, and to have had a son named Charles Matthewe. There was a family of that name near Frampton upon Severn and near the hundred of Slymbridge, where Charles Hoare appears to have held lands. She married the Rev. Henry Flynt of Braintree, and died March 10, 1687. Her epitaph states: "She was a gentlewoman of piety, prudence, and peculiarly accomplished for instructing young gentlewomen." She is pleasantly commemorated by her descendant, President John Quincy Adams, in his discourse at Braintree, Aug. 24, 1839.

Joanna became the wife of Col. Edmund Quincy. Leonard was the first graduate of Harvard College to become its president. He took the degree of Doctor of Medicine in England, was settled as a clergyman in Wanstead in Essex, and was ejected for non-conformity about 1662. It is understood that Sir Matthew Hale, who was of Gloucestershire origin, strongly befriended Dr. Hoar. He delivered two sermons on the occasion of the death of Lady Anne, wife of Sir Henry Mildmay, of Wanstead. She was the daughter of Sir Leonard Holiday, Knight and Alderman, of London, and died March 12, 1656. There were at least nine considerable branches of the Mildmay family in Essex about the time of the colonization of New England. One of these was nearly related to the Winthrops. Agnes Winthrop, widow of Adam, the first John Winthrop's grandfather, married Wm. Mildmay, Esq., of Springfield Barnes, and her eldest daughter, Alice Winthrop, subsequently married Thomas Mildmay, the son of her mother's second husband. Mr. Henry Mildmay (first cousin of Governor Winthrop) held the manor of Little Badow, where Hooker taught a school, with John Eliot for his usher. This Sir Henry married a daughter of Brampton Gurdon, of Assington, near Groton in Suffolk, an old friend and neighbor of the Winthrops.

Sir Henry Mildmay, of Wanstead, was the son of Sir Humphrey of Danbury, and second cousin to Sir Henry of Graces. He was patron of the living in Wanstead. After the Restoration Sir Henry's estates were forfeited to the Crown. He was one of the King's judges, and his manor at Wanstead was given by Charles II. to his brother, the Duke of York. Leonard Hoar's wife, Bridget, was the daughter of John Lisle, the regicide, who was murdered at Lausanne by Royalists. Her mother, Lady Alice Lisle, became the victim of Jeffrey's "bloody assize." She was beheaded in the court-yard at Winchester in 1685. She was convicted of misprision of treason for giving food and shelter to two fugitives from Monmouth's army, although she protested her innocence, and it was a plain violation of law to convict her without first convicting the persons whom she was charged with having aided. Her attainder was reversed on the petition of Mrs. Bridget Hoar and her sister Tryphena Grove, by act of Parliament in the reign of William and Mary. Bridget Hoar had two daughters. One, Tryphena, who died in infancy, is buried at Braintree in the same grave with her parents and her grandmother Joanna. The other married the Rev. Thos. Cotton of London, whose descendants were living in England at the close of the last century, and probably are living there now. The pedigree is given by Mr. Waters in one of his Gleanings. (See REGISTER, 1885, p. 63.) Leonard Hoar's wife Bridget was married again, to Hezekiah Usher. The marriage was an unhappy one. Mrs. Usher left him, and went to England in 1687, and did not return until after his death in 1697.

President Hoar seems to have been a very able man. In the letter to his friend Robert Boyle he was the first person to suggest the modern technical education. He was a friend of Master Samuel Hartlib, to whom Milton addressed his celebrated tractate. None of the writers on New England history seem to have understood fully the cause of Dr. Hoar's failure in the presidency of Harvard College, which seems to have broken his heart, although it did not destroy the interest of his family in the college, of which his grandson, the Rev. Mr. Cotton, was afterward a generous benefactor. Dr. J. Hammond Trumbull thinks that Dr. Hoar's difficulties were due to the fact that soon after his arrival he connected himself with the new Third Church in Boston, then recently gathered by seceders from the First, who were Synodists or advocates of the half-way covenant, thereby bringing himself into marked opposition to the Governor, a considerable number of the magistrates, all the conservative clergy, and the more influential members of the Corporation of Harvard; and this at a time when (says Cotton Mather) "the whole people of God throughout the Colony were too much distinguished into such as favored the Old Church and such as favored the New Church. (Magn. 5: 83.)

The names of the numerous descendants in this country of Charles and Joanna Hoar, through their son John and their daughters Margery Flint and Joanna Quincy, can be learned from pedigrees and records easily accessible. Besides those bearing the name of Hoar, are the Prescotts, Evartses, Baldwins, Gen.

Terry, the hero of Fort Fisher, the Quincys and Adamses.

Among the other persons named in the will of Charles Hoar are his wife's brothers, William, Walter, Edward and Thomas Hincksman. This name is written in the records of that period indifferently Hincksman or Henchman. There was a Walter Hincksman who, about that time, was rector of the old church at Matlock in Derbyshire, the place from which Rev. Henry Flynt and his brother Thomas Flynt of Concord came. Thomas Hincksman is in all probability Major Thomas Henchman of Concord, afterward of Chelmsford, well known in the Indian wars. Edmund Hincksman, with Edmund Quincy and Robert Hull, witnessed the power of attorney of Daniel Hoar above referred to. Thomas Hoar, the brother of Charles, is probably the Thomas Hoar who took the degree of Bachelor of Arts at Oxford, and who petitions the East India Company for employment as a preacher in 1620. Thomas Vell is a person very well known in the public affairs of Gloucestershire about that period. He seems to have been on the side of the Commonwealth in the early part of the Civil War. But he was one of the deputation to welcome Charles II. on his restoration.

[Mr. John Bulkly of Fordham in the co. of Essex and M'ris Anne Try of Odell, married, March 19, 1650. (Parish Registers of Odell in Genealogia Bedfordiensis, by F. A. Blaydes.)—H. F. w.

Rev. John Bulkeley, M.A., born 1619-20, H. C. 1642, was the son of Rev. Peter Bulkeley, of Odell (Woodhill), Bedfordshire, and of Concord, Mass., by his first wife, Jane Allen, of Goldington. He returned to England soon after his graduation, and was settled as a minister in Fordham, Essex, where the baptisms of a son and daughter are recorded by his own hand. Having been ejected from his living in 1662, he removed to "Wapping in the suburbs of London," and there practised as a physician till his death, probably in January, 1689-90. (Sibley's Harv. Grad. I. 52; Bulkley Family, p. 64.) He married, first, March 19, 1650[-1], Anne Trye, who probably died before June, 1665; secondly, Avis or Auice ——. His children by Anne Trye were: Edward, John, Thomas, Margaret (born before 1656) and Elizabeth. John, who with Margaret died before 1689, was probably the father of the Joseph Bulkeley mentioned by Elinor Trye among her sister Anne's children; though as John evidently died before his father, it is curious that Joseph is not mentioned in John Bulkeley's But, unless both John and Joseph married much younger than men usually did even in those days, this Joseph could scarcely have been the "cousin Joseph Bulkley" whose 'son Edward" is mentioned in Elianor Trye's will. It is, however, difficult to see who else it could be. Thomas, who was in New England in 1691, had John (less than sixteen in 1691, died before 1720), and Thomas, who was in the East Indies about 1720. Elizabeth married Everard Fawkner (died 1707), and died 1720. She was probably a second wife, with a stensor Freezed who died hefore his father (See Brouster 1888 p. 272. or Gleanings, I. 281, for Elizabeth Fawkner's will.)

The "nephew Edward Park".

The "nephew Edward Bulkeley here in England," of John Bulkeley's will, and the "cousin Edward Bulkeley" with wife Sarah and daughter Elizabeth (less than twenty-one in 1720) of Elizabeth Fawkner's will, may have been the son of Hon. Peter's Bulkeley (Rev. Edward, Rev. Peter') perhaps, brought by his father to England in 1876, and left in his uncle John Bulkeley's care. (Gleanings I., 285-6; Register, 1888, p. 275-6.) As he was the eldest son of the eldest son, it seems not at all improbable that his English relatives should have agreed to provide for him. The expression "my nephew Edward Bulkley the elder" in Elianor Trye's will might seem to imply that John's son Edward had himself a son Edward, who might then be supposed to be the "cousin" mentioned by Elizabeth Fawkner. (See Gleanings, p. 277, note by Mr. Waters.) But it is very unlikely that of all her nephews and nieces she would call only one by the name of "cousin"; and the expression, "the elder," was probably used simply to distinguish John Bulkley's son, born about 1651, from his cousin and adopted brother of the same name, born 1668-9.

The children of Thomas (died before 1656) and Ursula (died 1664) Trye, seem to have been: William T. (died between 1656 and 1689) who had son Thomas; Margaret T. m. — Wroughton (?), and died between 1665 and 1691; Elianor T. died unmarried, 1691-2; Susanna T. married before 1656 John Vicarioge (who died between Oct. 11, 1689, and Nov. 24, 1691), and had eldest Trye V., born about 1648, died between 1656 and 1689 (had Trye, Susanna and Elizabeth, all living in 1691); Slauter V. died between 1656 and 1691; John V.; William V. (had Frederick); Thomas V.; Charles V. (had Charles, John and Thomas); Margaret V.; Susanna V. married John More (who had John, perhaps by a former marriage) and Elizabeth V., unmarried in 1691. Of these, Trye, Slauter, John, William, Margaret, and probably Susanna, were born before 1656; and Trye, Slauter, William and Margaret apparently died before

The use of the word "spinster" in Ursula Trye's will is very curious. ("Bachelor" is sometimes used of a widower.) The Mrs. Hester Vicaridge mentioned with her son the "chyrurgeon," in Elizabeth Fawkner's will, was perhaps the widow of the younger Trye Vicaridge.

St. Laurence Lane runs north from Cheapside to Cateaton St.; the Church of St. Laurence Jewry is opposite its northern end. The Precincts of St. Katherines have been swallowed up by St. Katherine's Docks.—Emma F. Ware, of

It relates principally to his business and the oppressive measures of the King's officers towards him and other Parliamentarians. "They had granted, he says, "a generall pardon, or rather oblyvion, thorough the whole yland: & now since they have made an engagement for every one to take it, and some not takeing it, went away pryvately from the Yland. The writer mentions brothers Constant and Nathaniel; uncles Nathaniel Arnold, Elyas, Elyaha; aunts Lydia Thorp, Marey, Pelham, Aunt Susanna. He says: "My brother Nathaniel is not come from New England yet. I have not received any letters neither of him, nor of my brother Constant, who went away on Good Freeday last. Mr. Davis prints references to Silvesters from the Calendars of State Papers (Colonial). He also prints from Col. Chester's Marriage Licences, this entry: "Sylvester, Giles, of St. James, Duke's Place, London, merchant, bachelor, 30, and Anne Burrell, spinster, 18, daughter of Sir Redmayne Burrell, knight and bart, of Dowsby, co. Lincoln, who consents—at Great St. Bartholomew, Lon-don, 13 January, 1662." Memo: 131 10 due from my brother in law Thomas Lumbard.

[The seal seemed to be a chevron between three crescents.—H. F. w.

The four sons of Philip and Alice Torrey emigrated to New England about 1640. James settled in Scituate, where he married Ann, daughter of Elder William Hatch, Nov. 2, 1643. He died there July 6, 1665, leaving a large family, many of whose descendants are now living. Philip settled in Roxbury, where he married, Oct. 1, 1647, Mary, widow of John Scarborough, and died May 12, 1686. It is not known that any of his direct descendants are now living.

Joseph owned land in Weymouth in 1642, and was a resident of Rehoboth in 1643, and was prominent in the affairs of the Newport settlement from 1656 to the time of his death, 1676. He had one daughter, name unknown. William married Agnes, daughter of Joseph Combe, of Combe St. Nicholas, March 17, 1629; she lived not more than a year, and he married second, Jane Haviland, referred to in the will of Matthew Haviland in these Gleanings; she died 1639, leaving two sons, Samuel and William. He soon married a third wife and emigrated to New England, taking his two sons. They settled at Weymouth. Here six children were born. Capt. William Torrey was a leading man of his time, was many years clerk of the Deputies, and occupied many positions of prominence in the Colony. He died at Weymouth, June 10, 1690.

In a letter to the writer, dated Nov. 6, 1884, Hon. Alphonso Taft, referred to

In a letter to the writer, dated Nov. 6, 1884, Hon. Alphonso Taft, referred to by Mr. Waters, says: "The line as I find it is, William, who died in 1557, leaving a will; Philip, his son, who died in 1604, leaving a will; William, his son, who survived his son Philip, but the date of whose death we have not; Phillip, who died in 1621, leaving a will naming his four sons who emigrated to America.'

Mr. Taft also furnished from the Bishops' Register at Wells the following for Combe St. Nicholas:

"1608 William the son of Philip Torrie was baptized 21 day of December.
"1608 Agnes daughter of Joseph Combe was baptized the 4 of January.
"1629 William Torry was married unto Agnes Combe the 17 day of March.

"1629 William Torry was married unto Agnes Combe the 17 day of March.
"1639 Jane the wife of William Torry was burried the 27 day of April Anno.

Savage mentions Naomi Torrey who married Richard Sylvester at Weymouth in 1632, and says she was "probably sister of William." From the will of Phillip this would appear not to be the case, yet Samuel, son of Capt. William, in his will in 1707, mentions John Lowle (who was probably a grandson of Naomi) as "his kinsman." It would seem, therefore, that Naomi was a relative of William.—H. A. Newton, of North Weymouth, Mass.

Mr. Newton, of North Weymouth, the writer of the above note, furnished to Mr. John Torry, of Scranton, Pa., author of the Torrey genealogy, published in 1885, the matter in that book relating to the English ancestry of the New-England Torreys. (See REGISTER, vol. 40, page 236). Mr. Newton had previously procured from England abstracts of most of the above Torrey wills.—Editor.

The foregoing wills seem to establish a pedigree of Torreys, viz.: 1, Philip, who died in 1604; 2, his son William, whose death is not yet found; 3, Philip, who died in 1621, leaving a widow Alice, and the four sons, who are undoubtedly the emigrants. The affidavits cited by Savage are recorded in Suffolk Deeds, vol. viii. p. 392, and are as follows:

"Phillip Torrey aged fifty nine years or thereabouts heeretofore of Combe St Nicholas in the County of Somersett within the Realme of England, there liveing untill the yeare sixteene hundred & forty, yeoman, in that yeare removeing to New England with William Torrey & Samuell his son, both of the s^d Comb St Nicholas with whome hee lived for severall years & beeing arived settled & hath ever since lived in Roxbury in the County of Suffolk in New England afors^d On his corporall Oath deposed that hee well knew & was acquainted with the s^d William Torrey the Father & Samuell Torrey his sonn all the whiles hee lived in Comb St Nicholas afores^d in old England & ever since hee came to New England and to this day, being in their company on his Oath affirms them to bee the same William Torrey & Samuell Torrey, father & sonn, aboves^d, haveing severall opertunities in each yeare to see & confer with them, ever since, they being both in good health this day, being the fifth of March 1673–4.

Taken upon Oath March 5th 1673-4, by Phillip Torrey, before us, Richard Russell Thomas Danforth"

"George Fry aged fifty eight years or thereabouts heretofore of Comb St Nicholas in the Realme of England, husbandman, liveing there untill the yeare sixteene hundred & forty, in that yeare removed & came in the same shipp to New England with William Torrey & Samuell Torrey his sonn, both of the sd Comb St Nicholas, & being arrived in New England setled & ever since have lived in Weymouth in the County of Suffolk in New England aforesd. On his Corporall Oath deposed that in old England for severall yeares untill the yeare abovesaid he was well acquainted with & knew William Torrey the Father and Samuell Torrey his sonn & ever since untill the day of the Date hereof, they & hee this deponent having lived in one Towne vizt in Weymouth in New England abovesd & beeing with them in Boston in New England they are both in good health this day being the fifth of March 1673-4.

Taken upon Oath in Boston March 5th 1673-4 by George Fry, before us Richard Bussell Thomas Danforth"

The reference in the will of widow Alice Torrey to her brother-in-law Thomas Lumbard, and the fact that her husband, in 1621, made Thomas Lumbert one of his covereers, way lead to the discovery of the angestry of that family

Thomas Lombard or Lumbard came here in 1630, according to Savage, with children including Bernard, who was born in 1607 or 1608. Both went to Scituate and thence to Barnstable. Deane (Hist. of Scituate, pp. 307–8) calls Bernard Lumbard "one of the men of Kent," and says that Richard L. was in Scituate in 1640, returning to Tenterden, Eng., on the strength of Elder Nathaniel Tilden's will. But that document (ibid, p. 355) does not bear this out, since it gives "to wife Lydia the income of my Stone house, with the lands in Tenterden in Kent, in which Richard Lambeth now dwells," etc. Certainly Lumbard or Lumbart is not the same name as Lambeth, nor even an easy corruption therefrom.

The will of Alice Torrey gives a much more promising clue for the origin of Thomas Lombard, as her brother-in-law would be the exact contemporary of the emigrant; and his success in settling here might well induce his presumed nephews to come over ten years later. It is rather strange that Philip Torrey in his deposition does not call William and Samuel Torrey, respectively, his brother and nephew, at a time when the avowal of the relationship would seem

In the will of widow Alice Torrey, she makes Henry Dunster one of her overseers, and he witnesses. Mr. Newton has a memorandum from the Bishop's office at Exeter, of a marriage license granted 8 May, 1627, to Henry Dunster of Willsworthy and Anna Torry of Whitstaunton, co. Somerset. Our president of Harvard, Henry Dunster, was, however, born in Lancashire, and I merely note the coincidence of names.—W. H. WHITMORE.]

WILLIAMS (ante, vol. 37, pp. 236, 376):

Upon the publication of these abstracts, Ex-Gov. Joseph Hartwell Williams of Augusta, Me., a descendant in the 7th generation from Richard Williams of Taunton, undertook to prosecute the investigation by correspondence, and obtained very gratifying results, which he gives in an article contributed by him to the Maine Historical and Genealogical Recorder for January, 1889 (issued December, 1890), pp. 255-62. We make the following extracts:

"In the Consistory Court of the Bishop of Gloucester was found the will of Samuel Williams, dated Sept. 26, 1668, proved in 1669. He was apparently a clergyman, for he gave to his son Benjamin his 'Book of Marters' and 'Perkins Works,' and to his son Nathaniel his 'Written Sermons.' He also mentions his brother,' James Adams (his wife's brother), his brother Richard Williams and his sister Elizabeth Williams, the Adamses again, and his cousins (nephews and nieces) the four Hall children.

"Next was discovered the will of William Williams of Synwell, a hamlet in Wotton-under-Edge. It was dated Sept. 26, 1618, and proved in the same year. It names sons Samuel and Richard, daughters Ann or Anna, Elizabeth and Jane. These are the same names as in the other wills, except that it is here found that the name of Mrs. Hall was Ann. The witnesses were William Martin, Robert Trotman and Francis Wright, the two former of whom are named as overseers. These are well-known names of families of high standing. The executor was Richard Tyndall (or Tyndale) of North Nibley, a relative of William, the translator of the Bible, who suffered martyrdom in Flanders.

"An examination of the register of the parish of St. Mary the Virgin in Wotton-under-Edge in Gloucestershire, brought to light the baptisms of the following children of William Williams: 'An,' daughter, Dec. 2, 1599; Richard, son, Jan. 28, 1606; Jane, daughter, March 19, 1608.

"There is also the record of the burial of William Williams, Sept. 29, 1618, and of Elizabeth Williams, Nov, 19, 1630. It was at first supposed that this Elizabeth might have been the mother of Richard; but as no wife is mentioned in the will of William, this is scarcely probable. Susanna Williams was buried Jan. 11, 1610, and she may have been the wife of William.

"The records show that Samuel Williams married Alice Knight, a widow, in 1637; that their son Samuel was baptized in 1638, their daughter Hannah in 1640 (died 1645), and their son Nathaniel in 1645; that the mother died in 1661, and the father in 1669. Samuel, Jr., died young, and the record of Benjamin's

An early genealogical manuscript, preserved in the Williams family, states that the wife of Richard Williams was "Frances Dighton, sister to Catharine Dighton, who was married to Governor Thomas Dudley." Gov. Williams finds Dighton, who was married to Governor Thomas Dudley." corroboration of this statement. He finds a record that,

"February 11, 1632, Richard Williams was married to Frances Deighton of Gloucester in the Parish of Witcombe Magna."*

He finds also the will of John Deighton, father of the above Frances, dated Jan. 31, 1639, proved May 21, 1640, which "mentions his eldest son John, his eldest daughter Jane, his daughter Frances Williams, his daughter Katherine Haighburne, and his daughter Damaris, who was made residuary legatee." The following inscription found in St. Nicholas Church, Gloucester, we quote from the same article:

"Here lies interred the bodies of John Deighton of this city, gent., and Jane, his wife, daughter of Edward Bassett of Uley, by whom he had issue three sons and four daughters. He spent all his time in the study of chirurgery, and attained to great knowledge therein. He died 16 May 16[40], and she 23 April, 1631.

Katharine Deighton, baptized Jan. 16, 1614-5, married Samuel Hagburne or Haighburne. They came to New England and settled in Roxbury, where the husband died Jan. 24, 1643. An abstract of his will is printed in the REGISTER, vol. 2, pp. 261-2. She married 2d, Gov. Thomas Dudley, April 14, 1644, who died July 31, 1653. She married 3d, Nov. 8, 1653, Rev. John Allin of Dedham, who died Aug. 26, 1671. She died three days after, August 29. She had children by all her husbands. Gov. Joseph Dudley was one of her sons.

Richard and Frances Williams had two children born to them while living in Gloucester: John, bp. March 27, 1634, and Elizabeth, bp. Feb. 7, 1635-6. Both died young.

ANCESTORS OF GYLES MERRILL.

By SAMUEL MERRILL, A.B., LL.B., of Cambridge, Mass.

It is often as interesting to trace the ascendants from a person now living as to trace the descendants from a common ancestor who lived two or three hundred years ago. The result of an effort in this direction made by Gyles Merrill, Esq., of Haverhill, Mass., is shown on the accompanying sheet. Mr. Merrill is a member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, and his study and research, undertaken for this purpose, have been prosecuted in the books and documents in the possession of the Society, and in town and church records in many other quarters for a period of more than forty years. In no case has an entry been made without qualification where any doubt was entertained regarding the strict accuracy of the statement.

A work of this character is one which is never considered complete, and corrections or additions from any source will be gratefully received. Especially desired are facts showing the antecedents of William Redford of Portsmouth (found in the sixth generation on the paternal side), who perhaps lived for a time in Salem; and of Sarah Tappan, in the fifth generation on the paternal side; also of Mary Holton, in the sixth generation on the maternal side. Other lines lacking on the maternal side have escaped the diligent search of Mr. Eben Putnam of Salem, who has now in press a genealogy of the Putnam family; but it is hoped that they may ultimately be traced.

The lines of ascent, it will be observed, run back into families of twenty-eight names, and all, so far as known, are of unmixed English stock. There is no evidence of any other blood, and the American progenitor of every family came here prior to 1650. It is thought to be comparatively rare that the ancestry of persons now living can be traced into so many family lines without meeting blood of other than English origin, or without meeting ancestors who left their English homes in more recent years. Nearly all the families bear common New-England names, and they are mostly of Essex County, Mass., a few having lived in Suffolk and Norfolk Counties.

It will be observed that the number of family names is reduced by the inter-marriage of Putnams on the maternal side. Descent is traced from the emigrant, John Putnam, through each of his three sons, Thomas, Nathaniel and John. Two marriages of Putnams with Putnams are recorded, three of Putnams with Flints, and two of Putnams with Hutchinsons; but in no case was the relationship of the contracting parties nearer than that of third cousins.

On the paternal side such inter-marriages are not found, unless it is proved that Sarah Tappan, who married Jabez True in the fifth generation, was a descendant of Abraham Tappan of Newbury. It is believed that Abraham Tappan was the ancestor of all the Tappans and Toppans of Newbury and Salisbury; but the line has not been traced for the two intermediate generations. It is a matter of surmise only that Susanna Goodale of Yarmouth, Eng., who married Abraham Tappan, was a sister of Ann Goodale, daughter of John Goodale of Yarmouth, who married Thomas Milward of Newbury.

The form in which the table is drawn up is unlike that usually followed, but it offers some advantages for its purpose, and may be useful for its suggestiveness to others undertaking a similar table of their own ancestors.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

NOTES.

The Freeman's Oath, the First Issue of the New-England Press.—Gov. John Winthrop, in his History of New England, written in the form of a journal, says, under date of "Mo. 1," 1638-9: "A printing house was begun at Cambridge by one Daye, at the charge of Mr. Glover, who died on sea hitherward. The first thing which was printed was the freeman's oath; the next was an almanac made for New England by Mr. Peirce, mariner; the next was the Psalms newly turned into metre."—(Savage's Winthrop, I. 289.) Of these three publications, the first and the second, the Freeman's Oath, and the Almanac, are not known to be extant. A few copies of the third publication, "The Whole Booke of Psalmes Faithfully Translated into English Metre," are preserved; and, in 1862, Mr. Charles Benjamin Richardson, of New York city, published by subscription a literal reprint of this book. It was as near a facsimile as could be made with type, the errors and blemishes being all faithfully reproduced under the scrupulous supervision of the Hon. Nathaniel B. Shurtleff, M.D. Only fifty-six copies were printed. (See Historical Magazine, March, 1862, pp. 103-4; Proceedings of the Massachusetts Historical Society, Vol. 13, page 393.) The Catalogue of John Carter Brown's Library, Part II. (1600-1700) second edition, pp. 201-2, contains a list of the owners, in 1882, of the eight copies of the original edition known to be extant.

In regard to the Freeman's Oath, we find on the Massachusetts Colony records, under date of 14 May, 1634, an order that the former freeman's oath be revoked

h is there entered in full, be administered (Mass. Records, Vol. orm of the oath revoked, I take to be that entered among the ords, in the same volume, page 353. This form, I presume, England before the Winthrop emigration, as among these for the Governor and another for the Governor in New Engme entries are in the handwriting of Secretary Burgis, who une, 1642, the Massachusetts General Court ordered the Capital Laws to be protected. (Mass. Records, Vol. II. p. 22.) In Major John Child's "New-England" fonas cast up at London," published in 1647, the author reprints "The Capital Laws of the Massachusetts Bay with the Free-man's Oath as they are printed by themselves." The Capital Laws are headed, "By the Court; In the Years 1641, 1642, Capital Laws established within the Jurisdiction of Massachusetts"; and are attested by "Incre. Nowel, Secret." The reprint was, no doubt, from the edition of 1642. The Capital Laws printed in Major Child's book contain fifteen laws, whereas there are only twelve in the Body of Liberties. (See Colonial Laws of Massachusetts, 1660, edited by William H. Whitmore, page 55.) The three additional laws were enacted at the June session, 1642. (Mass. Records, Vol. II. p. 21.) They are numbered 10, 11 and 12 in the reprint by Child.

The compilers of the Catalogue of Ante Revolutionary Publications in the United States, printed in the second (1874) edition of Isaiah Thomas's History of Printing, enter the title of the Capital Laws printed by the Colony in 1642, as "The Capital Laws of the Massachusetts Bay with the Freeman's Oath." I have never heard of a copy of the 1642 edition of the Capital Laws being extant, and do not know whence the compilers of the above catalogue obtained their title; but as the same words, and in the same order, are found in the preface to "New-England's Jonas," it is not unlikely that this was the source. I do not think that Major Child meant it to be understood that his reprint was from one publication, and I have strong doubts as to the Freeman's Oath having been printed with the Capital Laws in 1642, though it follows them in Child's reprint. The order of the General Court does not provide that the Oath be appended, and the attestation of Secretary Nowell, in the reprint, is only to the Laws. I inthe attestation of Secretary Nowen, in the reprinted two different publications, and cline to the opinion that Major Child reprinted two different publications, and cline to the opinion that Major Child reprinted two different publications, and cline to the opinion that Major Child reprinted two different publications, and form of the Oath in the reprint is the same as that entered, May 14, 1634, on the Colony records; the only variation, except in the spelling, being that the word "Commonweale" in the record, appears as "Commonwealth" in the reprint. JOHN WARD DEAN.

COTTON AND ELLIS.—The following epitaphs in the Claremont (N. H.) Burying Ground were copied by me, on July 21, 1890. Mr. Cotton was born at Newton on January 24, 1738, and a graduate of Harvard College in the Class of 1759; and Judge Ellis was a graduate in the Class of 1793. Mrs. Nancy Ellis, the widow, afterward married Amos Lawrence, of Boston, where she died on November 27, 1866. She was a daughter of Robert and Mary (McGregore) Means, of Amherst, N. H. 8. A. G.

Bogart Correction.—In the Todd genealogy, published in 1867, I made the mistake in the Haring family (at page 109), of making Margaret Bogart, who married Peter Haring, Dec. 4, 1687, a descendant of Jeronomis Trico. She was the daughter of Jan Lowens Bogaert, a branch of the same family with Tunis Guisbert Bogaert, mentioned by me, who was also one of Jan's executors. Jan, commonly called Jan Louwe, son of Louens Cornelisen Bogaert, of Schoenderwoert, Holland, and Cornelia Everts, lived in Leerdam, came to America from Amsterdam in 1663, settled in Bedford, now part of the city of Brooklyn, Long Island. He became a patentee of Harlem, now a part of New York city, in 1672, was proprietor of the Montayne farm, magistrate 1675–6, joined the church with his wife Cornelia, Nov. 30, 1676, sold two farms there, and removed to New York, 1707, where he united with the church, May 27, 1707. He owned Benson's mill in Harlem, and the Rutger's farm in the city. The seventh child of Jan was Greetje, who was married, Dec. 4, 1687—bans published Nov. 9th, in which she is called of Bedford, Tappan and Harlem—to Peter Jansen Haring, born Aug. 13, 1664, baptized Dec. 18, 1672, was a representative in the Colonial Assembly, and died after 1726.

Claas, a brother of Greetje, and son of Jan, born 1668, married for his second wife, Feb. 23, 1707, Margaret, daughter of Jan Couselyea and widow of John Van Tilburg. Claas and Margaret Bogaert had Elizabeth, sixth child, baptized Sept. 19, 1714; married Sept. 14, 1732, Elbert Haring (as appears on page 110 of same); he was assistant alderman 1754-58; wrote his name Haering. It has since become Herring very generally. Elbert was born March 30, and baptized

March 31, 1706.

Abraham Haring, born April 9th, baptized April 11, 1704, brother of Elbert, and son of Peter and Margaret Bogart Harring, married Martyntje, daughter of John Bogart (vide p. 109 same) about 1725. He died April 11, 1771; she died July 23, 1783. Abraham and Martyntje had a large family, of whom Jan or John Haring, born Sept. 28, baptized Sept. 30, 1739, at Tappan Church, Orange Co., N. Y., married Mary, daughter of the above Elbert and Elizabeth Bogart Herring, his consin, March 29, 1774. He was county judge. In August, 1774, was elected delegate to Congress, and took his seat at Carpenter's Hall, Philadelphia, September 26. In 1775 and 1776 member and president pro tem New York Congress. Again, 1785-7, member of the National Congress. He was also Judge of Orange County ten years; Member legislature in 1806; State Senator 1781 and '90; Regent of the University of New York; Trustee of Kings (now Columbia) College and Queens (now Rutgers) College. In 1788 was member of the Constitutional Convention, and voted against the Federal Constitution.

Margaret Herring, daughter of Elbert and Elizabeth Bozart above, married Cornelius Roosevelt (page 116, id.), brother of James or Jacobus Roosevelt (page 116), who married Anna Bogart, son of John, brother of Elizabeth Bogart

Herring.

John Bogaert also married into the Herring family; his wife was Marrytje, and their children were baptized at Tappan and Hackensack. So much for corrections relating to Bogarts. I have many additions in each of the families treated of, which I may print in the future.

Notes From Family Bibles. (Communicated by Mr. F. W. Clarke, United States National Museum, Washington, D. C.)

1. Wigglesworth.—Col. Edward Wigglesworth, son of Samuel, grandson of Michael, born 1742, died 1826. In a French bible, inscribed on the fly leaf "E. Wigglesworth, son livre," are the following entries of birth of children:

Sarah, b. Dec. 18, 1770. Henry, Feb. 5, 1779. Edward, July 30, 1772. Katharine, Sept 5, 1780. Michael, Sept. 13, 1774. John F., March, 1782. William, May 4, 1776.

Colonel Wigglesworth married first, Bridget Cogswell, and an error in the Cogswell genealogy states that she died childless. At least the first three of the above children were hers. Michael, who married Charlotte Goldsmith, left a daughter, Sarah, who married the Rev. Samuel Clarke of Princeton and Uxbridge, Mass. His biography is given in the history New Boston, N. H. All of his children, with grand- and great-grandchildren, are living.

WHITMAN.—The following is a copy of a memorandum in the writing of Rev. Laban Ainsworth, once minister of Jaffrey, N. H., and has been furnished for the REGISTER by Hon. Francis J. Parker of Boston, a grandson of Mr. Ainsworth:

Mr J Whitman—Native of Frankfordt Germany joined the Lutheran Church at 18 years. His father to prevent impress into ye armies sent him to America at age of 19. Soon after arrival, at ye beginning of French war a little before Braddock defeat, he joined British during war. He traversed ye wilderness from Virginia to Quebec, was in 8 set Battles & many other brush skirmishes, most of them were bloody. In yo whole term he had seen many die in yo field & by sickness & fatigue but, as he acknowledged, by ye good hand of God he shed [? lost] no drop of blood, suffered by no sickness, was ever able to do his duty & eat his allowance.

He soon found his way to Ashburnham Mass. where he found ye German settlements & in 1764 married Mary Killing, united with ye church there has since lived to provide for a numerous family of children. He has lived in those steady habits which give credibility to yo sincerity of his Xn profession and a hope you he has entered into rest where yo wicked cease from troubling.

Another circumstance may be useful to relate. Mr. W's father at parting with his son gave him a Bible in the German language a testimony to ye faith & piety of ye father and of his regard for his sons eternal interest. And ye farther fact y Mr W. considered it a precious treasure, in all his tedious marches & bloody skirmishes it found a safe place in his pack & no doubt often furnished him refreshment and encouragement in divine promises & may have greatly contributed to his regular life and happy death.

Capt. Aarchabald Greenfield died 2nd Decemb 1815.

Julius Jones married Elizabeth Dickinson. They had a daughter Martha (called Patty) Jones. She married Archibald Greenfield, and had a daughter Martha Jones Greenfield. She married Pascal Loomis (son of Chauncey Loomis and Elizabeth Hayden).

Archibald Greenfield was a sea captain, and also kept a store in the old house "up neck" in Hartford. He is described as stout, with light complexion and light brown hair, and blue eyes. He was a very observing man and had a good deal of pride. He owned quite a large lot of land, and must have been very well off for those days. On his voyages he went to the Indies; rum, molasses and cocoanuts being among his cargo. One time he was gone seven years, and no one expected him back again except his wife, who was sure he would come, and come he he finally did. This was probably the time when taken by the pirates he put his money in an old tin pail, battered it up and put it carelessly on deck. As the pirates walked along the deck one would give it a kick out of the way and then another, but no one suspected what was in it, and he saved his money. He died suddenly just after getting up from the breakfast table one morning.

Patty Jones, Archibald Greenfield's 2d wife, had dark hair, beautiful dark eyes, and dark but perfectly clear complexion. She is said never to have uttered a scolding or impatient word, although she was an invalid for a long time.

Capt. Greenfield had a brother James, who lived in New York city, and was very wealthy.

I wish to get further information concerning Archibald G., his wife and their A. H. LOOMIS. ancestors.

ISAAC MORRILL.-" Freeman of Roxbury, Mass., March 5, 1633," "Member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company in 1638," at his death left two forges, which, according to Francis S. Drake in his "History of Roxbury," belonged in 1720 to Isaac Morrill's great-grandson, Samuel Stevens of Roxbury, the grandfather of Gen. Joseph Warren of Revolutionary fame. Wanted: the names of the ancestors of Gen. Warren in this line back to Isaac Morrill. Salmon Falls, N. H. S. H. NORCROSS.

Greene.—I write to ask if any reader of the Register can tell the parentage or family of William and Jonathan Green of the Falmouth Co., raised for the army and on duty to guard the captured officers and men of Burgoyne's army in fall of 1777. The former shot Sir Richard Brown, a distinguished officer under Burgoyne. Jonathan was present at the killing. William Green was tried by court martial and acquitted, it appearing on the trial that Sir Richard had given trouble before, was warned and threatened if he did not stop, but attempted to drive away.

Were William and Jonathan of Falmouth? Were they related to Isaac, formerly of Barnstable, or to James of Charlestown, freeman 1647, or to William who married Desire Bacon, Barnstable? When, where and of what parentage was the last William Green born?

RICHARD H. GREENE.

Henley.—Information is wanted of any or all the descendants of Capt. Samuel Henley and his second wife Catherine Russell. Information is also wanted of the descendants of Sarah Henley, who married William Bradford, April 26, 1784. She was a daughter of said Samuel Henley, by his first wife Elizabeth Cheever. Mr. and Mrs. Bradford were residents of Charlestown neck, near Boston, until 1795.

Capt. Samuel Henley was town treasurer of Charlestown. He was the son of Samuel Henley of Charlestown. I wish to learn the names of the paternal and maternal ancestors of the above named Samuel Henley, and the full name of his emigrant ancestors, from what port in England he sailed, and at what port he landed. Was he accompanied by any kinsman bearing the name of Henley? To what English family of Henley did he belong? Please address,

Mrs. Charles Fairfax Henley.

Kidder, Jan. 1, 1767." Kidder, Jan. 1, 1767."

In Bond's Watertown, p. 724 (foot of page), it says, "daughter of Samuel Kidder." Can any one tell me who is this Samuel father of Mary? or what her mother's name was. Some persons think she was dau. of Sanuel and Mary (Tompson) Kidder, but this does not seem possible, as this Samuel had a dau. Mary by 2d wife, b. April 28, 1774, who m. — Locke and lived in Maine. Can any one tell me when she m. — Locke and what was his christian name.

REPLIES.

McKinstrey Corps (Register, ante, p. 90).—The party here alluded to was doubtless John McKinstrey (or McKinster), a native of Londonderry, N. H., whose wife, Elizabeth Knox, was of Rumford, the old name of Concord, in that State. An imperfect account of him is given in the Register, Vol. xiii. p. 42. He appears to have been located, as early as 1770, in Hillsdale township, Columbia Co., N. Y., and on the commencement of hostilities with Great Britain, having had some experience in the French and Indian war, he, with his brother Thomas as first Lieutenant, raised a company from Nobletown and Sharon, probably the only body of men which marched from New York Colony after the Lexington alarm. On the army-lists his name is given as of Nobletown, though he has been called occasionally of Spencer; the first being a small tract in the south, and the latter in the north of Hillsdale township. Joined, by order of the Mass. Prov. Cong., June 25, 1775, to the regiment of Col. John Patterson, raised principally from neighboring districts in the Bay State, the company continued a part of that regiment till the close of 1776. Massachusetts, however, deciding to exclude from her forces all men not actually residing within her State limits, the two McKinstreys, thrown out of service, were recommended for military preferment within their adoptive State by the Hon. Robert Yates, in a letter from Claverack, N. Y., Dec. 20, 1776, to Robert Harper, Esq., one of the committee at Fishkill for arranging the continental battalions to be raised in the State of New York. Yates, who was chairman of the committee for coöperating with Gen. Schuyler, says: "I have understood they behaved (particularly at the Cedars, where the Captain was wounded) with distinguished bravery." But I fail to learn that either of the McKintreys served again in the regular army after 1776. Released from captivity at the Cedars, by the cartel of May 27th, between Arnold and Capt. Forster, Captain John proceeded homeward. He was Major, 1778-9, in 9th regiment, or 2d

HISTORICAL INTELLIGENCE.

Waters's English Genealogical Researches.—The New-England Historic Genealogical Society, through its Committee on English Research, has issued a circular soliciting subscriptions to enable Mr. Waters to continue his English Researches, the result to be printed in the Register, It is hoped that a much larger instalment can be printed in each number. The circular will be printed in full on the cover of this number of the Register. Subscriptions for considerably over half the amount asked for have been obtained. We hope that our friends who have not contributed will respond promptly and liberally, so that the Society's plan may be carried out.

THE PENNSYLVANIA SOCIETY OF THE SONS OF THE REVOLUTION, now numbering three hundred and sixty members of the most noted names of the last century, celebrated the anniversary of the battle of Lexington, on April the 19th, in the historic Old Christ Church in Philadelphia, an edifice connected with memories of Washington, Franklin, Hopkinson, Bishop White, Robert Morris, and many of the generals of the army and members of the Congress of 1776, who either held pews or frequently attended services within its walls. This second annual commemoration by the Society was a special service held at four o'clock in the afternoon.

The 150 members present assembled at the Penn Club, and marched in procession to the church, carrying the new standard, the first time it has been brought before the public, though it was unfolded at the meeting of the General Society held in the Council Chamber of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, on the afternoon of April 4th, and at the reception in the evening to Hon. John Lee Carroll, the General President, at the Stratford. This beautiful flag was designed by Mr. George Cuthbert Gillespie of Philadelphia, a member of the Pennsylvania Society. Having been adopted by the General Society it is now official and will be used by all the State societies. It is of rich silk, six feet ten inches in length by four in width, and similar in design to the French tricolor, excepting that the three perpendicular sections are buff, blue and buff. In the centre is a representation of the medallion decoration of the Society, the continental soldiers of 1775 surrounded with the thirteen stars, surmounted by the eagle.

Representatives of the recently organized Society of Colonial Dames were

The following clergymen conducted the service: the Rev. George Woolsey Hodge, the chaplain; assisted by the Rev. Brockholst Morgan, chaplain of the New York Society; the Rev. Alfred Langdon Elwyn; Rev. Benjamin Johnson Douglass; and the Rev. George Livingston Bishop; all members of the Society

The galleries, chancel, pulpit, and columns of the old church were decorated with the national colors, and draped with flags in the most tasteful manner. The presence of a great congregation, and the warmth and feeling manifested in singing the patriotic hymns, with the eloquent sermon by a noted divine of the Episcopal church, the Rev. S. D. McConnell of St. Stephen's, made this an impressive occasion. The sermon, which we believe is to be printed, was from the text 1st Epistle of Peter, 2d chapter, 16th and 17th verses: "As free, and not using your liberty for a cloak of maliciousness, but as the servants of God. Honour all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honour the King."

The committee of arrangement was composed of the following members of the Society: George Cuthbert Gillespie, Chairman; William John Potts, George Steptoe Washington, William Wayne, Jr., Dr. Thomas Hewson Bradford, Caldwell K. Biddle, A. Nelson Lewis, William Macpherson Hornor, William Henry Ashhurst, and Hobart Miller.

RESTORATION OF FRAMPTON CHURCH, LINCOLNSHIRE.—The fine old parish church of Frampton, about two miles from Boston, Lincolnshire, is now being restored, and to carry out the proposed plans more money is needed. Many of the early New England settlers were from Lincolnshire, and those whose ancestors came from the vicinity of Frampton, and others who are interested, are invited to contribute. The Rev. John Cotton, teacher of the first church in Boston, Mass., before his emigration was vicar of Boston in Lincolnshire; but though no connection has been traced between him and the Lincolnshire Cottons, to whom the church at Frampton contains a memorial, many of his descendants will, no doubt, feel willing to contribute to the restoration. Subscriptions may be sent to Edward Deacon, Esq., Bridgeport, Ct., or Col. Charles T. J. Moore, C.B., F.S.A., Frampton Hall, Boston, Eng., of whom further particulars may be obtained.

Suffolk Manorial Families.—Joseph James Muskett, Esq., of London, has issued a prospectus of a work to be entitled: "Suffolk Manorial Families, being the County Visitations and other ancient Pedigrees, edited with extensive additions." Mr. Muskett says: "As Suffolk has no County History, it is most desirable that the genealogies of its leading families should be brought together in a standard work of authority and research. This is now, after long years of systematic study, offered to subscribers. The descents, founded upon Wills, Inquisitions post-mortem, Deeds, Parish Registers, and other ancient records will be brought down, when possible, to the present time. Numerous pedigrees, not contained in the Herald's MSS., will be introduced from the collections of Blois, Jermyn and Davy; together with the Anglo-American genealogies of Matthias Candler who lived in the days of the Pilgrim Fathers. These last will be given in full. In the case of family migration excerpts from other County Visitations will be added. The work, demy quarto, with Index, is now in course of preparation for issue in Parts of forty pages each, price five shillings; and the editor trusts that he will receive such support as will enable him to carry it to a successful issue. The representatives of Suffolk families of position or repute are courteously invited to cooperate in the publication of this book. is the editor's desire to make it, so far as possible, an exhaustive resume of the biography and genealogy of the shire. He asks the assistance of those who possess authentic proofs of their ancestry; or are willing to search for such evidences, if at present unknown." Mr. Muskett is a corresponding member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, and has been a contributor to the Register, and from what we know of his ability and attainments we can assure our readers that his work will be thoroughly done.

Subscriptions should be addressed to Joseph J. Muskett, care of J. M. Yetts, Esq., 56 Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, England. The work will be completed in about twelve parts. To save time and expense in collecting small sums, subscribers are requested to send with their subscriptions, in advance, a draft or postal order for £1.

MR. A. GIBBONS, F.S.A., 4 Minster Yard, Lincoln, England, who is now engaged in indexing the York Wills for the Yorkshire Archæological Association, will supply Verbatim Transcripts, or Translations, of these or any other English wills, at 1s. per folio of 90 words (or by arrangement). Genealogical Abstracts at a proportionate rate.

GENEALOGIES IN PREPARATION.—Persons of the several names are advised to furnish the compilers of these genealogies with records of their own families and other information which they think may be useful. We would suggest that all facts of interest illustrating family history or character be communicated, especially service under the U.S. government, the holding of other offices, graduation from college or professional schools, occupation, with places and dates of births, marriages, residence and death. When there are more than one christian name they should all be given in full if possible. No initials should be used when the full names are known.

Draper.—Mr. T. Waln-Morgan Draper of Norfolk, Va., is preparing for publication a genealogy of the Draper family descended from William Draper, an early settler of Roxbury, Mass. He has the papers of the late Abijah W. Draper, M.D., of West Roxbury, who was for many years engaged in collecting materials relating to the Drapers. Descendants and others are requested to send in their records.

Williams .- Hon. Josiah H. Drummond, of Portland, Maine, is collecting material for a genealogy of the first five generations of the descendants of Richard Williams, an early settler of Taunton, Mass. He has made a large collection of names, and hopes to complete his work at an early day. He has not undertaken to bring the genealogy down to the present time. The work will, however, contain a record of five generations, both in the male and female lines. Those who have information that will assist Mr. Drummond in his undertaking are recommended to send it to him at once.

Bodge, of East Boston, spoke in high terms of the character of Mr. Safford, of his services to the Society and the public, and the high esteem in which he was held.

The librarian's report was read by Mr. G. Arthur Hilton, the recording secretary.

OLD COLONY HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Addresses were made by President Emery, Rev. William J. Potter and Rev. G. F. Flanders. A recess was then taken until 7.30 o'clock, during which time supper was served and an informal reception was held.

Taunton, Massachusetts, Monday, July 20, 1891. - A quarterly meeting was held this evening, the president, Rev. S. Hopkins Emery, D.D., in the chair.

The president in his address referred particularly to two things worthy of attention. First, the need of watchfulness that the tablets erected to mark places of historic interest in various parts of the city at the time of the quarter millenary celebration, be preserved. Second, the importance of properly commemorating the centenary of the founding of the Bristol Academy next year. Reference was made to the Field Day meeting of the Society on the 16th of May last at New Bedford.

Hon. Elijah A. Morse read a paper on "Life in Washington."

Capt. John Williams Dean Hall, the librarian, reported valuable additions to the library and cabinet during the last quarter.

VIRGINIA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Richmond, Saturday, July 11, 1891.—A meeting of the executive committee was held this evening in the rooms of the Society, Westmoreland Club House, the president, William Wirt Henry, Esq., in the chair.

Lyon Gardiner Tyler, A.M., chairman of a committee appointed at a previous meeting, reported a plan for an annual meeting in December next, at which short papers on historical subjects shall be read.

The Richmond Dispatch says: "The past of Virginia is rich in material incident and directive example in the making of our nation, and it is to be hoped that the effort will only enlist the cooperation of dutiful Virginians, scholars, and students, whose contributions will enlist a wider interest in the mission of the noble old Society, and greatly enhance its usefulness."

It was voted to adopt the plan, and Mr. Tyler and the secretary, Mr. Robert

A. Brock, were appointed a committee to carry it into effect.

Robert A. Brock, F.R.H.S., the secretary and librarian of the Virginia Historical Society, has held these offices we think for about sixteen years, having succeeded the lamented Col. Thomas Hicks Wynne. Since he entered upon his duties a new series of the Collections of the Virginia Historical Society has been commenced under his editorship, and ten volumes of sterling worth have been issued. These volumes show the learning and ability of Mr. Brock as editor of such books, there being no one, whom we know of, so familiar as he with the general, local and family history of his native state. The books do honor to the state as well as the society. It is hoped that those who feel a just pride in the history of the Old Dominion, and who have the means at their command, will contribute liberally to sustain the publications of the society, and the other important historical work of Mr. Brock. There is great want of a fund sufficient to place the work on a permanent foundation.

SOUTH CAROLINA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

WE learn with sincere gratification that efforts are being made to extend and enlarge the work of the South Carolina Historical Society, by the establishment of branch societies in the several counties

The present Society was founded in 1855, in the city of Charleston, and was the outgrowth of an historical committee of the Charleston Library Society, which, in the previous twenty years, had done excellent work in securing MS. letters of Washington, Rutledge, Moultrie, Marion, Sumpter, the Pinckneys, and other notable men, eminent in the revolutionary days and early state-hood of South Carolina. The sessions of the Society were held at the Charleston Library, and, by the devotion of its secretary, Prof. F. A. Porcher, of the Charleston College, three valuable volumes of Collections were polybered by were interrupted by were.

Charleston College, three valuable volumes of Collections were published, before their labors were interrupted by war. At the termination of hostilities, the Society resumed its activity, and published another volume of collections.

The achievements of the Society have been supplemented by the zealous activity and industry of Hon. William Ashmead Courtenay, Mayor of Charleston, 1880–87, who discovered in private collections, in the archives of the British and the United States governments, and in libraries, historical letters, documents, maps and pamphlets of great value, which he reprinted as appendices to the several volumes of the Year Book of Charleston, during his Mayoralty. The production of these remarkable papers, many of them utterly maknown to historians, placed on permanent and accessible record the sources unknown to historians, placed on permanent and accessible record the sources of the various peoples which have developed the civilization and made the history of one of the most conspicuous and distinguished communities in American

It now remains for the Society to secure for posterity the abundant historical matter of more recent events, destined to occupy eminent position in the regard and estimation of generations to come. To this end, the establishment of county branches would seem to be judicious, as likely to be productive of the best results, in gathering from private sources, letters, journals, relies and mementoes, illustrative of public events. As the custodian of such matter, now exposed to "the devouring tooth of time," and in its secure preservation, these branch societies can perform most important service, in which we hope the genealogy and individual personality of citizens will have prominent and early consideration. NECROLOGY OF THE NEW-ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY.

Prepared by Hamilton Andrews Hill, A.M., Historiographer of the Society.

The Historiographer would inform the Society, that the sketches prepared for the Register are necessarily brief in consequence of the limited space which can be appropriated. All the facts, however, which can be gathered are retained in the Archives of the Society, and will aid in more extended memoirs for which the "Towne Memorial Fund," the gift of the late William B. Towne, is provided. Four volumes, printed at the charge of this fund, entitled "Memorial Biographies," edited by the Committee on Memorials, have been issued. They contain memoirs of all the members who have died from the organization of the society to the year 1862. A fifth volume is ready for the press.

The Hon, William Sewall Gardner, A.M., was born in Hallowell, Maine, October 1, 1828. He was a son of Robert and Susan (Sewall) Gardner. His mother was a daughter of General Henry Sewall, of Augusta, who, through Henry, of York, Nicholas, of York, and John, of Newbury, was descended from Henry, the common ancestor of the Sewalls of New Eugland, and, himself, the son of Henry, mayor of Coventry, England, 1589 and 1606. John was born in England, October 10, 1654, and was the elder brother of Samuel, the diarist.

Mr. Gardner graduated at Bowdoin College in 1850, with Charles C. Everett, William P. Frye, Oliver O. Howard and other distinguished men as classmates. On leaving college, he studied law with the Hon. Nathan Crosby, of Lowell, and in due time was admitted to the Middlesex bar. He opened an office with Theodore H. Sweetser first in Lowell, and afterward in Boston, and the partnership continued until 1875, when he was appointed judge of the Superior Court by Governor Gaston. In 1885, on his birthday, October 1, Judge Gardner was promoted by Governor Robinson to the bench of the Supreme Court. He held this position until the autumn of 1887, when failing health compelled him to resign. Governor Ames, in accepting his resignation, wrote a cordial letter, conveying to him, in behalf of the people of the Commonwealth, their sympathy on account of his illness, and their regret that he felt it necessary to relinquish a position on the bench whose duties, during twelve years, he had so faithfully, ably and honorably discharged.

Judge Gardner's political associations, previously to his elevation to the bench, were with the Democratic party, but he had never engaged very actively in politics, devoting his time to the duties of his profession, and seeking diversion and rest in literary studies and pursuits. He attained high position in the Masonic order, and published valuable papers in connection with it. He became a member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society August 7, 1867. He was a devout member of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and was one of the standing committee of the diocese of Massachusetts. He married, first, in 1860, Mary Thornton Davis, widow of Dr. Charles A. Davis, and had by her one child, a daughter; secondly, in 1877, Sarah M. Davis, daughter of the Hon. Isaac Davis, of Worcester. He died April 4, 1888.

Isaac Davis, of Worcester. He died April 4, 1888.

EDWARD ISAIAH THOMAS, Esq., was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, November 19, 1833. His father, grandfather and great-grandfather bore the name of Isaiah. The last-named was the patriot-publisher of Boston, afterward of Worcester, who printed a folio edition of the Bible in 1791, and brought out a History of Printing in America in 1810. He was founder and first president of the American Antiquarian Society. Isaiah's grandfather married a daughter of the Rev. George Burroughs, who was hung for witchcraft in Salem in 1692. The only evidence of his guilt, as we are told, consisted in the fact that though of rather small stature and frame, he had remarkable physical strength.

Edward I. Thomas was educated in Ohio. He came to Boston in 1854, and entered the employ of Butler, Keith and Hill, dealers in hardware at No. 118 State Street. The firm afterward removed to No. 120 Milk Street, and its name was changed to Butler, Sise and Company. Mr. Thomas remained with it as long as it continued in business; and later and until his death, he occupied an office with Mr. Peter Butler, the senior partner. His department was that of accounts and finance, and in it he was an expert. He was remarkable for his industry, clearness and accuracy. His integrity also was unimpeachable, and, during the later years of his life, he was entrusted with large responsibilities of a fiduciary character. Mr. Butler, who had been intimately associated with him for thirty-six years, thus wrote at the time of his death: "Mr. Thomas always had my highest esteem and confidence; he was a man of integrity and reliability, besides possessing many other virtues."

Mr. Thomas took up his residence in Brookline in 1862, and from that time forward was interested and active in the management of town affairs. a member of the House of Representatives five years, from 1877 to 1881, and of the Senate in 1882 and 1883. During most of this period, he was chairman of the Committee on Banks and Banking, and, in 1881, a member of the Committee on the Revision of the Statutes. He was a member of the American Antiquarian Society, and of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, joining the latter June 6, 1888.

When Mr. Thomas came to Boston, he united with the Mt. Vernon Church, of which the Rev. Edward N. Kirk was the pastor. On his removal to Brook-line, he joined the Harvard Congregational Church, in which he served as deacon from June 25, 1869, until his death. He was broad and generous in his sympathies, and gave much time and strength to philanthropic work. He was the means of raising a considerable sum of money to sustain a mission among the Metlakahtla Indians in the far Northwest; and, during the last few years of his life, he interested himself greatly in the Italian population in the vicinity of Boston, with whose condition and necessities he made himself acquainted while the new boulevard through Brookline was in course of construction. His last thoughts were given to these and other beneficiaries, in whose behalf he had labored so long as his strength would allow. Worn down by self-denying labors for others, his constitution soon yielded under an attack of peritonitis; and, after two or three days of illness, which confined him at home, he died December 26, 1890, lamented by all who had been associated with him, and especially by the poor to whom he had been a true helper and a warmhearted friend.

Mr. Thomas left a wife and three daughters; two of the latter are married,—

Mrs. Livingston Cushing and Mrs. Samuel C. Bennett.

ALBERT LORENZO EASTMAN, son of Tappan and Susannah (Boynton) Eastman, was born in Hampstead, N. H., October 17, 1815. He died in the same house seventy-five years later. He received his early education in Newburyport and at the old Haverhill Academy. He began his business career with Jacob Howe, of Haverhill, and was afterward in Boston, Louisville and Philadelphia. He finally settled in New York, and established the firm of Eastman, Sheldon & Townsend, importers of ribbons and fancy goods. Mr. Sheldon was lost at sea, on a return voyage from Europe, and the firm took the name of Eastman, Bigelow & Dayton; it was dissolved four or five years ago, and was succeeded by Burton, Price & Co. Mr. Eastman was elected a resident member of the

New-England Historic Genealogical Society, June 4, 1884.

Mr. Eastman always retained his citizenship in his native town, and his interest in its prosperity. He represented it in the Legislature of New Hampshire in 1876, 1877 and 1881. He was a presidential elector on the Garfield and Arthur ticket, and served on Governor Cheney's staff. He was a trustee of the stead High School, and a member of St. Mark's Lodge of Masons of Derry. He gave liberally to benevolent objects, and was one of the most generous members of the Congregational Church in his town; he gave it a new set of pulpit furniture while on his death-bed, and its minister, the Rev. Albert Watson, always found in him a sympathizing friend and a wise counsellor. He was a great sufferer for several years; but through it all he was "very patient and cheerful, and, as long as he had the power to speak, was thoughtful for others, and interested in all about him." He died January 12, 1891, mourned by the town as one of members. He Irving.

best citizens, and by the church as one of its most honored a widow, Mary (Kent). Her first husband was John D.

Thomas Spooner was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, January 17, 1817. He was the eldest child of Reed and Abigail (Lewis) Spooner, and was descended from William Spooner, of Plymouth, Mass., 1637, who removed to Dartmouth between 1658 and 1662. He was brought up to business, and was engaged in that vocation until his election, in the autumn of 1857, as Clerk of the Courts of Hamilton County, Ohio. At the close of his term of office, he was admitted by the District Court as attorney and counsellor at law and solicitor in chancery. In 1861, he was appointed by President Lincoln first collector and organizer of the office of internal revenue for Cincinnati. We are told that he discharged the duties of this and other public positions with honor to himself and credit to the service. He had been a member of the Chicago Convention which first nominated Mr. Lincoln for the presidency.

In 1879, Mr. Spooner retired from business, and, with his family, removed to the suburb of Glendale. He was elected mayor of the village, and filling the office with rare efficiency and fidelity, he was re-elected to a second term, giving to the community an administration of its affairs "distinguished for devotion, ability and usefulness to a degree seldom known in such an office." "He was possessed of fine ability, integrity and strong force of character." He was one of the most valuable citizens of Hamilton County, where he passed the whole of his life, excepting one year spent in California. He was active and prominent in the order of Odd Fellows. He was chosen a corresponding member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, August 7, 1861.

Mr. Spooner was married three times: first, to Sarah L., daughter of the Rev. Zenas L. and Sally (Fisk) Leonard, of Sturbridge, Mass.; secondly, to Frances Morin, a sister of his first wife; third, to Sarah Abby, daughter of the Rev. Francis W. and Mary A. H. (Leonard) Emmons, of Sturbridge. The third wife survives, with ten children, the offspring of the three marriages. Mr. Spooner died at Glendale, March 10, 1890.

HON. DAVID LOWRY SWAIN, LL.D., corresponding member (See REGISTER, vol. 24, pp. 349-53; vol. 26, p. 447). He was elected to membership, July 11, 1860, and died at Chapel Hill, Aug. 27, 1868, and not Sept. 3 as given in the memoir in vol. 24. The following letter from the late Prof. Brewer, the writer of the memoir, explains how the error was made:

Ed. Hist. and Gen. Register:

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. Dec. 13th, 1871.

DEAR SIR,-In a sketch of Gov. David L. Swain, which I communicated to your magazine about a year ago, there is a serious error of date. In two places it is mentioned that his death was on Sept. 3, 1868. It should have been Aug. 27th.

I had written the correct date, but seeing that Appleton's Annual Cyclopædia gave Sept. 3d, I changed my record, after having made inquiry of a member of the family and obtaining the impression that my first information was wrong.

How Appleton's Cyclopædia made the mistake, I can only conjecture. The New York Times in its obituary list of the deceased of 1868, published early in January, 1869, had made the same mistake: but how the Times fell into the error I cannot even conjecture. I have not seen the false date anywhere else. Another mistake due to my inadvertence, is found in the same sketch in naming Gen. Burgoyne, where I should have said "Cornwallis." No good student of history would be misled by this slip for some arms on known the Parameter.

dent of history would be misled by this slip, for every one knows that Burgoyne never marched through the Carolinas. Yours truly, had by his wife Anna, amongst other children, a son William.² Richard¹ Cary died at Bristol 1570, and was buried in the Parish of St. Nicholas.

FISK P. BREWER.

EDWARD MONTAGUE CARY came from a family that has been prominent socially in and around Boston for many generations.

They descend from Richard Cary of Bristol, England, born circa 1520.

William² Cary was born at Bristol 1550; married Alice Goodall. He was Sheriff and Mayor of Bristol. William² Cary and Alice his wife had as their seventh child a son, James, baptized at the Church of St. Nicholas.

James³ Cary was born at Bristol, Eugland, 1600, came to Boston 1639, and died at Charlestown, New England, 1681.

James Cary had by his wife Eleanor Hawkins amongst other children a son Jonathan, born 1646; married Hannah Winsor, and died 1738, leaving a son Samuel⁵ Cary, Esq., was born 1683. His name is to be found in the list of subscribers to Prince's Chronology, 1786. (See REGISTER, vol. vi. p. 191.) He married Mary Foster, and died 1740. His tombstone at Charlestown has upon it his Coat of Arms: Argent, on a bend sable, three roses silver. The crest is: On a wreath argent and sable, a Swan proper.

Samuel⁸ Cary, Esq., and Mary Foster, his wife, left several children, among others Capt. Samuel⁶ Cary, born 1713; married Margaret Graves; and died at Charlestown 1769, leaving their eldest son Samuel,⁷ who was born 1742, married Sarah Gray, and died 1812.

Samuel Cary and Sarah Gray, his wife, had thirteen children. son was George Blankern² Cary, born 1792. He married Helen Maria Paine, a granddaughter of Robert Treat Paine, a signer of the Declaration of Inde-

The second son of George Blankern⁸ and Helen Cary was Edward Montague⁹ Cary, our associate member. He was born in Boston, August 14, 1828, married Alice Hathaway Forbes, daughter of John Murray Forbes of Milton and Sarah Swain Forbes his wife, and died at the Island of Nashon, September 2, 1888, "sine prole." As a boy he had the advantage of the best schools in Boston. I had the pleasure of being his schoolmate at the Academy of the learned and eccentric Greenleaf Ingraham, fifty years ago. "The boy was the father of the man." Young as he was, he was noted for all good qualities; amiable, high toned, courageous, honest, and faithful, he compelled the respect of his schoolmates. He hated meanness and deceit, and denounced them whenever he met

In 1847 he made a voyage to India and China in the ship Tonquin, in order to study the methods of business in those countries. On his return he entered the office of his uncle, Colonel Thomas Graves Cary, where he remained for a number of years, holding an important position of trust during that time, and giving great satisfaction to his employers. In 1855 he went to Europe and passed a year in travel and pleasure, even visiting Sebastopol during the siege of that place. In 1865 he visited the State of Georgia. With two friends he bought a plantation, and lived there during the next five years.

On May 27, 1875, as is stated above, he married Alice Hathaway Forbes, and from that time continued to live at Milton, in a house that had been owned by his father's family for many years, going often in the summer to Nashon, and to

Mr. Cary was elected a resident member of this society May 4, 1864. was much interested in the subject of genealogy, and with the aid of ancient wills and papers made a very complete Genealogical Tree of the family of Cary. He never published the results of his work, although the early part of this article is taken from his labors in that direction. He had a great fondness for country life and farming, especially in the department of the raising of fine cattle. His herd of Guernseys was famous, and showed what he could accomplish in that direction.

In the spring of 1882, Mr. Cary and his wife made the trip to California, and in 1884 and 1885 they enjoyed a delightful visit to Europe.

Says one who knew him most intimately: "He was a truly genial and kindly friend and neighbor, always upright and honest. He succeeded in making every one around him happy, and children delighted in him." Evidently in manhood exactly what he was as a boy.

Many of us remember with keen pleasure, the stately old colonial mansion house, under Powderhorn Hill, with its fine wide hall, and spacious staircase, and its ample rooms filled with beautiful pictures; for when I was familiar with it the admirable collection of Mr. Henry Cary hung upon its walls. This house was ever the abode of the most generous hospitality, and was situated on a beautiful farm of three hundred and sixty-four acres of rich land. It was inherited from Governor Bellingham's family by Margaret Greaves, who married Captain Samuel Cary 1741. He made it his home and that of his descendants to the present time; Miss Anne M. Cary dying there 1882. Though the family of

VOL. XLV. 29* Cary still own the mansion house, the largest part of the farm has passed into the possession of the land company of that name.

By the late Augustus Thorndike Perkins, A.M., of Boston.

Gideon Delaplaine Scull, Esq., a corresponding member, elected April 7, 1875, was born August 13, 1824, at Sculltown, Salem County, New Jersey. He died at Ilkley, Yorkshire, England, April 22, 1889, aged 65 years. His birthplace was a village which bore the name of Sculltown for about sixty years, but for more than twenty years past has been known as Auburn. He was the eldest son of David Scull, who was born at Sculltown, December 8, 1799, and died at Philadelphia, December 24, 1884, by his wife Lydia, daughter of Joshua Lippincott. She was born at Moorestown, N. J., September 16, 1801, and died at Germantown, Pa., August, 1854.

Mr. Scull was educated at Haverford College, Pa., and after leaving that institution in 1842, resided for three or four years in his native village. About 1846 he removed to Philadelphia. In 1847 he made a voyage to Liverpool. On his passage there he was shipwrecked near Cape Sable, Nova Scotia. In 1848 he made another voyage to Europe, and remained abroad nearly a year, visiting England, France, Holland, Belgium, Germany and Switzerland. He arrived in Paris the day before the revolution broke out, and witnessed many of the horrors of those eventful three days. On returning to America, he became a partner with his father in the wool business at Philadelphia. In 1860 he retired from the firm, and again visited Europe. He travelled over the continent and spent one winter in Italy.

On the 7th of April, 1862, he was married at Leipsic, Saxony, to Miss Anna Holder, daughter of the late Thomas Holder, Esq., of Temple Grafton, Warwickshire, Eng. After residing awhile in England, he removed in 1863 to Philadelphia, living at Germantown. He again engaged in business for three years; but in 1866 removed with his family to England. They travelled on the continent for a year or more, spending one winter at Nice, going thence to Italy. On his return to England in the autumn of 1867, he lived awhile at Great Mal-

One of the pleasant traits in Mr. Scull's character, worthy to be remembered by his descendants, was his respect for his aged father. During a residence of above twenty years in England, he visited home every two years.

Mr. Scull's son, Walter Delaplaine Scull, B.A., of London, furnishes Mr. Potts the following account of the later years of his life, after he settled permanently in England:

"Mr. Scull, in 1868, and for some years after, occupied 'the Laurels,' Hounslow Heath, near Richmond. In 1877 he left the Thames valley and went with his family to Rugby, where his children received their education. It was here that he wrote the first of his larger works, the 'Memoir of W. G. Evelyn,' making many journeys about England in search of such records as might bear upon that undertaking or upon those he afterwards accomplished. connection he paid several visits to Wotton House, Dorking, at the invitation of its present owner, W. J. Evelyn, Esq., M.P., and in "The Evelyns in America" has given to American readers a series of views of that charming old manor which had for him such pleasant associations. It was here also that he met Matthew Arnold, Martin F. Tupper, and Thomas Hughes (author of 'Tom Brown's School Days'), the last two of whom he afterwards corresponded with and occasionally visited. He made several visits to Ireland in the company of Mr. Evelyn, but though each time he found much interesting matter for investigation, he never saw his way to finally carrying out anything in that direction, and set to work upon a larger volume, 'the Evelyns in America,' which caused him to receive a great many pleasant letters of acknowledgment from both sides of the Atlantic. In 1881 he left Rugby and resided until 1885, at Oxford, where he passed much time at the Bodleian Library, and came into pleasant contact with the literary circle of the University, in which also he had entered his son as an undergraduate of Lincoln College. His correspondence of this period contains some interesting letters from Sir Joseph Hooker, director of the Royal Gardens at Kew (whose charming garden parties he often attended, both then and afterwards when in London), from James Russell Lowell. Richard H. Dana, Thomas Hughes, and others of mark. Here also he made an interesting collection of letters written by that charming authoress of old-fashioned English country life, Mary Russell Mitford, which testify to the kindliness of her heart as well as to the facility of her style. His health at this period sensibly declined; for several years past he had felt the effects of an illness of 1877, which a severe bruise on the head, received during a rough Atlantic passage some time afterwards, had helped to perpetuate, consequently the circle of his correspondence became diminished, and his time was passed in lighter occupations than formerly. To him this approach of old age did not yet, however, signify abandoment of his favorite pursuit, and though now able to travel but little, he was within easy reach of one of the famous libraries of the Old World, and possessed much stored material, the result of former years' research. His lighter reading also awakened a youthful taste, poetry, and these various circumstances resulted in what many consider the most charming of his works, "Dorothea Scott," notable amongst other things for the beautiful little sonnet which prefaces the quaint story of that unfortunate lady. Though the only sonnet of his extant, it shows the grace and ease which was eminently a characteristic of his prose, and contains that melody which all who have attempted the sonnet will agree is most difficult to infuse. There is among his correspondence a very interesting letter in acknowledgment of this book from W. W. Story, the eminent American sculptor and author resident in Rome, testifying to a very keen appreciation of its qualities. In 1885 he left, with his family, the somewhat enervating climate of Oxford for the fresh and pleasant suburb of Hampstead, where so many of the most eminent London citizens reside. built a pretty villa, and settled down to pass the life that remained in the pleasant leisure of his books, of which he had a large and well-chosen collection. But with advancing years the old ailment revived, and he was attacked by paralysis, which though of a comparatively light nature, took much of his strength. As this affliction is usually accompanied by others, in this case a slight tendency to apoplexy also showed itself, and his medical adviser considering that change of air was absolutely necessary, he went to Yorkshire in company with his son, and at Ilkley, near Leeds, under care of the famous Dr. Scott, he rapidly improved. There is no doubt that this change from the tooexciting atmosphere of the Heath district of Hampstead saved his life for the time being, and everyone who knew him there thought him quite sure of ten more years of existence. But though attended with every care and seeming well, he was always liable to paralytic seizures, and after an especially pleasant and happy evening he retired to what was his last night's rest. When the valet came in with the morning glass of water, he found Mr. Scull had passed away during the night, probably during his sleep, for the face was as that of one asleep, and the bed-clothes were undisturbed, showing death to have been perfectly painless.

"He lies in the pretty cemetery of Ilkley, in the beautiful valley of Wharfedale, whose river glides through the wooded glens of Bolton Abbey, and whence the road passes the ruins of Kirkstall, immortalized by Robert Southey, one of Mr. Scull's favorite poets. No photograph had been taken of Mr. Scull for many years, as he was always averse to sitting for a likeness; but a painting was made after death by his son W. Delaplaine Scull, partly from memory, partly from rough sketches executed during his father's life-time, in which some attempt was made to render the extreme beauty and impressiveness of his face as he lay in his room before burial. Before illness had impaired the use of his hand for such work he had often manifested unusual skill in illumination, and some of his works in possession of the family, and of Mrs. Sharples, a friend of long standing, show that he had the faculty of putting into such work much of that quaint Mediæval delicacy which is now so highly prized by connoisseurs; it is therefore perhaps just what he would best have wished that the last record of his features should be by the sympathetic hand of the painter and not the mechanical lens of the photographer, though for the latter form of art also he had much fondness, and was never weary of collecting representative specimens. It is needless to say that his death has called forth much sympathy for his family from all whose friendship he possessed, and the writer of this hasty and imperfect notice takes this fleeting opportunity to express to all these kindly well-wishers what he most deeply feels, his best and most sincere thanks."

The several books by Mr. Scull, named by his son, in the preceding sketch, have all been noticed in the Register at the time of their publication. Besides these works, a volume which he contributed to the Publications of the Prince Society, is deserving of particular notice. It is entitled "Voyages of Peter Esprit Radisson, being an Account of his Travels and Experiences among the North-American Indians, from 1654 to 1684." Mr. Scull found a portion of Radisson's unpublished manuscripts in the Bodleian Library, and subsequently discovered the remainder in the British Museum. He transcribed them and prefixed a valuable historical introduction, and the work was printed in 1885 by the Prince Society, making a volume of nearly 400 pages. It has been pronounced by a historical scholar of national reputation, one of the most valuable volumes published by that Society. He was also the author of "Genealogical Notes relating to the Family of Scull, compiled by G. D. Scull. Private Impression. 1876." 8vo. pp. 12. This was reprinted from Dr. Howard's Miscellanea Heraldica et Genealogica for January of that year.

A work by him of much research still remains in manuscript in the library of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society. It was compiled at Oxford, in 1882, and is entitled "Sir William Browne, Knight, 1556–1610, and Sir Nathaniel Rich, Knight, 1636. A Chapter of Family History." The work has a particular interest for the descendants of Nathaniel Browne, an early settler of Hartford, Connecticut.

His friend Mr. Potts, of Camden, N. J., one of the compilers of this sketch, thus describes Mr. Scull: "He was a tall handsome man of distinguished appearance, courtly manners, dark eyes and hair, and bearing unmistakable evidence of his Huguenot ancestry, through the Delaplaines, and the DeBellangées. He was an accomplished letter writer as well as author, of wide reading, particularly in genealogical literature, with considerable acquaintance among eminent literary men, both in this country and abroad." He contributed many articles to the Register, which were extensively read and appreciated as valuable contributions to the history of this country. He was also a contributor to the Pennsylvania Magazine of History, and other periodicals. He was a member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, and of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia.

Mr. Scull's wife and two children, Walter Delaplaine Scull and Edith Maria

Lydia Scull, survive him.

The History of the Virginia Federal Convention of 1788, with some account of the Eminent Virginians of that Era, who were members of the Body. By Hugh Blair Grigsry, LL.D. With a Biographical Sketch of the Author, and Illustrative Notes. Edited by R. A. Brock, Corresponding Secretary and Librarian of the Society." Vol. II. Richmond, Virginia: Published by the Society. 1891. 8vo. pp. 411.

This is an interesting work, and a valuable addition to what we have relating to the history of the Virginia Federal Convention of 1788. The first volume, which deals especially with the proceedings of the Convention, was noticed by us in the Register for July, 1890. This volume gives an account of eminent Virginians who, in their day and generation, were distinguised, not so much for their services in the Federal Convention, as for their general ability and influence in conducting the public affairs of their native State. It contains matter of genealogical and historical interest, not easily found elsewhere. It traces the connection and relationship of the old families, with a care and thoroughness that leave no doubt of its correctness, and is written in such a lively and agreeable style, that it is very readable and interesting.

The two volumes contain the history of the Virginia Federal Convention, which was a remarkable body of men. In the other State Conventions that assembled to pass upon the question of the Federal Constitution, its friends and opponents were very unequally matched. But in Virginia, while the people, at large, were two to one against it, the wealth and talent and influence of the State were strongly represented on both sides of the question, and so the debates that took place on the different questions, as they arose, are full of animation and interest. In the Massachusetts Convention, the case was just the reverse. While the popular sentiment here, as in Virginia—though not so decidedly—was opposed to its adoption, nearly all the wealth and education of the State were on the side of the Constitution, and so one-sided was the Convention, in respect of everything but numbers, that there was not a single representative of the popular feeling, of first rate capacity, in that assembly, to give voice and effect to it,—and so the debates are comparatively tame and uninteresting. There was no man in the opposition to test to the utmost the eloquence and powers of debate of such men as King and Ames and Dana and Parsons. It was a case for strategy and not for eloquence. How to control and conciliate Hancock and Adams, and to convert a large minority into a small majority, was the question,—a work which offered little opportunity for the eloquence of Ames or King, but was especially adapted to the genius of Parsons, whose forte was skill and ability in management. It would be interesting to go into this matter at some length, and to show why it was that the character of the Virginia Convention differed so radically from that of Massachusetts, but it is enough at this time to refer briefly to the difference in the political condition of these States at the time the question of the Federal Constitution came up for consideration.

During the revolutionary war, the restraints of law and order were materially relaxed, and when the war was over, and the object of it accomplished, the evils of lawlessness and insubordination were seriously felt in Massachusetts. The people, who had been reduced by the hardships of the war to a condition of extreme poverty,—refusing to pay their debts, and to submit to the authority of law,—undertook to defend themselves by open rebellion, and resort to Stay laws, and other expedients utterly inconsistent with the necessary conditions of order and good government. This state of things produced a sharp division, arraying on one side the popular majority, and on the other the wealth and intelligence of the State, as represented by the friends of law and order. The excesses produced by the spirit of liberty, which naturally followed the conclusion of the war, caused a reaction, which produced a complete separation between the conservative and law-abiding men on the one side, and the lawless

But in Virginia the case was different. It was an agricultural state, and its political system was aristocratic. The evils and dangers which Massachusetts had experienced from the excesses and abuses of the democratic principles were comparatively unknown, and the doctrine of State rights, as opposed to the powers of the general government, was favored, rather than hindered, by the operation of local causes. The policy of the Congress of the Confederation, which was controlled by the northern states, had been in some respects, especially in regard to the navigation of the Mississippi, adverse to the interests of Virginia, and, in the judgment of many of its public men, the advantages of union would be more than offset by the loss of dignity and power which the State would experience. In Massachusetts the fate of the Constitution was doubtful, not because of a division of opinion of its merits, on the part of the wealth and education of its people, but because of a popular majority against it. In Virginia the decision was doubtful, not only by reason of the general opposition on the part of the people at large, but because of a wide difference of opinion in respect to the expediency of its adoption, on the part of its leading men, eminent for intelligence and statesmanship. The character of the two conventions faithfully reflected the political condition of their respective states. In Massachusetts the condition of public affairs was especially unfavorable to the doctrine of State rights and of democratic ideas, and the thinking men were, for the most part, on the other side. In Virginia, the action of the Confederate Congress, and the course of domestic affairs were favorable to the advocacy of State rights, and the friends of the Union and the Constitution were combated on the floor of the Convention by men of great eloquence and patriotism, and of ability and statesmanship, only not equal to their own. For fire and eloquence and patriotism Henry and Mason and Grierson had not their superiors in the State, and

While the debate was pending in Virginia. It was an open question whether or not the requisite number of nine states could be obtained. As it turned, however, New Hampshire had the honor of being the ninth State in its favor, casting an affirmative vote a few days before Virginia made its decision. This fact, however, so slow were the means of communication between the States, was unknown in Virginia, and the friends of the Constitution pressed their case as if union or disunion would be the inevitable result of the success or failure of their efforts. But in this they were mistaken; the union was already safe without them.

It is natural to incline to speculate upon what would have taken place if Virginia had rejected the Constitution. One thing is certain, it would have made Washington ineligible as President, and, by exciting the rivalries of public men, ambitious for the prize, would have seriously increased the difficulties already in the way of a harmonious union. The tradition is, which there is some reason to think is trustworthy, that Hancock, whose weakness was excessive vanity, was induced to believe that, if Virginia should reject the Constitution, which at the time of the Massachusetts Convention was probable, the chances of his being the successful candidate for the presidency were in his favor. This could not have happened, however, without a contest, which would have caused serious trouble and embarrassment. It was well for the country that Virginia stood by the Union. It settled the question of who should be the first president, and prevented a contention which might have led to disastrous results.

The Spanish Conspiracy. A Review of Early Spanish Movements in the Southwest, Containing Proofs of the Intrigues of James Wilkinson and John Brown; of the complicity therewith of Judges Sebastian, Wallace and Innes; the Early Struggle of Kentucky for Autonomy; the Intrigues of Sebastian in 1795-7 and the Legislative Investigation of his Corruption. By Thomas Marshall Green, author of "Historic Families of Kentucky." Cincinnati: Robert Clarke & Co. 1891. 8vo. pp. 406. Cloth. $2.00.

An interesting and instructive work, by a namesake of Hon. Thomas Marshall, of Kentucky, son of the chief justice, in reply and refutation of "The Political Beginnings of Kentucky," by the late Col. John Mason Brown, a grandson of Hon. John Brown, the first senator from Kentucky in the United States Congress. It presents the movements of the early politicians of that State; their pressing eagerness to be free from Virginia and to obtain admittance to the Federal Union; the discontents engendered by the delays encountered; the prompt rebuff of Lord Dorchester's British emissaries: the small encouragement given to the project of Genet, the minister of France: the incautious readiness of listening to the schemes and intrigues of Gen. Wilkinson, now known, by documents in State archives at Madrid, to have been in the pay of the Spanish government; the efforts of the Spanish minister and the governor of Louisiana to detach the entire Mississippi Valley and to attach it, by a favorable treaty, to Spain; with some description of the Indian wars and the sufferings of both races in the struggle for supremacy. These topics, with collateral Issues, are discussed, their history related, and the action of prominent men portrayed with a firm advocacy of the measures, which resulted in the erection of the new commonwealth and the restriction of the Spanish power. The tone is rather controversial, perhaps too much so for assured history; but the importance of the events and the necessity of their rehearsal cannot be gain-

Throughout the narrative, it is very plain that the restless ambition and insatiable greed of Gen. Wilkinson was the occasion of all the trouble. Without him, or such as him, the Spanish overtures would have found no listeners, and the record of many excellent men been untarnished. It is remarkable that even so talented and captivating a man as Wilkinson, who had been a captain in a New Hampshire regiment at the siege of Boston; with Arnold in the expedition to Quebec; a staff officer of Gates, at Saratoga; later a brigadier, secretary to the board of war and clothier general; should have conducted so long and so successful a hopeless dissimulation—regarded at New Orleans as a Spanish subject, pensioned by the government at Madrid, yet elected to office in Kentucky and reinstated in the commission of the Federal army, where he remained till he became commander-in-chief. He had not the sagacity to perceive that the people were not with him; though he might cajole individuals by offers of preferment, no inducement was sufficient to bring the common people to consent to be vassals of a monarchy. It is greatly to the credit of Kentucky, that but one of her citizens, and he not American born, was ever proved to have been corrupted by Wilkinson; though several were seriously compromised and lives of active public usefulness closed by the bare suspicion of his intrigues.

In plentiful foot-notes, the author furnishes much genealogical information and gives the distant reader a clear conception of the relationship and affiliations of the gentlemen, whose careers he discusses, which greatly enhances the value of his relation. In this direction, probably, no one to-day is so competent and

The publishers of the volume have maintained their well deserved reputation among American book makers, by the use of good, well laid paper, a fair, plain imprint, and a neat, substantial binding.

The Church Bells of Suffolk. A Chronicle in Nine Chapters. With a Complete List of the Inscriptions on the Bells, and Historical Notes. By John James Raven, D.D., of Emmanuel College, Cambridge; Vicar of Fressingfield with -Witherdale; and Honorary Canon of Norwich Cathedral; President of the Norwich Diocesan Association of Ringers; Author of "Church Bells of Cambridgeshire," etc. etc. London: Jarrold & Sons, 3 Paternoster Buildings. 1890. Royal Octavo, pp. xvi.+266. Price 20 shillings; half morocco, Roxburgh style, 27s. 6d.

One may well allow the appropriateness of the name "The Ringing Island," as applied to England, when it is realized that within her borders there are said to be fifty peals or chimes of ten bells each, three hundred and sixty of eight each, five hundred of six, and two hundred and fifty of five each, besides the almost innumerable single ones.

"There's not a sound can e'er resound, In which such rapture dwells, As in Britain's native music, Old England's merry bells."

Ancient is her custom of peal ringing. Many and old are the societies of ringers, that called "The Companie of Ringers of Our Blessed Virgin Mary of Lincoln" being formed as early as 1614, for the purpose of change-ringing. Southey, in "The Doctor," tells us that a peal of twelve bells will give 479,901,- 600 changes, and that it would take ninety-one years to ring them.

Still another good reason for this tintinnabulating name, is in the fact that so many have written about these same bells which form so interesting part of her history. The late Rev. Henry T. Ellacombe, Rector of Clyst St. George, Devonshire, wrote several volumes devoted exclusively to bells; among them, were "Bells of the Church," "Church Bells of Devon," "Church Bells of Somerset," "Church Bells of Gloucestershire," &c. Stahlschmidt has written "Church Bells of Kent," and "Surrey Bells and London Founders." There have been works by Tyssen, L'Estrange, Cornwall, Denison, Haweis and many others. In fact a large library might be agained of hell literature.

others. In fact a large library might be gathered of bell literature.

And now we have a new addition from the Rev. John James Raven, D.D., of the Fressingfield Vicarage, Harleston, and Honorary Canon of Norwich Cathedral, entitled "The Church Bells of Suffolk, a Chronicle in Nine Chapters, with a Complete List of the Inscriptions on the Bells, and Historical Notes." He had before this published "Church Bells of Cambridgeshire." This last work is a handsomely printed volume of 266 pages. It is illustrated with many unique and curious emblems, letters, crosses, medallions, founders' marks, shields, and other ornaments. The very great variety of illustrations on the bells here given is most noteworthy. There is a hundred pages of the description and the inscriptions thereon of the eighteen hundred and sixty-four bells in the 557 towns and cities of Suffolk. This must have involved an immense amount of tower-climbing and hard study in deciphering what was on some of the very old bells, and the indistinct inscriptions, very many of which are in Latin. Dr. Raven has had this latest work on English Campanology in hand for forty-two years. It is a subject that has interested him from his boyhood's days. He has done his work with a loving hand, well and thoroughly.

Dr. Raven's work, though specifically of the bells of Suffolk, interweaves a deal of incidental matter pertaining to other parts of England; not only of bells and bell-founders, but of other historic points. He is at present the President of the Norwich Diocesan Society of Change Ringers, and in his remarks on change-ringing he refers to the pleasant fact that "a certain 7.360 of Oxford Treble Bob Major, rung to welcome my bride and myself thirty years ago, when I was Master of Bungay Grammar School, and a member of that Society of Ringers," which occupied four hours and forty minutes.

Of this interesting volume there were issued five hundred copies super royal octavo, and fifty copies imperial quarto, the latter of which were taken within a few days of the issue of the prospectus, by the publishers, Jarrold & Sons, London and Norwich, and are now unobtainable.

Woburn Records of Births, Deaths and Marriages from 1640 to 1873. Part III. Marriages. Alphabetically and Chronologically Arranged. By Edward F. Johnson. Boston: Winship, Daniels & Co., Printers. 1891. 8vo. pp. 338. Persons desiring to secure copies of this book can probably obtain them by writing directly to the compiler, Hon. Edward F. Johnson, Woburn, Mass.

The city of Woburn has now had printed at its expense the entire records of births, marriages and deaths in that place from 1640 to 1873, they being comprised in three octavo volumes. The first volume containing the births, was noticed by us in July, and the second containing the deaths, in October, 1890. The third volume containing marriages, is now before us. Like the preceding volumes this is alphabetically arranged. The compiler has added many foot notes, giving information about persons, families and events named in the record. This must have required a great deal of labor. One of the notes relating to the Bulfinch family contains much new genealogical matter.

Judge Johnson shows that the first volume of Woburn records is wholly in the handwriting of Major William Johnson, the second town clerk, and not, as has been supposed, in that of his father Capt. Edward Johnson, the first clerk. He gives fac-similes of the writing of both. This proves that the first volume of records is a copy and not the original. This was first suggested by Mr. William R. Cutter, the city librarian, in an article in the Woburn Journal, March 8, 1889. The original of the first volume of records, in the handwriting of Capt. Edward Johnson, the author of the "Wonder Working Providence, cannot now be found.

The compiler intends to prepare a continuation of the records from 1873 to 1890, and if the proper authorities sanction it, to have them printed with the successive annual city reports—the births in 1892, the deaths in 1893 and the marriages in 1894; and to recommend that in the decade ending in 1900, and in each succeeding decade, the publication be continued in this form.

The compiler and the city authorities deserve great credit for what they have done to preserve these materials for the history of Woburn. We hope the example will be followed by other cities and towns.

Among the Scotch-Irish; and a Tour in Seven Countries, in Ireland, Wales, England, Scotland, France, Switzerland and Italy; with History of Dinsmoor Family. A Companion Volume to "Rambles in Europe, &c. By Leonard Allison Morrison, A.M., of Windham, N. H. Boston, Mass.: Damrell & Upham. 1891. Pp. 178+48. Cloth, $1.50.

In this rattling, gossipy narrative of a tourist, who combines an antiquarian and genealogical purpose with a curiosity-seeking and enjoying instinct, the native New England stock will find exceedingly interesting descriptions of localities whence their ancestry came. The first hundred pages embrace the British Isles. Mr. Morrison is so unfelgnedly proud of his Scotch-Irish extraction and is so pronounced in rehearsing its achievements that the reader, less fortunate in ancestral lineage, readily forgives the enthusiasm which entertains and instructs; especially as the author has gathered largely in the north of Ireland, where the race feuds of two bitter centuries destroyed so much recorded matter and left public institutions destitute of what other Christian lands carefully guarded. The little volume closes with historical, genealogical fragments relating to the Dinsmoor-Dinsmore family, with McKean and Bell items, chiefly new and till now unattainable in print. These possess positive value and a character worthy of preservation.

History of St. George's Parish, in the County of Spotsylvania, and Diocese of Virginia. By Rev. Philip Slaughter, D.D., late Historiographer of the Diocese. Edited by R. A. Brock, with a biography of the Author, and a continuation, embracing the History of St. George's and Trinity Churches to the present time. Richmond, Va.: J. W. Randolph & English. 1890. Sm. 4to. pp. xix.+78. Price $2 in paper; $3 to $5 bound.

The biographical notice of Dr. Slaughter, by R. A. Brock—the editor of this work—is well-written and is a fitting introduction to this contribution to the history of the Old Dominion. Dr. Slaughter was a member of this Society, and it is evident from reading this monograph of his that he was deeply interested in all historical matters, especially in those pertaining to his native state. That he was a frequent contributor to the stores of antiquarian and historical learning—as well as a diligent student of the same—is evident from a perusal of the long list of titles of the publications from his pen contained in the book before us. Among other writings of his may be noted his monograph entitled, "Historic Churches of Virginia," contributed to the "Centennial History of the Episcopal Churches of the United States," by Rt. Rev. Wm. Stevens Perry, D.D., 1882; also his biography of Rt. Rev. Wm. Meade, D.D., in "Memorial Biographies of Deceased Members of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society," Boston, Vol. IV., 1885; also his histories of Bristol Parish, and of St. Mark's Parish, Culpeper County, Virginia. The vestries of the parishes—or townships, as we should call them—in the early days of the colony, appear to have exercised control in secular as well as in ecclesiastical affairs. The author says: "Among the duties imposed by law in these times upon the Vestry was the superintendence of the processioning of land, and the cultivation of tobacco. The vestry was required to divide the parish into so many precincts as to them shall seem convenient, and to appoint two intelligent, honest freeholders, in each precinct, to see such processioning performed." It may be well to mention here a fact that may not perhaps be generally known, that tobacco was, not only the staple product of the colony, but the medium of currency as well.

I suppose that most of us are inclined to look upon the Free Church movement as of a comparatively recent date, and yet we have, in this history of St. George's Parish, an account of at least one church which was supported by this system one hundred years ago. I quote the following passage from the book before us: "In obedience to instructions, the committee of 'Ways and Means' published in the Virginia Herald an appeal to the friends of the Church—St. George's—of which the following is a copy: 'As nothing can be more instrumental in promoting morality and religion than a constant attendance at church, especially in towns where there are a number of unhappy, idle, and profligate people, who may be influenced by the good example of their neighbors, and thereby be reclaimed from idleness; and as the benevolent inhabitants of this town, and the friends of the Episcopal Church in the vicinity, have hitherto liberally contributed to the support of a worthy and assiduous clergyman, a good clerk and sexton, they are humbly requested to sign notes, payable quarterly, for the ensuing year, which notes are deposited by order of the Vestry in the hands of the church-wardens, ready for their signature. It is hoped that many who have frequented the church this year, and have neither contributed to the repairs of the church nor the support of the minister, will subscribe liberally for the ensuing year.'" As Dr. Slaughter remarks, this "document is curious, as being one of the earliest devices of the voluntary system, after the breaking down of the establishment by the revolution."

There is an interesting appendix to this valuable work, containing an "Account of Governor Spotswood's Expedition to the Mountains," by the Rev. Hugh James, a contemporary historian. The appendix also contains a part of the Spotswood Genealogy in the stirring controversies of the period preceding the Revolution, he was a member of the Congress of 1774 and 1775, and undoubtedly the author of "The Declaration of the Causes of taking up Arms," which was adopted by Congress in July, 1775. A strong advocate of American liberties, he nevertheless opposed as premature the Declaration of Independence, and consequently went into retirement the following year, but soon entered the army and rendered service to the Colonies. In 1779 he was sent by Delaware to Congress, and in 1781 was president of the Supreme Executive Council of that State. The next ear he held a like position in Pennsylvania, and under all circumstances proved himself a strong, able man, but one who made bitter enemies, and was attacked with much virulence. In 1787 he wielded a powerful influence in the convention which framed the Constitution of the United States, and it was on his motion that equality of representation of the states in the Senate was adopted. A strong champion of state sovereignty, possessing full confidence in republican institutions, he labored effectively to lay the foundations of the Union.

He was of Quaker stock, early settled in Virginia, and received a fair education, supplemented by attendance at the Inns of Court in London, where he acquired a thorough knowledge of the Common Law.

It is not practicable to do justice to this volume in a brief notice: it is a valuable work by an able author.

Soldiers in King Philip's War. Containing Lists of the Soldiers of Massachusetts Colony, who Served in the Indian War of 1675-1677. With Sketches of the Principal Officers, and Copies of Ancient Documents and Records, relating to the War. By George M. Bodge. Boston: Printed for the Author, 185 Lexington St., East Boston. 1891. 1 vol. Pp. xxiv.+370. Edition 97 copies. Cloth, $5.00; by mail, $5.16.

Far different from the laudatory orations and praiseful sermons, hitherto sounded on occasions relating to the events or the leaders in this sanguinary struggle, is this scholarly work, which has been performed with a remarkable constancy of diligence and attention. Here is the plain story of the struggle, the invariable success of Indian strategy defiled with deeds of inhuman atrocity, and the Englishman's triumph only through the superiority of his weapons, the scope of his campaigns, and the dogged obstinacy of his fighting quality, when the test came. Out of the cold pages of the Colonial treasurer's account books, Mr. Bodge has evolved the very men who were the actors in these scenes; not simply the commanders, but the very soldiers who did the fighting. He has, in narrative, given the history of each expedition, its inception and its achievement. The facts modify previous reputations, but are convincing in their historical accuracy, and the volume takes its place at once in libraries as the standard work on its subject. Its influence will be to stimulate research in other Colonial

The Scotch-Irish in America. Proceedings and Addresses of the Second Congress at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, May 29 to June 1, 1890. Published by order of the Scotch-Irish Society of America. Cincinnati: Robert Clarke & Co. 8vo. pp. 305. Price $1.50 in cloth, $1.00 in paper, post paid. 1890.

Directly in the line of work of the Society which publishes the REGISTER are the objects of The Scotch-Irish Society of America, whose Proceedings at their Second Congress make the handsome volume before us. The remarkable enthusiam this Society has aroused in practical men of the world proves the recently awakened interest in the study of genealogy to be widespread in America. Not only the genealogist, but every patriotic American, must be encouraged in his view of the nation's future by this new movement to instruct one of the best of our emigrant stocks in the ennobling traditions of their ancestors. "The stern integrity, the persistent purpose, the indomitable courage, the well calculated enterprise, the untiring industry, the defiance of tyranny, the strong religious convictions, and the patriotic devotion which are characteristic qualities of the race," form the subject of the studies of the Scotch-Irish in America.

The volume now issued contains some very scholarly essays on "The Scotch-Irish in New England," "General Sam Houston of Texas," "The Scotch-Irish in Western Pennsylvania," "The Scotch-Irish in Ohio," and "The Scotch-Irish University of the South." "The Prestons of America" is one of those prodigies of genealogical research which can ordinarily be found only in this review; twenty solid pages of names and dates, showing in addition to its other information, more marriages than ordinarily are found in a hundred pages. The number of persons distinguished in national history whose pedigrees, in The number of persons distinguished in national history whose pedigrees, in whole or in part, can be traced to this enterprising race is really surprising, and in view of its excellent quality it is gratifying to find it so prolific. The distinction of a visit to the Congress by the President of the United States and his Cabinet is small compared with the lustre lent to the assemblage by the shades of the soldiers and statesmen who were invoked by the speakers as of the same race with the members of the Association. Hardly a general in our history who does not derive a part of his fighting qualities from the Covenanters. Public functionaries will pay their respectful attention to any gathering of voters, but genealogy is no longer a "fad," when twelve thousand in one city wish to take part in celebrating the triumphs of a race. *

Notes and Additions to the History of Gloucester. Second Series. By John J. With an Appendix containing Indexes to Parts I. and II. Salem Press Publishing and Printing Company. 1891. Royal 8vo. pp. 187. Price $1.50.

In 1860, the late Hon. John J. Babson of Gloucester, Mass., of whom a biographical sketch can be found in the REGISTER, vol. 40, page 415, published a history of that town in a handsome octavo of 610 pages. It was a work of years and conscientious labor, and was received with much favor by historical scholars. In 1876, he published the first part of "Notes and Additions" to his history in a royal octavo of 94 pages. This was a reprint of articles contributed from time to time to the Gloucester Telegraph, commencing in 1872.

We have now, five years after the author's death, the second part, or "Second Series" as it is called, of his "Notes and Additions." This and the preceding part give much information not in the history about the early settlers of Glou-cester and their descendants. The Salem Press Company are able to furnish the two parts bound in one volume for $3.75.

At the time of his death, April, 1886, Mr. Babson was engaged in preparing for the press a revised edition of his history, which would have contained these and other matters collected by him in the quarter of a century that had elapsed since the publication of his book, and was drawing near the conclusion of his work before giving it to the printer. He would have been able to improve his work greatly had he lived, but it is fortunate that he left so large a mass of new materials in a state so fit for publication.

Eastern Worcester: its First Settlers and their Locations. Historical and Geneatogical. In three Chapters. By Caleb A. Wall. Worcester: Published by the Author. 1891. 8vo. pp. 52. Price 50 cents.

Mr. Wall is doing good service to the students of American history by collecting and preserving in print so much of the local history of our state. In 1877 his "Reminiscences of Worcester" appeared and received deserved com-Last year he commenced a series of works on the different sections the city. Of these "North Worcester" was published in 1890, and was noticed by us in April of that year. This year "Eastern Worcester," the work now be-fore us, appears. Mr. Wall's intention is to follow these works with others re-garding the first settlers of the Southern and Western sections, covering also the Central, which latter he did in part in his Reminiscences of Worcester.

"Eastern Worcester" comprises three historical addresses delivered by the author at three different places in the easterly part of Worcester. The first address is on the first grants of lands in Worcester and the settlers along Lake Quinsigamond; the second is on the settlers on the west shore of that lake; and the third address is on the settlers of the Bloomingdale district. These addresses are full of interesting and valuable historical matter relating to the settlements in the eastern part of the city, with genealogies of the settlers.

We hope the author will receive sufficient encouragement to enable him to

Vital Record of Rhode Island, 1636–1850. First Series. Births, Marriages and Deaths. A Family Register for the People. By James N. Arnold, Editor of the Narragansett Historical Register. Vol. I. Kent County. Published under the Auspices of the General Assembly. Providence, R. I.: Narragansett Historical Printing Company. 1891. 4to. about 550 pages. Price §5.

In the Register for July, 1890, we announced this work, on which the author had then been engaged for seventeen years, as being prepared for the press, the State of Rhode Island having made a liberal subscription in aid of the work.

This initial volume contains the statistics of births, marriages and deaths for the towns of Warwick, Coventry and East and West Greenwich, comprising the entire county of Kent. There are indexes of persons and places for each of the four towns. The book is well printed with large type, easily read, and on fine paper.

Mr. Arnold's previous work in this specialty is a guarantee that the book is

The Constitution of the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution, and the Constitution and By-Laves of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York, with the Membership Roll of the New York Society. March 10, 1891. New York: Exchange Printing Company, 47 Broad Street. 1891. 8vo. pp. 143.

A handsomely printed work, whose title completely describes its contents. The membership roll exhibits the qualifications of the several members by virtue of their descent, from ancestry who were engaged in the military, naval or civil service of either of the Colonies, the State of Vermont, or of the Continental Congress, between 19 April, 1775, and 19 April, 1783. This, of itself, is valuable. A few names of commanding officers are misspelled.

Local antiquarian periodicals are springing up in all parts of England, and their success shows that they meet a want. They preserve much of the history, antiquities, biography and genealogy of the county or district to which they are devoted, and they furnish a ready medium of inter-communication for the antiquaries of those localities. We wish them all success.

The Gloucestershire Notes and Queries, the first of the works before us, was established in 1879, by the late Rev. Beaver H. Blacker, whose obituary we give elsewhere. He died Nov. 11, 1890, after the last number of the fourth volume was issued. It is fortunate that so competent a successor in the editorial chair as Mr. Phillimore was found. His qualifications for the place are so well known, that they need not be stated.

The Notes and Queries for Somerset and Dorset has been published three years and a half, the first number having been issued in March, 1888. The editor for Somersetshire, the Rev. Mr. Weaver, is the editor of "Somerset Incumbents," noticed by us in April, 1889, and also of Visitations of several counties. Rev. Mr. Mayo, the editor for Dorset, is the author of Bibliotheca Dorsetiensis.

The East Anglian, edited by the Rev. C. H. Evelyn White of Chesham, Bucks, is a revival of a periodical with the same title that the late Samuel Tymms, F.S.A., of Lowestoft, Suffolk, edited and published for over ten years, from 1858 to 1869. Mr. White's New Series was commenced in January, 1885, and is now in its seventh year.

The Scottish Antiquary was commenced by the present editor, the Rev. A. W. Cornelius Hallen of Alloa, Scotland, in June, 1886, under the title of the Northern Notes and Queries, or Scottish Antiquary. The change in the title was made last year.

The Yorkshire County Magazine was commenced in October, 1885, by Mr. Turner, under the title of Yorkshire Notes and Queries. With each part of the Notes and Queries was issued an instalment of three other works, namely, the Yorkshire Genealogist, the Yorkshire Bibliographer and the Yorkshire Folk-Lore Journal. These several works were paged separately, and with the number for July, 1888, which closed the third year, title pages and indexes for the four works were furnished, so that they could be bound up as separate works. From October, 1888, to October, 1890, the Folk-Lore Journal was incorporated with the Notes and Queries, and the Bibliographer with the Genealogist, making two separate volumes, with title pages and indexes. This year the four works have been incorporated together, and the title has been changed to the Yorkshire County Journal.

The Bedfordshire Notes and Queries was commenced by Mr. Blaydes, of Shenstone Lodge, Bedford, the present editor, sometime in 1882, the second number being dated January, 1883. Two volumes of twelve numbers each have been completed, with title pages and indexes, and six numbers of the third volume have appeared.

These periodicals are edited with learning and ability. They contain additions to the general as well as the local history of England. They are commended to the patronage of Americans who are studying their English ancestry. They and other county Notes and Queries have already been of much assistance in such searches.

The volume before us contains the proceedings on that occasion. The historical address is by the Rev. Ezra Hoyt Byington of Boston. It is a very able production and traces fully the history of the Church through the century during which it has existed. It contains sketches of the several pastors, and of other prominent persons connected with the parish. The address of welcome by the

Price 75 cents, or $2 per annum; to be purchased of the secretary, Dr. Davis R. Dewey, Rogers Buildings, Institute of Technology, Boston, Mass.

The present number of the Publications of the Statistical Association is a very valuable one. The papers are: 1. Basis for Statistics of Cost of Production, by Carroll D. Wright; 2. A Formula for Predicting the Population of the United States, by Prof. H. S. Pritchett; 3. Weight and Longevity, by T. B. Macaulay; and 4. Some Results of Sanitary Legislation in England since 1875, by Gary N. Calkins, S.B. There is also a department of Reviews and Book Notices, containing some interesting matter.

Samuel Grant Simpkins: A Memorial: Prepared by Peter Thacher. Boton: Printed by George H. Ellis, 141 Franklin Street. 1890. 8vo. p. 41.

This volume gives an account of the life and ancestry of a respected citizen of Boston, who died two years ago at the advanced age of eighty-six. Mr. Thacher pays a fitting tribute to the memory of his venerated friend, who in his early manhood was an active worker in some of the benevolent and charitable movements of the day.

DISPUTED POINTS IN BIOGRAPHY.

Many disputed points as to dates of death and Honorary degrees, have been settled by the Committee on the Rolls of Membership of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, during the last two and a half years. Three of the most difficult cases with which we have had to deal are those of the Hon. William Baylies. Peter Cooper and Buckingham Smith. The result of our in-HENRY H. EDES, vestigations is here presented.

For Committee on the Rolls of Membership.

WILLIAM BAYLIES.—The Hon. William Baylies, LL.D., though long a resident of West Bridgewater, died at Taunton, 27 September, 1965, as appears by the following letter:

Old Colony Historical Society.

Henry H. Edes, Esq. DEAR SIR.-Taunton, Mass., June 30, 1891. In reply to your inquiry, you have the record: Hon. William Baylies died in Taunton, Sept. 27, 1865, aged 89 yrs. 12 days.

He died at the residence of Mrs. Baylies, widow of his brother. Hon. Francis Baylies, where he had been spending a few months in declining health.

The above is the record sent to me by Mrs. Baylies and was so inserted in the paper of the 28th; but he died so near 12 o'clock that night, 27th, that one of the papers of the 28th had it "he died this morning" (editorial).

But his sister-in-law, Mrs. Baylies, was good authority, and it was so published in Taunton, New Bedford, Providence and Boston papers, viz. 27th; and strange to say it was not recorded by our city clerk at the time.

JOHN W. D. HALL, Yours, etc.

Secretary and Librarian.

PETER COOPER.-Mr. Cooper received from the College of New Jersey, in 1875, the honorary degree of Sc.D. He also received from the University of the State of New York, the honorary degree of LL.D., as appears by the following extract from a letter from the Regents' office in Albany, under date of 10 July, 1891:
"The following is an extract from the minutes of the meeting of the Regents of April 11, 1879:

... The Chancellor reports that on the evening of the 12th day of February last, being the birthday of Mr. Peter Cooper, at his residence, and in the presence of a brilliant and distinguished company of guests, the Vice-Chancellor and Regents Curtis, Depew, Warren and Reid and the Secretary assisting, he presented the diploma and conferred the honorary degree of LL.D. on Mr. Cooper, as ordered by the board."

BUCKINGHAM SMITH.—In the Proceedings of the Massachusetts Historical Society, xii. 1, and in the Harvard Law School Catalogue, Mr. Smith is recorded Society, Xil. 1, and in the Harvard Law School Catalogue, Mr. Smith is recorded as having died on 4 January, 1871; Drake's Biographical Dictionary and Dr. Dorus Clarke, in the necrology of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, assign 5 January as the date of his death; while the Proceedings of the American Antiquarian Society give 6 January, as the date of Mr. Smith's demise. The last date, 6 January, 1871, is the actual date of his death, as we learn from the New York Herald of Saturday, 7 January, 1871, page 6, and of Sunday, 8 January, page 9; and from the following official letter from the Health Department of New York:

"New York, June 27, 1891. Henry H. Edes, Esq. Sir,—Yours of June 25th is received. The records of this department show that Buckingham Smith, aged 65, died of phthisis at Bellevue Hospital, January 6th, 1871, and was buried at the Marble Cemetery.

Very Respectfully,
EMMONS CLARK,

Secretary.

DEATHS.

Rev. BEAVER HENRY BLACKER, M.A., of Meridian Place, Clifton, Eng., founder and editor till his death of the "Gloucestershire Notes and Queries," died Nov. 11, 1890, aged 69. His remains were interred in Dean's Grange Cemetery, Dublin, on the 19th of the same month. He was born in Dublin, Ire-land, May 31, 1821. "He was the eldest son of Mr. Latham Blacker, and a grandson of the Rev. George Millet, D.D., author of 'Modern History Philosophically Illustrated' (1852). Philosophically Illustrated' (1852). He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he thrice gained the Vice Chancellor's prize for English Prose, and took his B.A. degree in 1843, and M.A. in 1846. He was curate in charge of Donnybrook, co. Dublin, from 1845 to 1856. In 1857 he was appointed to the vicarage of Booterstown, co. Dublin, and to the rural deanery of South Dublin in 1862, both of which he resigned in 1874, when he retired to England." He was "curate-in-charge of Charlton Kings, Gloucestershire, in 1875-6, and senior curate of Cheltenham in 1876-8. From Stroud, where he resided three years, he, in 1881, removed to Clifton, and devoted his time to gleaning for and editing 'Gloucestershire Notes and Queries,' collecting materials for a bibliography of Gloucestershire, copying monumental inscription in the churches in his neighborhood, and, more recently, in contributing to the 'Dictionary of National Biography,' for which he wrote more than sixty articles. The 'Gloucestershire Notes and Queries' originally appeared in the Stroud Journal. So much interest did they evoke that Mr. Blacker was induced to reprint them, and Part I. was published in April, 1879." Eighteen parts of this quarterly periodical ap-peared under his editorship, the last issued in October, 1890, the month before his death, completing the fourth volume.

Mr. Blacker was the author of,-1. "Brief Sketches of the Parishes of Booterstown and Donnybrook in the County of Dublin, with Notes and Annala," 1874; 2. "Monumental Inscriptions in the Parish Church of Charlton Kings, Gionoestershire; with Extracts from the Parish Registers, and some Churchyard Inscriptions," 1876;
3. Monumental Inscriptions in the Parish Church of Cheltenham," 1877.
Besides these he published "Two Sermons on the Duty of National Humiliation," 1847, and several other theological pumphlets. He was a contributor to being "ARMAA."

A biographical sketch of the Rev.
Mr. Blacker by Mr. William George of Redland, is printed in "Gloucestershire
Notes and Queries," Vol. V. Part I., Jan.—March, 1891, to which the present aditor, William P. W. Phillimore, M.A., B.G.L., appends a few reminiscences of his predecessor. This sketch has been freely used in preparing this obituary.
Mr. George says of Mr. Blacker: "His kindly disposition and genial and unaffected manner caused him to be esteemed by all who had the privilege of his acquaintance. He was a zealous, cautious and psinstaking antiquary, and one who felt as much pleasure in communicating as in gathering information."

HENRY HASSAM, in Portland, Oregon, June 2, 1891, aged 68 years, 10 months and 21 days [Register, xxiv. 414].

Mr. Rotheus Hayward Mitchell of Nevada, Story County, Iowa, died at his home in that city, Friday morning, May 15, 1891, aged 68. He was born in Lyme, Grafton County, N. H., Jan. 4, 1823. He was a son of Horatio G. Mitchell born at Bridgewater, Mass., Dec. 17, 1787, and his wife Mary Ames born at Groton, N. H., Oct. 6, 1794, who were married at Lyme, Dec. 11, 1817. The father resided in New Hampshire till 1836, when he removed with his family to Parishville, St. Lawrence County, N. Y. Here he died, April 3, 1867, and his wife the 10th of May following.

Mr. Rotheus H. Mitchell was a descendant in the 7th generation from Experience Mitchell, one of the Pilgrim Fathers who came in 1623 in the Ann, through Jacob's and wife Susanna Pope (both of whom were killed by the Indians in Philip's War, July, 1675); Thomas's and wife Elizabeth Kingman; Neth, born 1715, died 1802, and wife Ann Latham; Rotheus, born 1755; died Oct. 28, 1816 (served in the Continental Army, April, 1775, to May, 1761, and rose to the rank of lientenant, removed to New Hampshire in 1781], and wife Hephribah Hayward; and Horatio G.5 his father above named. He was a descendant of many of the early settlers of Plymouth enlany.

He received the advantages of a nummon achool education and was for same time a student in the St. Lawrence Academy at Pottsdam, N. Y. In his youth he learned the millwright's trade, a calling he followed for a number of years, during the summer mouths, has winters being devoted to the occupation of teaching. The year 1856 witnessed his arrival in Story County, Iowa, and the same spring he was appeinted deputy county surveyor. At the next election he was chosen county surveyor, a position he held by re-election for four terms. In 1865, he was elected judge of the county, and held the office till 1870. By virtue of his judgeship he was county auditor in 1869. He was county surveyor continuously from 1874 till his death.

He was a member of the republican party from its organization, and was one of its mest enthusiastic supporter. He was the control of the relative and all measures of morality, education, temperance and others of like nature found in him a strong and liberal advocate. He was very active in behalf of the state agricultural college. He was a great reader with a special fondness for collecting historical books. He was thoroughly informed on the current questions of the day, and by precept and practice he was helpful to the best interest of society. The influence of his upright life will always abide.

He was first married May 27, 1854, to Miss Berintha R. Mott, who was born in Keene, Essex County, N. Y. Aug. 10, 1829, a daughter of Rev. Ebenezer and Berintha (Knapp) Mott. Mrs. Mitchell died Oct. 19, 1864, at Nevada, Iowa, and two years later, Oct. 21, 1866, he was married to his second wife, Miss Hannah C. Bixby a daughter of Benjamin and Mary (Daniels) Bixby. They had two children, Mary Berintha, born July 11, 1867, died March 29, 1875; and Clara Maria, born Jan. 24, 1870, died Oct. 15, 1870. His last wife survives him.

A sketch of his life was printed in the History of Story County, 1890, of which and an obituary in the Nevada Representative, May 20, 1891, free use has been made.

Rolls of Membership

HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

PRINTED FOR THE SOCIETY
1891

NOTE.

More than two years ago, a Committee, specially charged with the work of thoroughly revising and completing the Rolls of Membership of the Society from its foundation in 1844, was appointed by the Council. The result of the Committee's labors upon the Honorary Roll and the Corresponding Roll is presented in this number of the Register. The Resident Roll appeared in the April number.

All Residences are in Massachusetts unless the contrary is stated, and are those of Members at the time of their Election. Villages and Post-offices are not recognized.

All Academic Degrees which Members have received, except A.B. when followed by A.M., and D.B. when followed by D.D., are intended to be given; also such of their principal learned Society honors as can be expressed by initial letters.

The titles of "Honorable" and "Esquire" and military titles are omitted, except that officers of the regular Army and Navy are designated by the proper initials.

The title of "Reverend" is appended in parentheses to the names of Clergymen who have not received the degree of D.B. or D.D.

If any omissions or other errors should be discovered in the following pages, it is earnestly requested that immediate notice thereof be given to the undersigned, in order that the same may be rectified before the electrotype plates are made and the Rolls printed in separate form in the autumn of 1891.

A separate Index of all the Rolls, 1844-1890, in one alphabet, and an Index of Residences, will be printed in the October number of the REGISTER.

MR. WATERS'S ENGLISH RESEARCHES.

The New-England Historic Genealogical Society, through its Committee on English Research, has issued the following circular:

18 Somerset Street, Boston, April 1, 1891. The Committee on English Research of the New-England Historic Genea-

The Committee on English Research of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society finds itself without funds to continue that exhaustive search through English Records which has already yielded such important results, and which, if properly conducted, cannot fail to prove of the utmost value to all who are interested in the family history of the early settlers of this country. It was the good fortune of the Committee to secure, at the outset, the services of the eminent antiquary, Mr. Henry Fitz-Gilbert Waters, among the fruits of whose industrious labors has been the full and satisfactory determination of the parentage of John Harvard and John Rogers, and the even more interesting, if not yet so certain, establishment of the ancestry of George Washington and Roger Williams. To Mr. Waters is also due the finding of the Gov. Winthrop map and the manuscript account of New England by Samuel Maverick, two most important contributions to early Colonial history. He is now ready to return to England to resume his investigations, which will be prosecuted in no narrow spirit, and the material accumulated by him will be communicated, as heretofore, to the New-England Historical and Genealogical Register for convenient reference. venient reference.

The Society has no fund at its disposal to defray the expense of this important undertaking, and it is obliged to rely, as in the past, upon the assistance of public-spirited persons throughout the country. In view of the great amount of material in existence, the Committee is desirous to accelerate the previous slow rate of publication. To this end it is necessary to provide for an expenditure of $2000 annually for at least five years. One gentleman has offered to subscribe $500 a year for this period. Subscriptions will also be received for a shorter time, and the Committee ventures to express the earnest hope that the responses to the present appeal may be prompt and generous. All persons who may receive this circular are respectfully invited to bring it to the notice of any of their friends who might be interested in the subject.
